LECTURES ON CONDITIONED REFLEXES

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OF OBJECTIVE STUDY OF THE HIGHER NERVOUS ACTIVITY (BEHAVIOR) OF ANIMALS

By PROF. IVAN P. PAVLOV

Introduction by PROF. WALTER B. CANNON, Harvard University
Translated by DR. W. HORSLEY GANTT

THE book sets forth new methods which Prof. Pavlov, Russia's great scientist and Nobel Prize winner, has devised for the accurate and positive measurement of what are usually termed "psychical processes" in the brain, including thought, and gives the results learned through twenty-five years' of experiments in behaviorism. The book contains the results of Prof. Pavlov's recent experiments and an extensive biographical sketch by Dr. Gantt, describing the life and work of the author. Illustrated. 8vo. Probably $6.00

HISTORY OF RUSSIA

By PROF. M. N. POKROVSKY

Vol. I: FROM THE BEGINNINGS OF RUSSIAN HISTORY TO THE MIDDLE OF THE EIGHTEENTH CENTURY

THE author, Vice-Commissar of Education in Soviet Russia, published his four-volume History first in 1911. Different editions of this classic Marxian interpretation of Russian history from ancient times have been published since. The first volume covers the history of Russia from the early beginnings through the reign of Peter the Great and his immediate successors. Special attention is given to Russian feudalism, its break-up in the 16th and 17th Centuries (Ivan the Terrible and the Troubles), the nature of the early Russian towns and trade (Kiev and Novgorod) and the social significance of Peter and his period. Subsequent volumes will be published as they are translated. The English translation is being prepared by Dr. J. D. Clarkson with the collaboration of the author.

BILL HAYWOOD'S BOOK

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF WILLIAM D. HAYWOOD

WILLIAM D. HAYWOOD'S own story, written during the last year of his life, is really the story of a significant period of change in American history. In his boyhood in the pioneer West, his youth underground in the mines, his maturity as an outstanding labor leader, Haywood symbolized to an extraordinary degree a striking change in the life of the American workers. As secretary of the militant Western Federation of Miners, Haywood was in the forefront of the epic struggles of the miners. Couer d'Alenes, Cripple Creek, Leadville and Ludlow are landmarks of class warfare in America. His account of the celebrated murder charge and trial of himself and the other officials of the miner's union, the story of the formation of the I. W. W., his sentence of twenty years' of imprisonment and his exile to Soviet Russia rounding out thirty years of a fighting proletarian life are graphically described in this unusual book.

CEMENT

By FIODOR GLADKOV

THE first novel out of the turbulent years of the Russian Civil War and Reconstruction following it. The story concerns a Red Army soldier, Gleb, who returns to his village during the period of breakdown of economic life caused by the Revolution and Civil War. The personal story of Gleb and his wife is told against the background of the efforts to reconstruct the cement works which form the chief industrial concern of the village. 12 mo. $2.50

AZURE CITIES

STORIES OF NEW RUSSIA

A COLLECTION of short stories portraying various phases of life influenced by the Revolution. Among the authors whose stories will be included are: Alexey Tolstoy, Boris Pilniak, Pantelemon Romanov, Alexander Neverov, Lydia Seyfullina, I. Babel, Vsevolod Ivanov, Marietta Shaginian, Michael Zostchenko, Nikolai Liashko, Michael Prishvin. Translated from the Russian. 12mo. $2.50

120 MILLION

By MICHAEL GOLD

A COLLECTION of fiction sketches and poems which describe the pathos and drama of worker's life in America, written with the passion of a Gorky or Jack London. Picturing the life in the steel mills, coal mines, harvest fields, prisons, slums, and sweatshops, this book is like a new kind of Cook's tour through the bottom-dog's America. A group of mass recitations is also included, the first in English of this new form of worker's art. 12 mo. Probably $2.00

IMPERIALISM AND WORLD ECONOMY

By Nikolai Bukharin

Introduction by V. I. Lenin

A keen analysis of the international aspects of modern capitalism, the forces that operate to make business no longer confined to the home market, the sharpening competition between the capitalists of various countries for the investment of surplus profits abroad and for the acquisition of necessary raw materials, the resultant Imperialist policies of the various nations culminating in wars and the subjugation of colonial peoples as well as the rise of the working class and its struggle for power are treated by the author in his characteristic clear and crisp style. Translated from the Russian. 8 vo. $2.50

INTRODUCTION TO DIALECTICAL MATERIALISM

By A. Thalheimer

An unusually lucid presentation of the philosophy which forms the cornerstone of Marxism. Natural philosophy, atomistic materialism and idealism are sharply outlined and skillfully contrasted. The chapters on Marx and Engels, the Materialist Conception of History and Dialectics are prefaced with a concise introduction explaining the principles and methods of Hegel and Feuerbach. Penetrating discussions on Indian Materialism and classic Chinese philosophy and a critical analysis of the American school of Pragmatism are included in the book. Translated from the German. 8 vo. $2.00

THE LABOR APPROACH TO PSYCHOLOGY

By Arthur W. Calhoun

An analysis of the way in which the mind of the worker and the working class is produced by the experiences of working class life, together with an explanation of the mental mechanisms that characterize the Labor mind, and a far-reaching presentation of the problems of group experience and group behavior in the Labor movement. 12mo. $1.75

AMERICAN POLICY TOWARD RUSSIA SINCE 1917

By Frederick Lewis Schuman, Ph.D.

A study in diplomatic history and public opinion covering the entire field of Russian-American relations since the Revolution. The American military intervention of 1918 and 1919, the reasons for non-recognition, the validity of American financial claims against Russia and the Soviet counter-claims, the issue of propaganda, the development of Russian-American Commerce, the struggle for Russian oil, the relations of the U. S. A. and the U. S. S. R. in world politics, all are critically examined and evaluated. 8 vo. $3.75

COLLECTED WORKS OF V. I. LENIN

INTERNATIONAL PUBLISHERS are continuing the translation of the writings and speeches of V. I. Lenin based upon the revised and edited texts issued by the Lenin Institute. In addition to biographical and bibliographical material, each volume includes important political documents, extensive explanatory notes and a dictionary of names mentioned in each volume.

The volumes listed below are planned for publication during the Fall of 1928 and the Spring of 1929 and will probably appear in the following order:

Vol. XX: THE RUSSIAN REVOLUTION OF 1917

IN this volume are collected all Lenin's writings and speeches covering the period from the overthrow of the Tsar in March to the first open conflict with the Provisional Government—the July Days. Two parts. Each, $4.00 and $3.00

Vol. XXI: THE RUSSIAN REVOLUTION OF 1917

FROM July to November, Lenin continued his literary campaign, moulding opinion for decisive action which finally led to the November Revolution and the establishment of the Soviet Government. The volume includes also a revised translation of Lenin's State and Revolution. Two parts. Each, $4.00 and $3.00

Vols. XVIII and XIX: WAR AND REVOLUTION

THE whole period of the World War and the eve of the Russian Revolution are covered in these important volumes. Soon after the outbreak of the war Lenin launches an attack upon the Socialist and Labor elements who supported the war, formulates policies and proposes tactics for turning the war between nations into a war between classes, and calls upon the workers of Russia to enter into an open conflict with Tsarism and Capitalism. The economic and political forces back of the World War and the Russian Revolution cannot be properly appraised without a study of Lenin's writings during this period. The volumes include a revised translation of the author's celebrated Imperialism, the Final Stage of Capitalism. 8 vo. Each volume, $4.00 and $3.00

Vol. III: DEVELOPMENT OF CAPITALISM IN RUSSIA

LENIN'S classic study of the origin and growth of the industrial system in Russia written while in exile in Siberia. Based upon a wealth of economic and statistical material the book is a Marxian critique of the fundamental theories of the Populists current at that time in Russia and a forecast of the character of Russian economic development. Regular edition, $4.00; popular edition, $3.00

Vol. IV: 1900-1902

THE volume includes the famous brochure, What Is To Be Done,—a vigorous polemic against the so-called "Economism", or trade-union ideology prevalent then in some Russian Socialist circles. An extended study on the Russian agrarian problem, articles dealing with the attitude toward the Liberals, etc., are also included in this book. Regular edition, $4.00; popular edition, $3.00

Vol. VII: 1904-1905

LENIN'S writings covering the period culminating in the Potemkin insurrection,— the eve of the Revolution of 1905, and a series of speeches delivered at the Third Congress of the Russian Social-Democratic Labor Party. The questions of participation in a provisional revolutionary government, armed uprisings, the support of the peasant movement, the relation between workers and intellectuals, etc., are treated in discussions led by Lenin at that Congress.

Regular edition, $4.00; popular edition, $3.00

Vol. XIII: MATERIALISM AND EMPIRIO-CRITICISM

AFTER the Revolution of 1905, a number of outstanding revolutionary figures exhibited a friendly attitude towards the empirio-critical and positivist schools of philosophy. In a merciless polemic, he dubs their philosophy reactionary and gives an exposition of dialectic materialism in its relation to other systems of philosophy. Regular edition, $4.00; popular edition, $3.00

SELECTED WRITINGS BY V. I. LENIN

THE outstanding writings of Lenin gleaned from his Collected Works to be published in four volumes. The first two volumes to be issued are:

Vol. I: 1893-1904
THE STRUGGLE FOR A PROGRAM, THE TACTICS AND THE ORGANIZATION OF THE PARTY

THIS volume contains Lenin's important writings dealing with the theories and policies of the Populists (Narodniks), the "Economists" and the Mensheviks.

12 mo. $2.00

Vol. II: 1904-1914
THE BOLSHEVIK PARTY IN ACTION

NUMEROUS writings of Lenin treating significant political and organizational problems of the Russian Socialist movement during the revolutionary years of 1905-6 and the years of reaction which followed. 12 mo. $2.50

LABOR AND INDUSTRY SERIES

WITH the issuance of the two volumes listed below, International Publishers begin the publication of a series of books dealing with the economics of the most important American industries and the problems confronting the workers in each of those industries. The organization of the industry, its relation to the economic situation of the country, the methods of production, the home and foreign markets, mergers, financing, profits of the corporations, earnings, conditions of employment, and the demands of the workers, their struggles, the extent and form of organization and the possibilities of organization of the unorganized in the particular industry are treated in a systematic and comprehensive manner. The first volumes to be published:

LABOR AND AUTOMOBILES

By ROBERT W. DUNN

"THE automobile industry ranks first," boasts the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. It creates the 23,000,000 cars now registered in the United States and ships 650,000 abroad annually. Over 625,000 workers are employed in motor vehicle, parts and accessory factories. Every nationality and craft now crowd along the "belt". High speed, mass production, tremendous increase in productivity, the whole picture of piled-up profits company by company, the status of labor in this most prosperous American industry, and the prospects of greater organization are thoroughly treated in the book. 12 mo. $1.50

IN THE SILK

By GRACE HUTCHINS

THE speed-up system, wage-cuts, unemployment, lack of labor organization are the characteristic features of the textile industry. Periodic revolts of the workers in various branches of the industry are known chapters in American labor history. The silk industry in particular has witnessed many labor struggles. The condition of the industry with special reference to the rayon companies, extent of organization and conditions of employment are presented and interpreted in this readable book. Illustrated. 12 mo. $1.50

LABOR PROTECTION IN SOVIET RUSSIA

By DR. GEORGE M. PRICE

THE author, an American authority on industrial hygiene and factory sanitation, who has made a special study of labor protective legislation in foreign countries, visited the Soviet Union, where he studied at first hand the protection in industry accorded the Russian worker today. 12mo. $1.25

AMERICAN LABOR HISTORY SERIES

With the issuance of the volume listed below, International Publishers begin publication of a series of volumes dealing with significant occurrences in the history of the American Labor movement, many of which may be classified today as forgotten chapters in American labor history. It is proposed to retell the stories of the past struggles and achievements of American labor in the light of new material and recent experience. The first volume in this series to be published:

THE MOLLY MAGUIRES

By Anthony Bimba

The story of the secret organization of miners in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania in the '70s, their activities, the crimes with which they were charged, and for which ten of their members were executed and others imprisoned, told against the bitter struggles of the miners during that period. The role of the labor spy and provocateur, Pinkerton, who helped to bring the miners to the scaffold, is also described. 12mo. $1.50

FUNDAMENTAL PROBLEMS OF MARXISM

By George V. Plekhanov

The author, considered as the father of Russian Marxism and one of the most brilliant Marxian publicists, presents in this book a philosophical and historical analysis of scientific Socialism. Published first in 1908 as a polemic against the revisionists of the philosophical foundations of Marxism, the book has been later revised and the author has prepared many instructive explanatory notes. D. Riazanov, who edited the edition published by the Marx-Engels Institute from which the English translation has been made, has added a number of notes and included two important articles of the author which greatly enrich the book. Translated from the Russian. 12 mo. $1.50

ILLUSTRATED HISTORY OF THE RUSSIAN REVOLUTION

Ten years of progress reported by some of the outstanding Russian leaders—Rykov, Stalin, Bukharin, Lunacharsky, Tomsky, Krupskaya, and others and a review of achievements recorded in the various fields of social and cultural endeavor. The significant feature of this book is several hundred photographs of revolutionary events and facsimiles of original documents, as well as hitherto unpublished personal reminiscences of many who participated in the Revolution and the Civil War. Translated from the Russian. 2 volumes. Each $2.75

SOCIAL FORCES IN GERMAN HISTORY

By FRANZ MEHRING

THIS most famous of Germany's radical historians outlines the history of Germany from the earliest times to the present day, emphasizing chiefly the class struggles underlying the historical events, and showing the rôle played by social forces in the evolution of German history. The book is brought up-to-date through additional chapters written by Paul Frölich, Mehring's co-worker. Translated from the German. 8vo. Probably $2.75

GUIDE TO THE SOVIET UNION

THE first comprehensive guide to Soviet Russia. All points of interest, both historical and contemporary, are described in detail in this 1000-page book. In addition to information regarding the social, cultural, political and economic phases of Russian life, the book contains valuable details to meet the everyday needs of the traveler—railroads, hotels, theatres, museums, art galleries, etc. $5.00

RUSSIAN POETRY

Chosen and translated by BABETTE DEUTSCH and AVRAHM YARMOLINSKY

A SELECTION of lyrics, in translation, covering the period from Pushkin to the present day. All poetic groups find representation here: the classical lyricists, the Parnassian school, the symbolists, the futurists, the peasant singers, the proletarian versemakers, and the propagandists. One of the features of the volume is the full text of Blok's world-famous poem: The Twelve. The book contains an introduction as well as biographical sketches of all the writers. 12mo. $2.25

MODERN RUSSIAN COMPOSERS

By LEONID SABANEYEFF

A RUSSIAN composer with the gift of a brilliant style offers aesthetic characterizations of outstanding representatives of Russian music. Such figures as Skryabin, Stravinski, Rakhmaninoff, Prokofyeff, Myaskovski, Ryebikoff, Feinberg, Krein, Gnessin, and forty other composers, are discussed in a delightful and intimate manner. Large 12mo. $2.75

ENGLISH FOR WORKERS

By ELI B. JACOBSON

PRIMERS for teaching English to foreign-born workers containing exercises and reading matter of labor interest. 12 mo. Vol. I. $1.00; Vol. II. $1.25

THE COMMUNIST MANIFESTO

By KARL MARX AND FRIEDRICH ENGELS

THE revised translation of the famous Manifesto issued in 1848 is published together with a great deal of historical and explanatory material under the editorship of Prof. D. Riazanov. The volume of about four hundred pages includes, besides the Manifesto, an article on the History of the Communist League in whose behalf the Manifesto was written by Marx and Engels, an article by Engels on the revolutionary movement of 1847, various introductions to the Manifesto by Marx and Engels, exhaustive explanatory notes prepared by Riazanov, which occupy nearly one-half of the book. The appendices of the volume include Engels' "Principles of Communism", the constitution of the Communist League, a chronology of revolutionary events from 1500 to 1848, etc. A veritable encyclopedia of information for the student of history, economics and the labor movement. 8 vo. Probably $3.00

CAPITAL: VOLUME ONE

By KARL MARX

READERS of the monumental work of the founder of scientific Socialism have long realized that the old English translation needs a thorough revision on account of the numerous errors in the publishing of the available edition. Eden and Cedar Paul, who have made the new translation, are taking as a basis the editions in other languages published under Marx's own or Engels' supervision and are substituting present-day terminology to make the book easier to read. Large 12 mo. Probably $3.75

LENINISM

By JOSEPH STALIN

THE Soviet leader, a disciple and co-worker of Lenin, deals in this book with the fundamental theories and policies which have influenced the Russian Revolution and which form the present basis of the Soviet State. The recent political controversy in the Communist Party of the Soviet Union is thoroughly dealt with in this book. Translated from the Russian. 8vo. $2.50

THE HISTORY OF THE FIRST INTERNATIONAL

By G. M. STEKLOV

A COMPREHENSIVE study of one of the most important epochs in the history of the international labor movement—the period of the International Workingmen's Association, generally known as the First International. The economic and political conditions which led to the formation of the I. W. A. in London in 1864, the rôle played by Marx and Engels throughout the existence of the I. W. A. and the ideologic struggle between Marx and Bakunin for leadership in it—all these are treated in detail in this authoritative history of the first labor international. Translated from the Russian. 8vo. $3.50

THE ECONOMIC THEORY OF THE LEISURE CLASS

THE VALUE AND PROFIT THEORY OF THE AUSTRIAN SCHOOL

By NIKOLAI BUKHARIN

THE author, a renowned political theorist of present-day Russia, subjects to a searching analysis the theories of the most prominent economists of the so-called Austrian School, such as Boehm-Bawerk, von Wieser, Schumpeter, etc. Bukharin finds the Austrian School woefully deficient in method, and governed by the vulgar psychology of the rentier. Translated from the Russian. 8vo. $2.50

KARL MARX AND FRIEDRICH ENGELS

By D. Riazanov

Professor Riazanov uses Marx's own method in a searching analysis of the time in which the founders of scientific socialism lived and worked. Translated from the Russian. Illustrated. Large 12mo. $2.50

HISTORICAL MATERIALISM

A SYSTEM OF SOCIOLOGY

By Nikolai Bukharin

In a vigorous style the author carefully examines all schools of social thought, and explains the nature of historical materialism as one of the cornerstones of scientific socialism. Translated from the Russian. 8vo. $3.25

THE HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN WORKING CLASS

By Anthony Bimba

After giving the economic and social background of the outstanding epochs in American history, the author takes up the organization and activities of the economic and political phases of the labor movement during the past hundred years. Starting with the sporadic and local attempts at organization, the book traces the development of the trade unions to the present day. It also discusses the various attempts at independent political action, from the formation of local Working Men's parties to the present movement for the formation of a broad Labor party. 8vo. $2.75

WHITHER CHINA?

By Scott Nearing

A Study of the social forces back of the Chinese Revolution. Beginning with the First Opium War in 1840, Prof. Nearing considers the outstanding events in Chinese history, the influence of the Russian Revolution, and the effect of foreign economic and political domination. The aims of the Revolution, the various contending groups in China, the place of the present struggle in world history, and its outcome, are set forth with the author's characteristic lucidity. 12mo. $1.75

THE LIFE AND DEATH OF SACCO AND VANZETTI

By Eugene Lyons

The author, closely associated with this famous case from its beginning, traces with tremendous power and insight the lives of the two Italian workers from their boyhood in Italy to their execution in Massachusetts. The story about Sacco and Vanzetti told against the background of immigrant life in U. S. 12mo. $1.50

THE AMERICANIZATION OF LABOR

By Robert W. Dunn

This book deals primarily with various devices, open and secret, used by employers and their associations to prevent unionization of the workers. Such topics as: The American Plan, Open Shop, Company Union, The Black List, The Labor Spy, and the different welfare schemes employed in industrial enterprises are discussed in this book. 12mo. $1.90

MEMOIRS OF A REVOLUTIONIST

By Vera Figner

Looking over three generations, Vera Figner reviews her eventful life in a series of vivid tableaux, tracing the evolution of the aristocratic Russian girl into a leader of the Terrorists, whose activities culminated in the assassination of Tsar Alexander II in 1881. She tells of her arrest, her death verdict which was commuted to life imprisonment in the Schlüsselburg fortress, and those twenty-two years of solitary confinement which failed to break her body or dim her spirit. Translated from the Russian. Illustrated. 8vo. $3.00

THOMAS MORE AND HIS UTOPIA

By Karl Kautsky

A vivid and sympathetic account of the life and work of this most famous of Utopians. The book contains a critical examination of More's Utopia. Translated from the German. 12mo. $2.25

THE FOUNDATIONS OF CHRISTIANITY

By Karl Kautsky

Christianity is here traced from its humble beginnings as a revolutionary movement against the Jewish hierarchy and the imperial power of Rome. It is one of the most carefully reasoned of social studies; an authoritative account of the origins of the Christian Church. Translated from the German. 8vo. $3.50

FRENCH

French — Its Essentials

G. P. Fougeray Published July, 1928.

This book, intended for beginning French courses, sets a new standard in French textbooks. It is simple, direct, and is adaptable to wide variations in classroom conditions. By means of boldface type and by a clever arrangement of the page, the simple essentials of grammar, both in French and English, are made to stand out. At the same time, reading, conversation, and exercises designed for either oral or written use firmly fix the principles taught. Properly used, FRENCH — ITS ESSENTIALS will give the student the foundation for a real mastery of the language.

List price $1.60.

The Mastery of French, Book I—Illustrated

G. P. Fougeray

A direct method book for First-Year French which gives the student a usable knowledge of the language. The vocabulary is made up of everyday words introduced for the most part in conversation and narrative. Can be used to cover minimum requirements for both First and Second-Year French.

List price $1.60.

The Mastery of French, Book II—Illustrated

G. P. Fougeray

A direct method book for the second year which gives a thorough preparation for all standard tests given in secondary schools at the end of the second and third year.

List price $1.76.

FRENCH (Continued)

Iroquois Phonograph Records for the Mastery of French Pronunciation, Set I

G. P. Fougeray

These Records, including fourteen lessons, provide a complete key for the accurate pronunciation of all French words. They accomplish in a few weeks' time what most students have been unable to acquire after years of study. In addition, these Records, together with the Student's Manual, provide the means of acquiring a complete mastery of International Phonetic Symbols. The Records are packed in an attractive album. One Student's Manual is included in each set.

Net price $16.00 per set.

Student's Manual for Iroquois Phonograph Records, Set I

G. P. Fougeray

The Student's Manual, which accompanies the Records, Set 1, takes up each lesson in turn. The sounds and words of each Record are given on the left-hand page so that the student may see and recognize by sight what he hears, and reproduces by speech. The right-hand page repeats the lesson as given on the Record and includes the nearest English equivalent as an aid in home study. The English translation of each French word is also included.

International Phonetic Symbols—In the second part of the Manual is a very simple and yet complete explanation and thorough drill on the International Phonetic Symbols. Teachers who desire to use these symbols will be enabled to teach them in a much shorter time than heretofore, owing to the fact that they are linked with the absolutely correct pronunciation given on the Phonograph Records.

Net price 75c.

Iroquois Phonograph Records for French Grammar and Conversation, Set II

G. P. Fougeray

These Records—sixteen lessons—give a thorough elementary drill in perfectly pronounced sentences which include statements, questions and answers relating to grammar and practical conversation. One Student's Manual is included in each set.

Net price $18.00 per set.

FRENCH (Continued)

A Student's Manual for Iroquois Phonograph Records, Set II

G. P. Fougeray

The Student's Manual, which accompanies the Records, Set II, gives the material of each lesson twice, once all in French for those teachers who hold strictly to the use of the Direct Method, and again in English for those teachers who prefer the English approach.

Net price 60c.

Le Français Par La Lecture, Premier Livre

G. P. Fougeray

A collection of simple, live and interesting stories, well within the grasp of First-Year French students.

List price 64c.

ALBERT SHAW LECTURES ON DIPLOMATIC HISTORY.

1899. John H. Latané. The Diplomatic Relations of the United States and Spanish America. 1900. (Out of print.)

1900. James Morton Callahan. The Diplomatic History of the Southern Confederacy. 1901. (Out of print.)

1906. Jesse Siddall Reeves. American Diplomacy Under Tyler and Polk. 1907. 335 pages. 12 mo. $1.75.

This volume discusses the Northeastern Boundary Controversy; the Ashburton Treaty; the Relations between Mexico and the United States, 1825-1843; the Annexation of Texas; the Northwestern Boundary Controversy; the Oregon Treaty; Polk's attempted Negotiation for California; the Outbreak of the Mexican War; the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo.

1907. Elbert Jay Benton. International Law and Diplomacy of the Spanish-American War. 1908. 300 pp. 12 mo. $1.75.

Among the topics discussed are: Cuba and National Policy; American Neutrality, 1895-1897; Abandonment of Non-Intervention Policy; Intervention; Transition from Neutrality to Belligerency; Relations of the Belligerents; Relations between Belligerents and Neutrals; Negotiations of Belligerents during War; Restoration of Peace; Interpretation and Fulfilment of Treaty of Peace.

1909. Ephraim Douglas Adams. British Interests and Activities in Texas, 1838-1846. 1910. 276 pp. 12 mo. $1.75.

This work is the result of extended research in the diplomatic archives of this country and of Great Britain. The author throws new and interesting light on the attitude of the English government toward Mexico, Texas, and the United States during the agitation for Texan independence and annexation. The book is a valuable contribution to the diplomatic questions discussed in part in the previous volume by Reeves on American Diplomacy under Tyler and Polk.

1911. Charles Oscar Paullin. Diplomatic Negotiations of American Naval Officers, 1778-1883. 1912. 380 pp. 12 mo. $2.25.

This work presents a brief but comprehensive study of the service of the navy in the field of diplomacy, from John Paul Jones to Rear-Admiral Schufeldt. The naval officer as a diplomat was distinguished for simplicity, candor, and directness, and as his negotiations were for the most part with far distant oriental peoples, he was often the first to establish permanent relations with the United States.

1912. Isaac J. Cox. The West Florida Controversy, 1798-1813. 1918. 702 pp. 12 mo. $3.00.

The subject involves one of the most intricate problems in American history, and Professor Cox has spared no pains in searching for new sources of information. He has not only availed himself of the collections in Washington and of the material in the Department of Archives and History at Jackson, Mississippi, but he has personally searched the archives at Seville and Madrid.

1913. William R. Manning. Early Diplomatic Relations Between the United States and Mexico. 1916. 418 pp. 12 mo. $2.50.

The writer shows in an interesting way how the British took advantage of our delay in establishing a permanent representative at the Mexican capital to promote British influence over the Mexican government, and how Poinsett's efforts to recover prestige for his government involved him in difficulties and in charges of intermeddling in the internal affairs of the country. The suspicions thus aroused, together with Poinsett's connection with the York Masons, thwarted his efforts to bring to a successful conclusion the treaty negotiations with which he was charged.

1914. Frank A. Updyke. The Diplomacy of the War of 1812. 1915. 504 pp. 12 mo. $2.75.

Then, as now, the United States was the principal neutral power in a war which involved all Europe. The causes of the War of 1812 are clearly set forth. The Treaty of Ghent, the hundredth anniversary of which has recently been celebrated, is the central theme of the latter half of the volume. The negotiations leading to the signing of that treaty are clearly described. The terms of the treaty are examined as well as the questions in dispute which were omitted, and which continued to disturb the relations of the two countries for many years.

1916. Payson Jackson Treat. The Early Diplomatic Relations Between United States and Japan, 1853-1865. 1917. 468 pp. 12 mo. $2.75.

This volume begins with Perry's romantic visit to Japan, and covers in detail the treaty negotiations so ably conducted by the first representatives of the United States, Townsend Harris and Robert H. Pruyn, concluding with the Mikado's sanction of the treaties in 1865. It is a story of absorbing interest told in admirable style.

1921. Percy Alvin Martin. Latin America and the War. 1925. 594 pp. 12 mo. $3.50.

The author is a well known student and writer in the Latin-American field, and he has had access to a vast number of contemporary documents, journals and newspapers published in the various states included within the scope of the volume. Of the twenty Latin-American republics, eight declared war on Germany, five severed relations without declaring war, and seven remained neutral. Pan Hispanism and Yankeephobia each played its part in preventing a realization of that solidarity which has been the aim of Pan-Americanism. The author describes in some detail the reactions to the World War in each of the American republics, and draws a number of interesting conclusions in the final chapter. Among them may be mentioned the increased dependence on their own resources and initiative, the development of trade between the different republics, and the extension of financial and commercial relations with the United States.

1926. Samuel Flagg Bemis. Pinckney's Treaty: A Study of America's Advantage from Europe's Distress, 1783-1800. 1926. 432 pp. 5 maps. 12 mo. $3.00.

This volume gives a full and clear treatment of an hitherto neglected and obscure period of American diplomacy. It covers our diplomatic relations with Spain from the Revolution to the year 1800. It is supplementary in a way to the author's well known study of "Jay's Treaty" which deals with our own relations with Great Britain during the same period. The two series of negotiations were by no means unrelated, and the signature of Jay's Treaty with England had an important influence on the successful conclusion of the long drawn out negotiations with Spain. While Jay's Treaty is much better known on account of the violent opposition it encountered, Pinckney's Treaty, which was ratified without difficulty and caused no stir in political circles, has been almost overlooked by historians.

1927. Bruce Williams. State Security and the League of Nations. A survey of the movement for State Security from the Treaty of Versailles to the Locarno Conference. 1927. 356 pp. 12 mo. $2.75.

The present volume traces the origins of Articles X and XVI and their subsequent evolution in the debates and reports of the Commissions and Assemblies of the League of Nations. It reviews the efforts at Geneva to create systems of security to supplement the Covenant, namely the Draft Treaty of Mutual Assistance and the Geneva Protocol. The concluding portion of the volume describes the return to the principle of regional pacts of security as evidenced in the Locarno Agreements.

THE HAGUE PEACE CONFERENCES OF 1899 AND 1907.

By JAMES BROWN SCOTT.

Solicitor for the Department of State and Technical Delegate to the Second Conference.

Two volumes. 8vo. Price, $7.00.

Vol. I. The Conferences, 887 pages. Vol. II. Documents, 548 pages.

These two substantial volumes furnish the most complete account of the Conferences which has appeared in English, and will undoubtedly be accepted as the definitive account of the work of those two great gatherings. The fact that the author was the Technical Delegate of the United States to the Second Conference and played a conspicuous part in its deliberations adds to the authoritative value of the treatise.

THE TREATIES OF 1778

And Allied Documents.

Edited by G. CHINARD.

With an Introduction by JAMES BROWN SCOTT.

96 pages. 8vo. Price, $2.50.

The purpose of this "Cahier" published for the Institut Français de Washington, is to make available the original texts of two epoch-making documents signed in Paris one hundred and fifty years ago, on February 6, 1778, by M. Gérard, on behalf of the King of France, and Benjamin Franklin, Silas Deane and Arthur Lee, on behalf of the Thirteen United States of America.

One was a Treaty of Amity and Commerce negotiated on terms of complete equality, by which the former British colonies were formally recognized as an independent and sovereign power.

By the second, the first and only Treaty of Alliance ever signed by the United States, the two allies mutually engaged: "Not to lay down their arms until the independence of the United States shall have been formally recognized."

FOUR PHASES OF AMERICAN DEVELOPMENT.

FEDERALISM—DEMOCRACY—IMPERIALISM—EXPANSION.

By JOHN BASSETT MOORE.

218 pages. Crown 8vo. Price, $1.50.

The lectures embraced in this volume are designed to sketch in clear and vivid outline the great movements by which the historical development of the United States is distinguished and to indicate the causes to which they were due. The order in which the several topics are discussed is not intended to denote a strict chronological succession; hence they are described as phases rather than as stages of development.

CALHOUN AND THE SOUTH CAROLINA NULLIFICATION MOVEMENT.

By FREDERIC BANCROFT.

206 pages. 12mo. $2.00.

Calhoun has always been more or less of an enigma to students of American history. Starting out on his public career as a nationalist and a liberal, he became during his second term as vice-president the leading champion of State Rights and the exponent of a theory of constitutional interpretation that would have been utterly unworkable, even if it had not led to anarchy. According to his theory a State could "interpose" its veto to prevent the General Government from exercising any contested power, and it would then be the duty of the General Government to abandon the exercise of such power, or to apply to the States, the source of all political authority, for the express grant of the power through constitutional amendment. A State convention would thus supersede the Supreme Court in judging constitutional questions concerning that State.

CHINA—AN ANALYSIS.

By FRANK J. GOODNOW.

298 pages. 12 mo. $2.00.

The author has attempted to picture Chinese life against a European background. The contrast of what have appeared to him to be the salient features of Occidental and Oriental Civilization has helped him to reach conclusions which he ventures to believe are correct with regard to the Chinese problem. It is hoped that this contrast will have the same effect in helping those who read the book in their understanding of a subject which cannot be said to be generally well understood. The volume embraces eight chapters: Physical Characteristics and Origins, Economic, Intellectual, Philosophical, Social, Political, Modern and Future China.

AMERICAN RELATIONS WITH CHINA.

198 pages. Octavo. Paper, $1.00. Cloth, $1.50.

This book is a result of a unique attempt by American citizens to understand their responsibilities to China. Two hundred leaders of organizations formed themselves into a study group, engaged the help of experts, and finally came together for a conference. The fruits of this study and discussion have been brought together in a handy volume, which, with its index and bibliography of books and significant periodical articles, will prove invaluable to every one who is watching the progress of the conferences on customs autonomy and extraterritoriality at Peking.

CHINA AT THE CONFERENCE.

By W. W. WILLOUGHBY.

435 pages. 8vo. $3.00.

Besides chapters explaining the reasons for the discussion by the Powers of the political and international situation in the Far East, describing the organization and procedure of the Conference, and estimating its results, there are chapters dealing severally with each of the important subjects discussed in the Conference and regarding which Treaties or Resolutions were adopted. In an Appendix the texts are given of these important documents.

OPIUM AS AN INTERNATIONAL PROBLEM: THE GENEVA CONFERENCES.

By W. W. WILLOUGHBY.

601 pages. 8vo. Price $4.50.

This volume, in the nature of a semi-official report, presents, in a comprehensive manner, the fact leading up to the calling of the two Opium Conferences at Geneva, the discussions had in those Conferences and the results reached. The work will be indispensable to all those interested in combating, by international co-operative action, the widespread evils resulting from the abuse of opium and other narcotic habit-forming drugs. To students of international relations the volume will be of especial interest, giving as it does a detailed account of Conferences held under the auspices of the League of Nations and in which the United States Government was officially represented.

FOREIGN RIGHTS AND INTERESTS IN CHINA.

Second Edition

By W. W. WILLOUGHBY.

1190 pages. Octavo. 2vo. $12.00.

In this new edition of his standard work, Professor Willoughby has not only brought the facts to date and thus included all developments resulting from the Washington Conference and from later events, but has also dealt much more fully with various of the topics included in the first edition. Especially has this last been true with reference to the subjects of extraterritoriality, missionary rights, the Chinese eastern railway, the foreign settlements at Shanghai, American corporations in China, wireless and cables, opium, and the movement for tariff autonomy. In result, the work has been doubled in size. Thus, even more than was the case with regard to the first edition, will Professor Willoughby's work be found indispensable to all those who seek exact and specific information regarding that complexus of foreign rights and interests in China which is the active and continuing cause of China's discontent with her present situation as vis à vis the other Powers.

THE INTERNATIONAL OPIUM CONFERENCES AT GENEVA:
Statements of the Chinese Delegation.

172 pages. 12 mo. $1.50.

In this volume, Dr. Sao-Ke Alfred Sze who was the head of the Chinese Delegation to the two Conferences, has gathered together all the formal statements made by the Delegations and thus presents in complete, definite and authentic form the views of the Chinese Government with regard to the international problem of regulating the traffic in narcotic habit-forming drugs and controlling the production of the raw materials from which these drugs are manufactured. The statements included in the volume are grouped under appropriate topical heads, and thus enable the reader to obtain an easy comprehension of the character and scope of the general problem. Students of this problem will undoubtedly find it a great convenience to have the views and arguments of the Chinese Government thus authentically and comprehensively presented in a single and compact volume.

ADDRESSES

By His Excellency SAO-KE ALFRED SZE, LL.D.
Chinese Minister to the United States.

142 pages. 12 mo. $1.25.

This volume contains five addresses delivered to various audiences by Dr. Sze during the winter of 1925-1926. Dealing, as they do, with a frank and fundamental manner with the present political situation of China, and with the international problems arising out of that situation, these addresses cannot but be of great value to all persons interested in Far Eastern politics. The titles given to the addresses will indicate their scope and some of the topics dealt with: I. The Problem of China; II. The Causes of China's Discontent: How They May Be Removed; III. International Aspects of the Chinese Situation; IV. Extraterritoriality in China. V. China's Unequal Treaties.

AN ECONOMIC HISTORY OF ROME.

Second Edition.

By TENNEY FRANK.

Italy During the Early Empire; XXI. The Provinces in Hadrian's Day; XXII. Beginnings of Serfdom.

CONCEPTS OF STATE, SOVEREIGNTY, AND INTERNATIONAL LAW
With Special Reference to the Juristic Conception of the State.

By JOHANNES MATTERN.

220 pages. 8vo. $2.50.

The present work was first intended to constitute the introductory chapter to the "Principles of the Constitutional Jurisprudence of the German National Republic" now in press, but in its final shape it was found to have outgrown its original proportion and to be quite independent in character.

The earlier chapters deal with the causes for the contradictory theories of State and Sovereignty, aiming to show that the absolutist theory of Bodin, the compact theories of Hooker, Hobbes, Locke, and Rousseau, the theory of national and popular Sovereignty of the French Republic, the mixture of the eclectic theories of Kant, Hegel, and Fichte, and even the analytical doctrine of the Austinian School are the result of the personal interests of the individual authors in their particular State systems and in their desire to establish a theory supporting those systems.

The later chapters contain an examination of the juristic conception of the State from the point of view of political reality as it manifests itself in two European trends of political thought heretofore inadequately presented to the American student.

Contents: Preface; Introduction, Conflicting Theories of State and Sovereignty; I. Bodin's Theory of Sovereignty Applied to Contemporary Europe; II. The Compact Theory of Hooker, Hobbes, Locke, and Rousseau; III. National and Popular Sovereignty; IV. The Theories of Kant, Hegel, and Fichte; V. The Austinian or Analytical School; VI. Willoughby's Juristic Conception of the State; VII. Criticism of the Theory; VIII. Vinogradoff's Modification of the Theory; IX. Denial of Sovereignty by Duguit, Laski, and Others; X. The State and the Civitas Maxima According to the Austrian School; XI. German Conception of Sovereignty Without Independence; XII. The Juristic Conception of the State Restated; XIII. General Applicability of the Juristic Conception of the State; Bibliography; Index.

PRINCIPLES OF THE CONSTITUTIONAL JURISPRUDENCE OF THE GERMAN NATIONAL REPUBLIC.

By JOHANNES MATTERN.

About 700 pages. 8vo. Price $5.00. (In press.)

The treatment of this work differs from other English or American books on the new German Constitution in so far as it relies for the interpretation of the constitutional provisions primarily upon the debates in the National Assembly, the debates in the Committee on the Constitution appointed by the Assembly, the decisions of the National Supreme Courts since 1919, the National laws enacted since that time for the elaboration of the more general provisions of the Constitution, and finally, upon reliable newspaper reports showing the application of the Constitution in its bearing upon the political life of the Nation.

THE PRIVY COUNCIL OF ENGLAND IN THE SEVENTEENTH AND EIGHTEENTH CENTURIES 1603-1784.

By EDWARD RAYMOND TURNER.

Volume I. 462 pages. 8vo. $7.50

An exhaustive and detailed study of the privy council from the period of its greatest importance in the government of England to the time when it had been largely superseded by the cabinet and the departments. It is based upon prolonged investigation of the council registers and records and the various state papers in the Public Record Office, London, the miscellaneous MSS., pamphlets, and other sources in the British Museum, and various MSS. and printed sources available elsewhere.

Volume I has to do with the privy council of the earlier Stuarts, its organization and various tasks; the committees and the councils of the interregnum, their organization and their work; the privy council after the Restoration; and the notable attempt to reconstruct the council in 1679.

Contents of Volume I—Chapters I. Introduction; II. The Council under the Tudors; III. Council and Star Chamber; IV. Organization of the Privy Council, 1603-1645; V. Regulations and Procedure; VI. The Work of the Privy Council, 1603-1645; VII. Local Business, Judicial Functions, and Routine; VIII. King, Council, and Parliament; IX. The Parliamentary Executive during the Civil Wars; X. The Councils of State under the Commonwealth; XI. Work of the Commonwealth Councils of State; XII. The Councils of the Protectorate; XIII. Work of the Protectorate Councils; XIV. The Later Councils of State; XV. The Privy Council, 1660-1679; XVI. The Crisis in the History of the Privy Council.

Volume II deals with the later history of the Privy Council, with organization and procedure from the Restoration through the eighteenth century, and especially with the committee system of the council throughout the period 1603-1784.

Contents of Volume II—Chapters XVII. Failure of the Reform of 1679; XVIII. The Privy Council after 1679; XIX. Privy Council, King, Parliament after 1679; XX. Work of the Privy Council after 1660; XXI. Local Regulation, Plantations and Routine; XXII. Temporary and Particular Committees of the Privy Council; XXIII. Standing Committees of the Privy Council, 1603-1645; XXIV. Standing Committees of the Council, 1649-1660; XXV. Standing Committees of the Privy Council after the Restoration; XXVI. Associated Councils and Council Committees; XXVII. The Board of Trade; XXVIII. The Committee of the Whole Privy Council; XXIX. Procedure and Work of the Committee of the Whole Privy Council; Appendix; Bibliography; Index.

THE CREED OF THE OLD SOUTH.

By BASIL L. GILDERSLEEVE.

128 pages. Crown 8vo. $1.25.

The author in the last score of years has often been urged by his friends and sympathizers to reprint his article issued under this title in 1892, and which attracted wider attention than anything he has ever written. In this volume there is now published, in more accessible form, the author's record of views and impressions that may seem strange even to the survivors of that conflict. There is also included an essay on a cognate theme "A Southerner in the Peloponnesian War" which appeared in 1897.

WORKING MANUAL OF ORIGINAL SOURCES IN AMERICAN GOVERNMENT.

By MILTON CONOVER.

144 pages. 8vo. $1.50.

Essentially a project working manual, it aims primarily to correlate government documents with textbooks as an introduction to the whole field of American Politics; to cultivate a citizen's interest in the realities of political science; and, to utilize the adolescent instincts for creative activity as rapidly as they become stimulated by lectures and readings. Its eighteen chapters involve Farrand's Records of the Federal Convention, Elliot's Debates, The Federalist; Messages of the Presidents; Annual Administrative Reports; the Congressional Directory, Record, Reports, Hearings, and Documents; Statutes at Large and Supreme Court cases that have been discussed in leading textbooks; Proceedings of the National Party Conventions; editorials of ranking newspapers, magazines, and scientific journals; and official documents of State and local governments.

WORKING MANUAL OF CIVICS.

By MILTON CONOVER.

80 pages. 8 vo. Paper, 75 cents; Cloth, $1.00.

This problem book aims to lead the beginning student into the practice of active citizenship. All of the data necessary for the projects may be obtained from the agencies indicated at the beginning of each chapter. Each exercise is adaptable to local needs, whether they be those of the lone student heretofore without a library, or those of the socialized classes of high schools and junior colleges, having access to city libraries. In principle the system is precisely that of the author's Working Manual of Original Sources in American Government which is being used in colleges and universities.

NOTES ON MALTHUS' "PRINCIPLES OF POLITICAL ECONOMY."

By DAVID RICARDO.

Edited with an Introduction and Notes by JACOB H. HOLLANDER and T. E. GREGORY.

364 pages. Octavo. $5.00.

Students of the classical political economy will rejoice to learn that the long missing and much desired manuscript of David Ricardo's "Notes on Malthus" has been recovered, and that through the courtesy of Frank Ricardo, Esq., of Bure Homage, Christchurch, Hants.—a great-grandson of the economist—this work is to be made accessible in convenient reprint. Written in the autumn of 1820 as a commentary upon Malthus' "Principles of Political Economy," the "Notes" was designed by Ricardo as an appendix to the third edition of his own "Principles," then preparing. The counsel of James Mill that Ricardo should avoid giving his treatise too controversial a character, however, prevailed. The manuscript, after having been read by Mill, Malthus, McCulloch and Trower, was withheld from publication, and the commentary—tantalizing references to which are present in Ricardo's correspondence and in McCulloch's prefatory memoir to the "Works"—has remained an important desideratum in the study of the Ricardian economics.

DISTURBING ELEMENTS IN THE STUDY AND TEACHING OF POLITICAL ECONOMY.

By JAMES BONAR.

156 pages. 8vo. Price, $1.00.

This volume consists of five lectures delivered at the Johns Hopkins University in the spring of 1910. As the title suggests, the lectures are discourses not on economic error in general, but on the more subtle fallacies which are apt to invade the reasoning of trained economists in spite of learning and discipline. The lectures are distinguished by the scholarly tone and philosophical breadth that characterize Dr. Bonar's writings.

AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP AND ECONOMIC WELFARE.

By JACOB H. HOLLANDER.

132 pages. 16mo. $1.25.

This volume gives a frank review of the current obligations of the citizen (a) as producer, (b) as employer and (c) as taxpayer. The critical quality of the immediate economic situation is recognized, and an earnest attempt is made to point out how the ordinary citizen of the United States, animated neither by ill-balanced radicalism nor by stolid resistance to change, can at this juncture of affairs and within the range of his normal activities render the largest service to his country and his fellow-men.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE INSTITUTE FOR GOVERNMENT RESEARCH WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Institute for Government Research is an association of citizens for co-operating with public officials in the scientific study of government with a view to promoting efficiency and economy in its operations and advancing the science of administration. It aims to bring into existence such information and materials as will aid in the formation of public opinion and will assist officials, particularly those of the National Government, in their efforts to put the public administration upon a more efficient basis.

To this end it seeks, by the thoroughgoing study and examination of the best administrative practices, public and private, American and foreign, to formulate those principles which lie at the basis of all sound administration, and to determine their proper adaptation to the specific needs of our public administration.

THE LIFE AND STORIES OF THE JAINA SAVIOR PĀRCVANĀTHA.

By MAURICE BLOOMFIELD.

266 pages. Octavo. $3.00.

This work contains the fullest extant account of the Jaina Savior Pārçvanātha's life, preceded by nine pre-births, all treated with the care of a chronicle of real life and with the sincerity of devout belief. With this life are interwoven a large number of stories illustrating Jaina morality and doctrine. The Jainas are, perhaps, the best story-tellers of India; the present volume adds to the chain of Hindu fiction books a jewel of no mean price. This work should arrest the attention of students of Comparative Literature and Folklore as well as students of the History of Religion.

Philology and Literature

AMERICAN JOURNAL OF PHILOLOGY.

This Journal was founded in 1880 by Basil L. Gildersleeve. It is edited by C. W. E. Miller, with the coöperation of M. Bloomfield, H. Collitz, T. Frank,

W. P. Mustard and D. M. Robinson. Forty-eight volumes have been issued, and the forty-ninth is in progress. This journal appears four times yearly. 8vo. Subscription $5.00 per volume (foreign postage 25 cents). Single numbers, $1.50. Only a few sets remain. Price for a limited number of sets, $160 net.

FLAUBERT'S YOUTH: 1821-1845

By LEWIS PIAGET SHANKS.

260 pages. 12 mo. $2.25

Young Flaubert's infatuation with the dreams of Romanticism, and his vain search for them in life and love, are here traced through his letters and juvenilia by the author of a biography of Anatole France. A detailed portrait of Flaubert, indispensable to readers who seek the novelist in his mature works, and completed by a final chapter sketching his career after his twenty-fourth year. The book contains the first account in English of Flaubert's earliest novel, in which he rejects Romanticism and outlines his theories of Art.

FRENCH PHILOSOPHIES OF THE ROMANTIC PERIOD.

By GEORGE BOAS.

338 pages. 12 mo. $2.50.

This volume attempts to set the French philosophers of the early nineteenth century against the cultural background of the times. It is written not only for students of philosophy and literature, but for the general reader as well. The period is one which has been neglected by historians of philosophy in spite of its importance in the development of French thought.

Bibliography and Hints for Study.

THE JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY STUDIES IN ARCHAEOLOGY.

No. 1. The Roman Toga. By Lillian M. Wilson. 132 pages. 102 illustrations. Cloth $5.00.—The volume gives a connected history of the Roman Toga, as read from the monuments and from Latin literature, from the date of the earliest extant representations of it in the art of the Republican period, down to the last days of Roman authority in the Byzantine capital. 1. Diagrams of drawings giving the shape of each form of toga, and schedules of measurements and proportions referring to these diagrams. 2. Each form of the toga and the process of draping are illustrated on the living model and fully explained in the text. The volume contains 102 illustrations, and over 40 of these are of the living models. 3. The book contains practical suggestions to teachers and students regarding the making of the toga, materials that may be successfully used, color, etc.

No. 2. The History and Civilization of Ancient Megara. By E. L. Highbarger. 234 pages. Paper $2.50; cloth $3.00.—This volume contains fifteen chapters dealing with topography and monuments, cults and history from the earliest times to the end of the Hellenistic period. The author has attempted to give, as completely as possible, a continuous account of the development of one of the most important of the Greek city-states. In doing this he has used the ancient traditions, inscriptions, the results of modern excavation and the rather abundant general archaeological material in addition to the writers of classical antiquity. The study is, therefore, an attempt to set forth the political, religious, economic and cultural evolution of ancient Megara as an important center of activity at all times. The numerous notes give very completely the evidence upon which the statements of the text are based.

THE ECLOGUES OF BAPTISTA MANTUANUS.

By WILFRED P. MUSTARD.

156 pages. Crown 8vo. $1.50.

The text is based upon that of the first printed edition, of Mantua, 1498. The Introduction treats of the life of Mantuan, his family and friends, his works, his popularity, the wide use of his Eclogues as a school-book, and their influence upon Sixteenth Century literature. The Notes are mainly devoted to the poet's use of his great classical models.

THE PISCATORY ECLOGUES OF JACOPO SANNAZARO.

By WILFRED P. MUSTARD.

94 pages. Crown 8vo. $1.25.

These Latin Poems are very clever imitations, or adaptations, of some of Virgil's Bucolics. The Virgilian conventions are so far modified that the pastoral eclogue becomes a piscatory eclogue, or an idyl of fishermen. The singers are no longer shepherds, but fishermen, and the scene is no longer Sicily, or Acadia, but the Bay of Naples.

THE ECLOGUES OF FAUSTUS ANDRELINUS AND JOANNES ARNOLLETUS.

By WILFRED P. MUSTARD.

123 pages. Crown 8vo. $1.50.

The name of Faustus Andrelinus is less familiar than that of either "good old Mantuan" or Sannazaro; he never enjoyed the fame and the influence of the one, he never approached the high poetic plane of the other. And yet in his own day and generation he was a very important personage. One of the Italian scholars who helped to spread the New Learning in France, professor for many years in the University of Paris, the intimate friend of Erasmus, the special protégé of the King and Queen—diu regnavit Lutetiæ. His Eclogues are always readable, because they contain a certain amount of autobiography, and reflect many of his own experiences in Italy and France. They are interesting because of their "moral" tone, with occasional bits of proverbial wisdom and frequent echoes of the great Roman Satirists. And they hold an important place in the tradition of the Pastoral, because of their frequent imitation of Calpurnius and Nemesianus—at a time when these two poets were not very widely read.

THE ECLOGUES OF ANTONIO GERALDINI.

By WILFRED P. MUSTARD.
84 pages. Crown 8vo. $1.50.

"The main subject of the poems is the story of the Life of Christ. The last three deal with the Apostles' Creed, the Last Judgment, and the Life of the Blessed in the Hereafter. One interesting feature is their free use of the language and imagery of Ovid."

MARTIAL, THE EPIGRAMMATIST, AND OTHER ESSAYS.

By KIRBY FLOWER SMITH.
180 pages. Crown 8vo. $2.00.

Selections from Professor Smith's less technical papers, revised and edited by W. P. Mustard, and contains: Martial, the Epigrammatist, The Poet Ovid, Propertius: a Modern Lover in the Augustan Age, Pupula Duplex, the Classics and our Vernacular, the Future Place of the Humanities in Education, Some Boyhood Reminiscences of a Country Town, Original Verse and Translations.

SELECTIONS FROM THE EARLY SCOTTISH POETS.

By WILLIAM HAND BROWNE.
240 pages. 12mo. $1.25.
Contains numerous Poems, Notes and Glossary.

FATHER TABB.

A STUDY OF HIS LIFE AND WORKS WITH TWO HUNDRED UNCOLLECTED AND UNPUBLISHED POEMS.
By FRANCIS A. LITZ, Ph. D.
303 pages. 8vo. $2.00.

This book, written by one of Father Tabb's students, and based on his own life story, is the most exhaustive and scholarly yet published on the famous American lyrist and epigrammatist. Nothing of importance with reference to the life of the priest-poet is likely to be added to what is found here.

TABLE OF CONTENTS:—I Birth and Boyhood; II Civil War Experiences; III Conversion to Catholicism and Preparation for Priesthood; IV The Priest; V The Teacher; VI The Friend; VII The Man; VIII The Author; IX Blindness and Death; X Religion and Poetry; XI Favorite Poets and Their Influence; XII A True Lyric Poet. APPENDIX:—I Uncollected Poems; II Unpublished Poems of the Browne-Tabb Album; III Unpublished Poems of the Connor Manuscript; IV Unpublished Poems of the Donahoe Class-Book; V Notes and Bibliography. Index of Uncollected and Unpublished Poems. General Index.

SIR THOMAS MORE AND OTHER VERSE.

By CAROL WIGHT.
116 pages. Crown 8vo. $1.50.

The publication of the verse included in this volume is in part an outgrowth of the activities of the Kottabos Club, a small circle of men associated in one way or another with the Johns Hopkins University and Goucher College who meet periodically to share their literary interests. To this group of friendly critics many of Dr. Wight's poems and stories, since published in the Atlantic Monthly, in The Johns Hopkins Alumni Magazine, and in other periodicals, were first offered; and it is largely to gratify their desire to see them given a permanent form and a wider circle of readers that this collection has been made. Contents: Sir Thomas More, A Tragedy; Fog; In Port; Sea Pines; Shipwreck; The Derelict; Night and Day; The Sextant, A Ballad; The Casting of the Screw; Kepler's Death; Edward H. Spieker: In Memoriam; Kirby Flower Smith: In Memoriam; To Basil L. Gildersleeve, Sestina; To Revere Osler, Sestina; Drowned, Sestina; Eternity, Sestina; The Prophet (Woodrow Wilson); Pantheism; Fixed Stars; Days That are Dead; Violets; The Wild Rose; Mignon, from Goethe; The Broken Vase, from Sully Prudhomme; At the Tomb of His Brother, from Catullus; My Wallflower, from the Norwegian of Wergeland.

THE TAILL OF RAUF COILYEAR: A SCOTTISH METRICAL ROMANCE OF THE FIFTEENTH CENTURY.

Edited, with Introduction, Notes, and Glossarial Index.
By WILLIAM HAND BROWNE.
164 pages. 8vo. $1.50.

The objects of the editor have been: First, to present a carefully edited and elucidated text of one of the most interesting works of the Scottish literary period, which, by the purity of the language and attractiveness of the story, is especially suitable for students. Secondly, in the historic and linguistic Introduction, to furnish a succinct introduction to the whole Scottish literary period.

Education

THE JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY STUDIES IN EDUCATION.

Edited by PROFESSOR EDWARD F. BUCHNER.

The Studies will include monographs presenting the results of investigations conducted at the University or elsewhere which, because of their importance, should appear as separate units and at once.

The following numbers of this series have been published:

I. The Correlation of Abilities of High School Pupils (100 pages, $1.25), by David E. Weglein.

II. Experimental Study of Motor Abilities of Children in the Primary Grades (62 pages, 75 cents), by Buford J. Johnson.
III. Studies in Experimental Education (88 pages, $1.25), by Bird T. Baldwin.
IV. The Effect of the Physical Make-Up of a Book upon Children's Selection (172 pages, $2.00), by Florence E. Bamberger.
V. A Measuring Scale for Free-Hand Drawing. Part I. Representation (68 pages, 4 folders, $2.00), by Linus W. Kline and Gertrude L. Carey.
V. a. A Revision of a Measuring Scale for Free-Hand Drawing. Part I. Representation (15 pages, 4 folders and scale, 60 cents). By Linus W. Kline and Gertrude L. Carey. Separate reprints of folders and scale, 30 cents.
VI. The Measurement of Achievement in Shorthand (118 pages, 2 folders, $1.50), by Elmer Rhodes Hoke.
VII. The Improvement of Speed and Accuracy in Typewriting (42 pages, 3 figures, and 17 tables, 75 cents), by Roy Edward Hoke.
VIII. The Permanence of the Vocational Interests of Junior High School Pupils. (72 pages, $1.15), by Edward Earle Franklin.
IX. The Value of Certain Measurements in the Training of Teachers (158 pages, $2.50), by Agnes Snyder.
X. A Comparative Study of Nine Group Tests of Intelligence for Primary Grades (120 pages, $1.75), by Mary L. Dougherty.
XI. The Educational Clinic of the Department of Education, by Mary L. Dougherty. (In press.)

Teaching and Educational Theory in the Elementary School

MANUAL FOR A LABORATORY COURSE IN EDUCATION.

By AGNES SNYDER.
64 pages. Octavo. 80 cents.

The manual here presented was planned to furnish the students in Education at the summer session of Johns Hopkins University with a guide for their observations in the elementary grades of the Demonstration School as would direct their attention to the basic features of the school. Prior to the formulation for this purpose, the plan had been used in its essential features in directing the observations of students in Education during the regular winter session of the University of Delaware. The plan is based upon two assumptions: 1st. That education is a science; 2nd. That, as a science, its laws can be taught most effectively by a laboratory method in which generalizations are made as a result of observation and comparison. In the present instance, the Demonstration School is the laboratory and the Conference Hour, at which all observers assemble daily, the clearing house for the interpretation of the observations made in the Demonstration School. In the Conference Hour and through the assigned readings and directions for observation, the students are oriented to the school situation; in the Demonstration School, observations are made and data collected; again, in the Conference Hour, the observations made are discussed, compared and interpreted, and, when the data are sufficient, generalizations are made as a result of the discussion, comparison, and interpretation.

No. VI. Contributions to the Geology and Paleontology of South America. By Edward W. Berry and Frank M. Swartz. 250 pp. 4 text figures. 31 plates. $1.75.

No. VII. The Geology of the Island of Trinidad, B. W. I. By Gerald A. Waring, with Notes on the Paleontology by G. D. Harris. 180 pp. 1 text figure. 20 plates. $1.75.

No. VIII. Fifty Years Progress in Geology, 1876-1926. Papers presented at the Geological Conference during the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Johns Hopkins University, October 1926. 162 pp. $1.50.

NOTES ON THE MINERALS OCCURRING IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD OF BALTIMORE.

By G. H. WILLIAMS.

18 pages. 8vo. Price in paper, 25 cents.

AMERICAN JOURNAL OF MATHEMATICS.

This Journal was commenced in 1878, under the editorial direction of Professor Sylvester. Now published under the joint auspices of The Johns Hopkins University and the American Mathematical Society. Edited by E. W. Chittenden, Abraham Cohen, A. B. Coble, G. C. Evans and Frank Morley (Chairman), with the coöperation of E. T. Bell, F. D. Murnaghan and W. A. Manning. Octavo. Forty-nine volumes have been issued, and the fiftieth is in progress. It appears quarterly. Subscription $7.50 per year (foreign postage 25 cents). Single numbers $1.75. Few complete sets remain. Price on application.

VECTOR ANALYSIS AND THE THEORY OF RELATIVITY.

By FRANCIS D. MURNAGHAN.

135 pages. 8vo. $2.75.

This introduction to the Theory of Relativity is intended for readers possessing a sound knowledge of Algebra and Calculus. The general subject of Vector (or Tensor) Analysis is introduced in a natural and somewhat novel manner. The author hopes "to make it clear that the methods of the 'Mathematics of Relativity' are applicable to, and necessary for, Theoretical Physics in general and will abide even if the Theory of Relativity has to take its place with the rejected physical theories of the past."

TABLES OF $\sqrt{1-r^2}$ AND $1-r^2$ FOR USE IN PARTIAL CORRELATION AND IN TRIGONOMETRY.

By JOHN RICE MINER.

50 pages. 8vo. Paper covers $1.00; cloth $1.50.

These tables fill a want long felt by practical workers in all branches of statistics. Everyone who uses the method of correlation has wished for tables from which the probable error of a coefficient of correlation could be obtained with accuracy. Similar tables to this have existed on a small scale, but never before have there been available tables of $1-r^2$ and $\sqrt{1-r^2}$ to 6 places of decimals, and 4 places in the argument.

TERRESTRIAL MAGNETISM AND ATMOSPHERIC ELECTRICITY.

This Journal is conducted by L. A. Bauer and J. A. Fleming, with the assistance of a number of co-editors in Europe and America. It is issued quarterly. Volume XXXIII is in progress. 8vo. Subscription $3.50 per volume.

THE PHYSICAL PAPERS OF HENRY A. ROWLAND.

716 pages. Royal 8vo. $7.50.

This volume is edited by a committee consisting of Professor Ira Remsen, Professor Joseph S. Ames, and Professor William H. Welch. It contains a detailed description of Professor Rowland's Ruling Engine with plates and photographs. It also contains his great memoir on the Mechanical Equivalent of Heat and his other papers on Thermometers, Magnetization, Electrical Convection, the Ohm, Alternating Currents, etc.; also papers on his renowned discovery of the Concave Gratings, his investigations in Spectroscopy, etc.

PHOTOGRAPHIC MAPS OF THE NORMAL SOLAR SPECTRUM.

Made by HENRY A. ROWLAND.

Set of ten plates, $40.00.

These consist of ten plates, each 3 x 2 feet, containing two strips of the spectrum, and extending from wave length 3000 to wave length 6950. Concave gratings having 10,000 to 20,000 lines to the inch were used in making these photographs. Two photographs have been made of the B and D lines. The latter are 3 inches apart, and the former has an extent of about 24 inches. Four enlargements of some of the carbon bands from the arc electric light have also been made. These photographs will be sold for $3.00 each.

Biology and Psychobiology

BIOLOGIA GENERALIS.

(International Journal of General Biology.)

Founded by Leopold Löhner, Graz; Raymond Pearl, Baltimore and Vladislav Růžička, Prague.

Edited by O. ABEL, L. ADAMETZ, O. PORSCH, C. SCHWARZ, J. VERSLUYS and R. WASICKY of Vienna.

A journal on general biology for the publication of three main divisions of general biology, i. e., general morphology, physiology and ecology. It is the purpose of the editors and publishers to issue original papers promptly, but if contributions have been issued elsewhere, to include short abstracts of them. The articles will be published in English, French, German, Italian and in Russian, according to the authors' wishes. Manuscripts should be forwarded to one of the editors named above. It is proposed to issue six numbers to a volume. Volume four in progress. 8vo. Subscription $20 per volume.

MEMOIRS FROM THE BIOLOGICAL LABORATORY OF THE JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY.

VOLUME I.

SELECTED MORPHOLOGICAL MONOGRAPHS.

370 pages and 51 plates. Quarto.

CONTENTS.

Lucifer: a Study in Morphology, with 11 plates. By W. K. Brooks.
The Development of Renilla, with 16 plates. By E. B. Wilson.
The Life-History of the Hydro-Medusae: a Discussion of the Origin of the Medusae, and of the significance of Metagenesis, with 8 plates. By W. K. Brooks.
Report on the Stomatopoda, with 16 plates. By W. K. Brooks.
This volume is out of print.

VOLUME II.

MEMOIR ON THE GENUS SALPA.

By W. K. BROOKS.

396 pages and 57 plates. Quarto. $7.50.

CONTENTS.

I.—A General Account of the Life-History of Salpa. Chapter I.—Introductory. Chapter II.—The Development of the Solitary Salpa from the Egg. Chapter III.—The Morphological Significance of the Salpa Embryo. Chapter IV.—The Origin of the Proliferous Stolon. Chapter V.—The Transformation of the Stolon into the Series of Aggregated Salpæ.
II.—The Systematic Affinity of Salpa in its relation to the Conditions of Primitive Pelagic Life; The Phylogeny of the Tunicata; and the Ancestry of the Chordata. Chapter VI.—The Systematic Position of Salpa. Chapter VII.—Salpa in its Relation to the Evolution of Life. Chapter VIII.—The Origin of the Chordata, considered in its relation to Pelagic Influences.
III.—A Descriptive and Critical Discussion of the Asexual and Sexual Development of Salpa. Chapter IX.—The Origin and Maturation of the Egg of Salpa. Chapter X.—Sex in Salpa. Chapter XI.—The Fertilization and Segmentation of the Egg. Chapter XII.—The Accessory Parts of the Embryo. Chapter XIII.—The Follicle and the Placenta. Chapter XIV.—The Ontogeny of the Organs of Salpa.
IV.—By M. M. Metcalf. The Eyes and Subneural Gland of Salpa.

VOLUME III.

THE COLLECTED PHYSIOLOGICAL PAPERS OF PROFESSOR H. NEWELL MARTIN.

264 pages and 15 plates. Quarto. $10.00.

Published by the friends and former pupils of Professor Martin.

VOLUME IV.

SELECTED MORPHOLOGICAL MONOGRAPHS.

296 pages and 32 plates. Quarto. $7.50.

CONTENTS.

I. The Cubomedusae. By Franklin Story Conant.
II. Synapta Vivipara. By Hubert Lyman Clark.
III. The Anatomy, Habits and Embryology of Yoldia Limatula. By Gilman Arthur Drew.
IV. Physiology and Histology of the Cubomedusae, including Dr. F. S. Conant's Notes on the Physiology. By Edmund William Berger.
V. Ophiura Brevispina. By Caswell Grave.
VI. The Anatomy and Development of Cassiopea Xamachana. By Robert Payne Bigelow.

VOLUME V.

SELECTED MORPHOLOGICAL MONOGRAPHS.

294 pages and 42 plates. Quarto. $5.00.

CONTENTS.

I. The Anatomy of Nautilus Pompilius. By Lawrence Edmonds Griffin.
II. West Indian Madreporarian Polyps. By James Edwin Duerden.

THE OYSTER: A POPULAR SUMMARY OF A SCIENTIFIC STUDY.

By WILLIAM K. BROOKS.

A New and Revised Edition. 225 pages with 16 plates. $1.50.

It contains chapters on the Possibilities of Oyster Culture; The Anatomy of the Oyster; The Development of the Oyster; The Artificial Cultivation of Oysters; A Talk about Oysters; The Remedy; The Cause of the Decline of our Oyster Industry, and the Protection of our Natural Beds.

OBSERVATIONS ON THE EMBRYOLOGY OF INSECTS AND ARACHNIDS.

By ADAM T. BRUCE.

50 pages and 7 plates. Folio. $3.00.

AN OUTLINE OF PSYCHOBIOLOGY.

By KNIGHT DUNLAP.

Second revised edition.

145 pages. 84 cuts. Royal Octavo. $2.50.

This book has had a most gratifying reception, not only from psychologists, but also from biologists, and has proved an exceptionally useful text and reference book for students of psychology and education and even for students of biology. In the second edition the few errata of the first edition have been corrected and some new material added. This edition also has a complete glossary.

COMPARATIVE PSYCHOLOGY MONOGRAPHS.

MANAGING EDITOR, KNIGHT DUNLAP. ASSOCIATE EDITORS: JOHN E. ANDERSON, HARVEY A. CARR, WALTER S. HUNTER, ALFRED V. KIDDER, SAMUEL O. MAST, and ROBERT M. YERKES.

Medicine

AMERICAN JOURNAL OF PSYCHIATRY.

The American Journal of Psychiatry, the official organ of the American Psychiatric Association, is now in its eighth volume. It was formerly published as the American Journal of Insanity and seventy-seven volumes were published under that title. Its editorial control is in the hands of a committee of the American Psychiatric Association, consisting of Edward N. Brush, M. D., managing editor, and George H. Kirby, M. D., of New York; Charles Macfie Campbell, M. D., of Boston, Albert M. Barrett, M. D., of Ann Arbor, H. Douglas Singer, M. D., of Chicago, Harry Stack Sullivan, M. D., of Towson, Md., Clarence B. Farrar, M. D., of Toronto, and Arthur L. Shaw, M. D., of Utica, with the collaboration of other alienist physicians at home and abroad.

This Journal is published bi-monthly in octavo form and the volumes begin with the July number. The subscription price is six dollars for the volume. Canadian subscriptions, six dollars and twenty-five cents; foreign subscriptions, six dollars and fifty cents. This includes postage.

THE JOHNS HOPKINS HOSPITAL REPORTS.

These Reports are edited by the Faculty of the Johns Hopkins Medical School and published for the Johns Hopkins Hospital. Their publication was begun in 1890. They are a series of monographs of such length as to be issued separately or collated and published in a complete volume. These monographs devote great space to researches carried on either in the laboratories of the medical department of the University or within the buildings of the Hospital.

The volumes appear at irregular intervals. Twenty-one volumes have thus far been published. The set bound in cloth will be sold for $110. Subscriptions may be lodged by the volume, price $5.00 in paper, or $5.50 in cloth.

DESCRIPTION OF THE JOHNS HOPKINS HOSPITAL.

By JOHN S. BILLINGS.

116 pages. Quarto. 56 plates. $10.00.

This volume was prepared at the request of the Trustees of the Johns Hopkins Hospital and includes the following chapters:

Introductory: Letter of Dr. John S. Billings; Letter of Johns Hopkins to the Trustees; Preparation of Plans; Addresses at the Opening of the Hospital; Statistics of Construction.

The Hospital Grounds.

General Arrangement of Buildings on Grounds.

General Construction of Buildings: General Statements; Heating and Ventilation; Water Supply; Sewage Disposal and House Drainage; Lighting; Clocks; Telephones; The Administration Building; The Pay, Common, Octagon, and Isolating Wards; The Kitchen Building; The Nurses' Home; The Amphitheatre and Dispensary; The Pathological Building; The Laundry; The Bath House.

The Plates are phototypes and lithographs with views, plans and detail drawings of all buildings and their interior arrangements—also wood-cuts of apparatus and fixtures.

SIR WILLIAM OSLER, BART.

167 pages. Octavo. $1.50.

Brief tribute to his Personality, Influence and Public Service. Written by his friends, associates and former pupils, in honor of his seventieth birthday, and first published in the Bulletin of The Johns Hopkins Hospital for July, 1919.

SURGICAL PAPERS OF WILLIAM STEWART HALSTED.

In two volumes, 1232 pages, numerous illustrations. Octavo. $15.00.

When one considers the number, originality and importance of Dr. Halsted's contributions to surgery during the last forty years, which have placed him in the front rank of modern surgeons, and their scattered and often not readily accessible form in various journals and reports, it will be realized that the publication of his collected papers not only will constitute a worthy tribute to his memory, but also will render a welcome and much needed service in making available these significant contributions.

PAPERS AND ADDRESSES.

By WILLIAM HENRY WELCH.

In three volumes. 2013 pages. Octavo. $20.00.

Dr. Welch's writings are scattered through a great variety of publications, many of which are more or less inaccessible. It was accordingly decided to publish his numerous papers and addresses. These have been collated under the following headings: Vol. I: Pathology, Preventive Medicine. Vol. II: Bacteriology. Vol. III: Medical Education, History, Miscellaneous, Bibliography, Index.

HENRY MILLS HURD, THE FIRST SUPERINTENDENT OF THE JOHNS HOPKINS HOSPITAL.

147 pages. Crown octavo. $1.50.

At the request of Judge Henry D. Harlan, President of the Board of Trustees of the Hospital, Dr. Thomas S. Cullen has written a short account of Dr. Hurd's medical activities, and yielding to the insistent requests of his friends, Dr. Hurd has added "Random Recollections" of his early life. This volume contains pictures of Dr. Hurd from six to seventy; also an excellent record of the early history of the Johns Hopkins Hospital.

PUBLIC HEALTH AND INSURANCE: AMERICAN ADDRESSES.

By SIR ARTHUR NEWSHOLME, K. C. B., M. D., F. R. C. P.

284 pages. 12mo. $2.50.

This book embraces ten lectures as follows:

I: Public Health Progress in England During the Last Fifty Years.
II: Historical Development of Public Health Policy in England.
III: The Increasing Socialization of Medicine.
IV: The Medical Aspects of Insurance Against Sickness.
V: Some Problems of Preventive Medicine of the Immediate Future.
VI: The Inter-Relation of Various Social Efforts.
VII: The Obstacles to and Ideals of Health Progress.
VIII: Some Aspects of Poverty.
IX: The Causation of Tuberculosis and the Measures for its Control in England.
X: Child Welfare Work in England.

A BOOK OF PORTRAITS OF THE FACULTY OF THE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT OF THE JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY.

By DORIS ULMANN.

Containing thirty-seven photographs, reproduced in photogravure on English hand-made paper, 10½x15½ inches. Price, $20.00.

In this Book of Portraits by Doris Ulmann, The Faculty of the Medical Department of The Johns Hopkins University is presented for the first time, in a series of photographic portraits.

In these portraits, charmingly artistic and richly done, the character and personality of each member is grasped with an intimate touch in surroundings of study, office or laboratory with none of the conventional trappings or artificial posing of the professional studio.

This book of portraits contains many of those outstanding figures responsible for much of modern American medicine who were long identified with The Medical Department of The Johns Hopkins University and are here happily recorded in the finest photographic art. In composition, light and shade, these portraits are as finely done as etchings.

ORDER DICTIONARIES BY NUMBER

AT the request of a great many of our customers, particularly those engaged in the commercial stationery business, we have numbered our Dictionaries. We believe that if all of our customers will acquire the habit of ordering by number instead of title, as heretofore, it will greatly simplify matters, both for them and for us.

For example, if you order "10 copies No. 217 Dictionary," we at once know that you want our Desk Webster in the black binding, with gold edges, indexed, the price of which is $1.50.

MY SHOWER BOOK

This new idea, presented in dainty and colorful form, meets a well-established need and offers the bride-to-be a medium wherein she may record the important events leading up to the all-important day. The most interesting features, such as the engagement, followed by showers, gifts received, luncheons and other similar events, may all be chronicled under suitable decorative headings. A most appropriate present for the bride-to-be.

Size, 6½x8, Boxed

Art Boards $0.75
Cloth 1.00

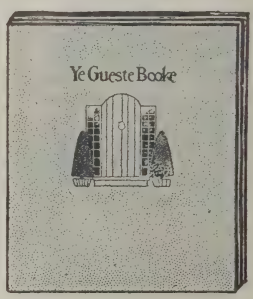
YE GUESTE BOOK

The unique binding effects of this new book, its quaint and rarely artistic decorations and its wellchosen legends bring back the spirit of the olden days when the terms "host" and "guest" signified a relationship which is now almost a memory only. As a present to a friend it will reflect the taste of the giver as well as adorn the table of the host to whom it is given.



Size, 7x8¼ in. Boxed.

Art Boards $1.00
Art Leather, embossed 2.00
Sheep, gold edges 2.50

BABY

This loose-leaf book meets most satisfactorily the demand for a record amply providing not only for various written entries, but also for snapshots and photographs. For the last-named there are in the back of the book 24 pages especially designed for photo mounting. The illustrations, many of them done in four colors, present a daintiness unequaled in any other publication of this kind.

Size, 8⅞x9½, Boxed

Art Boards (pink or blue) $1.50
Cloth (pink or blue) 1.75
Padded Silk (pink or blue) 4.00

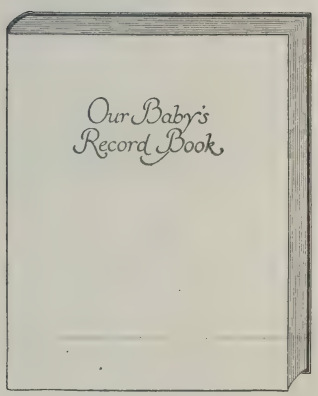
Our Baby's Record Book



Illustrations by GAYE WOODRING

An entirely new treatment and arrangement. The illustrations in colors by Miss Woodring are of rare beauty.

Many features of novelty lend the book unusual charm for the mother, enabling her to record the progress of her baby covering the first four years.

The various new styles of binding give the books increased value from the dealer's point of view.

Size, 7¼ x 9½. Boxed

Art Boards (pink or blue) ..... $ .75
Cloth (pink or blue) 1.00
Padded Silk (pink or blue) 3.00

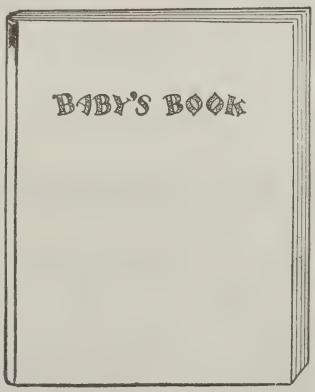
BABY'S BOOK

A complete record of the noteworthy events in Baby's life

Illustrations by ETHEL SCHACHERER



This beautiful book is unquestionably the most complete volume of its kind to be found.

Extreme charm, originality and daintiness are wonderfully blended in the numerous illustrations in four colors and in black and white throughout the book, and render it a distinct artistic achievement.

The various headings are so arranged that each event may be recorded in its proper sequence, and ample space is provided for photographs to be inserted from time to time as the little one progresses.

No occurrence of importance is omitted, from the date of birth through the succession of events such as Baby's Weight, First Tooth, First Step, First Motor Ride, etc., up to the all-important School Days.

As a suitable gift for the young mother the book will make a strong appeal to the discriminating who wish to present something of artistic merit.

Size, 8 x 10. Boxed

Art Boards (pink or blue) $1.25
Silk Cloth (pink or blue) 1.75
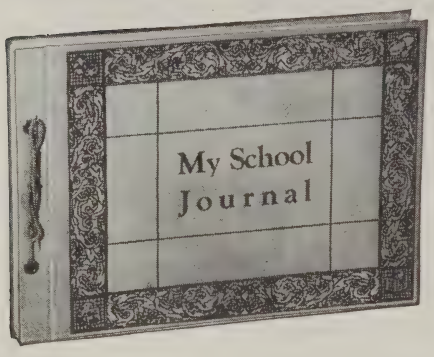
De Luxe Silk, Padded, Gold Edges (pink or blue) 4.00

NEW

MY SCHOOL JOURNAL



This new graduation book has all the titles for compiling a complete record of school days. It is a book suitable for every year of school activity, so carefully have the border designs and titles been chosen.

The section devoted to MY FRIENDS is a small autograph album in itself—for the pages are divided for Autographs, Characteristics, and Nicknames. Similar unusual touches permeate the rest of the book. Loose-leaf. Gold stamped binding.

Size, 8x11 in. Boxed.

Cloth (red, green, blue, and purple)..$1.75
Art Leather..... 2.50

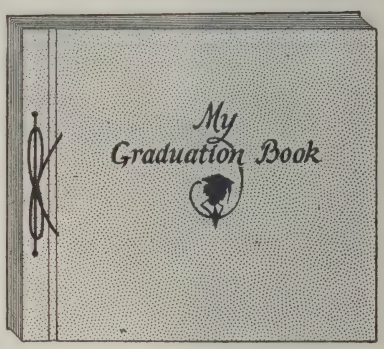
MY GRADUATION BOOK

This new loose-leaf item, with its many original and decorative illustrations, covers most completely the needs of the student in recording the interesting phases of school life. The back of the book contains 24 pages to be used as mounting for photographs or snapshots.

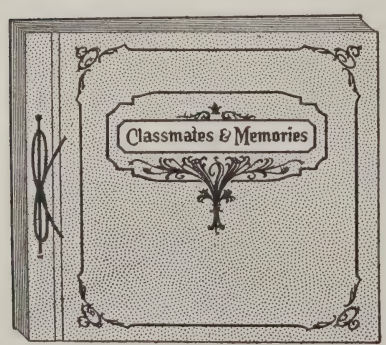
A feature of unusual value is a large envelope permanently attached to the inside front cover—to be used as a temporary receptacle for photos and clippings.

Size, 9½x8¼ in. Boxed

Cloth (assorted colors and bindings).....$1.50
Art Leather, embossed..... 3.00
Velvet Ooze (assorted colors)..... 4.00



CLASSMATES AND MEMORIES



Another new loose-leaf record book at a popular price, embodying under another title the distinctive features and decorations of "My Graduation Book." Beautifully printed on a high-grade paper, with a special section devoted to photographs. It also has attached to the inside front cover an envelope for the temporary reception of photos and clippings.

Size, 9½x8¼ in. Boxed

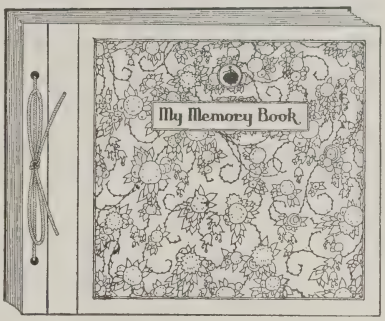
Cloth (assorted colors and bindings).....$1.50
Art Leather, embossed..... 3.00
Velvet Ooze (assorted colors)..... 4.00

MY MEMORY BOOK

Illustrations by ETHEL SCHACHERER

This new loose-leaf book for recording the various interesting phases of student life marks a decided step forward in publications of this kind.

The book is divided into three sections. The first, of a silver gray de luxe paper with decorative illustrations in a darker gray tone, contains the headings for entering the different records, school activities and the like, all covering a wide field. The second section is made up of black stock for photograph mounting, and the third section of gummed sheets for attaching newspaper or other clippings.



Another novel feature, which will appeal to many, is that of boxing with the books an enclosure containing a white pencil for marking on the photographic mounts, a tube of library paste, and a package of art corners.

New effects are introduced in the decorative style of the several bindings and nothing has been omitted to give the books a tone which removes them from the plane of the commonplace.

Size, 10 x 9. 144 pages. Boxed

Cloth $2.00
Kraft Leather 3.50
Velvet Ooze Leather 5.00

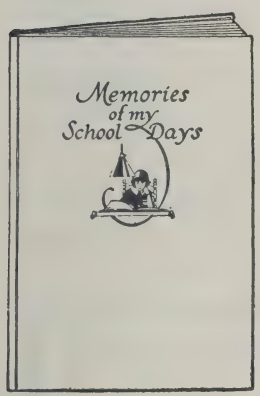
*With enclosure of White Pencil, Library Paste and Art Corners for mounting photographs, 50c additional.

MEMORIES OF MY SCHOOL DAYS

Illustrations by GAYE WOODRING



This new book is designed to commemorate the more important events in the student's life. The many original and quaint decorative illustrations throughout give the work an artistic touch and lend life to the various pages.

No phase of school life or its activities is neglected and one's preferences in many directions may be recorded in the spaces provided, covering the period from entrance until graduation.

Class Officers, Entertainments, Athletics, Week-end Outings, Motor Trips, and many other items of interest, not to mention one's Favorite Books, Music, Screen Favorites and what-not may all be duly chronicled and the photographs of the most interesting persons and scenes inserted in their proper places.

Complete, artistic and practical, the volume affords an unusually appropriate gift for the school boy or girl.

A BIRTHDAY BOOK of FRIENDSHIP

Edited by JEAN ARMITAGE

The greatest of philosophers, poets and authors of all times are here represented in their happiest aspects.

This little volume combines the idea of a gift book with the thought of Friendship, and its attractive make-up and original bindings make an instantaneous appeal.

MY FRIENDS AND MEMORIES

Here is an opportunity to record all the delightful experiences, impressions, preferences, and social triumphs invariably a part of "growing up." It is a scrap book, photograph album, and diary of events of personal interest, covering every possible phase of the period from girlhood's happy days to matronage. It is printed on grey de luxe paper with attractive decorations on each page.

THE DEBUTANTE'S BOOK

Here is an opportunity for the social "bud" to record her pleasant experiences. Artistic decorations in two colors and de luxe paper add much to the charm.

Size 9¼x7½. 144 pages. Boxed

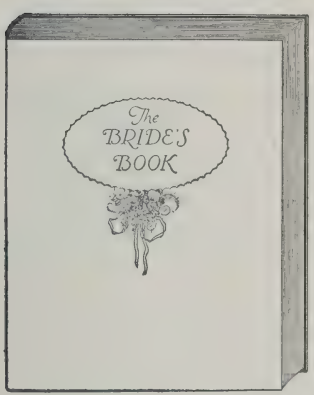
THE BRIDE'S BOOK



Illustrations by GAYE WOODRING

The demand for "something different" is most satisfactorily met by this new book. Ample provision is made for recording the numerous absorbing events preceding the ceremony, and features not heretofore included give the volume additional value and a more interesting touch.

The daintiness of the illustrations and their color treatment will be especially attractive to the discriminating. The bindings, unlike the usual styles, add a distinction which places them in the front rank of "books that sell themselves."

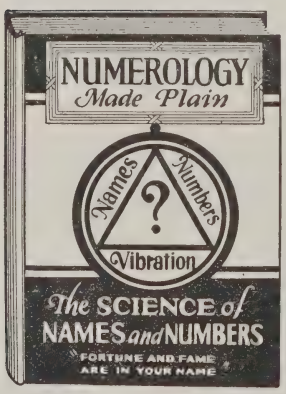
NUMEROLOGY MADE PLAIN

By ARIEL YVON TAYLOR

Fortune and Fame Are in Your Name



NUMEROLOGY is an old, old science, first promulgated by Pythagoras, which has now become the theme of the hour as a means of entertainment as well as a scientific method of achieving success. It explains why the letters of your name and their corresponding numbers and those of your birth date affect your character and your destiny.

"NUMEROLOGY MADE PLAIN" contains a score of examples applying the principles of Numerology to the names of illustrious personages. Twelve of these are accompanied by half-tone portraits. There is also a catalogue of over 1,500 names with their vowel, consonant and total numerological values.

Juvenile Speaker

A New and Cheerful Selection of Recitations, Dialogues, etc., in Prose and Verse.

Edited by ANNABEL ANDREWS

This is a new compilation of recitations, dialogues and playlets, carefully made up from the writings of the best-known writers of past and present. The selections are all in a pleasant vein and have been carefully graded for primary and grammar school grades. The book will also be found excellently adapted for general use.

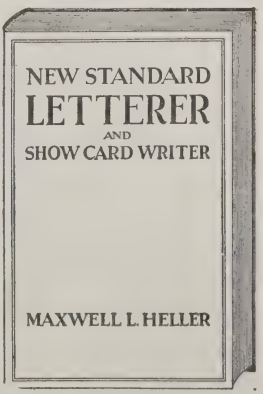
Letterer and Show Card Writer

By MAXWELL L. HELLER, M. A., L. B.

Head of Art Department, William H. Seward High School, New York City

An entirely new work into which has gone the experience of twenty years of actual teaching of the art and practice of lettering and as many years of practical work in the trade. The style employed, therefore, is that of the teacher of the art rather than the artist. Rarely is the accomplished artist able to retrace and analyze his movements, most of which have become so habitual that when he attempts to explain or to teach he most often takes for granted those very steps which need most emphasis. Stress, in this book, is placed not so much upon what to do as how to do it. Art teachers in schools, students of commercial art, and business men and clerks who are desirous of making their own show cards, will find in this book a wealth of detailed instructions as to materials and methods.



Cloth, large octavo, profusely illustrated.....$3.00

EVOLUTION IN A NUTSHELL

The Pro and Con Briefly, Clearly and Fully Presented

By ALVIN SYLVESTER ZERBE, Ph. D., D. D.
Central Theological Seminary, Dayton, Ohio

This work, explaining evolution in the old and the new sense, and reviewing rapidly the usual proofs from geology, comparative anatomy, embryology and genetics, inquires next, to what extent evolution, as denoting continuity from the lowest to the highest (the "backbone of evolution" according to Sir Oliver Lodge), is a satisfactory and comprehensive world-view of the origin of matter, motion, energy, life, free will and man, or, in short, of the three realms of matter—force, life and mind.

Special features of the work are a thorough review of the skull argument of man's descent, a critique of the Scopes trial, and dissertations on the world-goal, animal intelligence, the personality of man, and animal and human life hereafter.

The book is written in a plain and forceful style and is brought down to date in every respect.

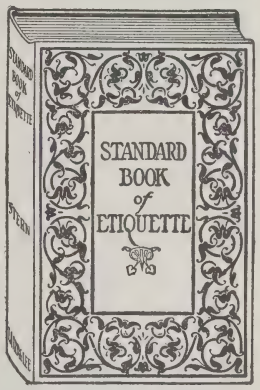
ETIQUETTE

Social Forms and Good Manners for All Occasions

By RENÉE B. STERN



NEVER before has there been such universal interest in proper social procedure as there is today. Because the average book on Etiquette takes little cognizance of changes due to changed modes of living and still less of the fact that different parts of the country accept certain customs rejected by others, this book has been written. It tells in simple, easily consulted form the accepted social procedure under all circumstances. Methods in the servantless house, the house with one maid and the establishment with a retinue are differentiated. Where customs vary in different parts of the country, this fact is noted. The author has had the advice and assistance of those whose life has been spent in the best of American and European social circles as well as of those whose business it is to advise on entertaining, on proper dress for various occasions and on management of the household. In this way local variations have been checked up and the difference between the theoretically correct procedure and that commonly accepted has been pointed out.

The "What, When and How" of Social Life

Good manners and correct form are an asset in business as well as in society. This book is replete with suggestions on all those details of personal behavior, everywhere and on all occasions, that distinguish "the person who knows." It is a complete guide to polite usage for all social functions—a key to the secret of social success.

The STANDARD BOOK OF ETIQUETTE, in its thirty-three clearly written chapters, covers the entire field thoroughly and authoritatively. A complete detailed alphabetical index points out the answer to any and all of the many problems that face one daily in social life.

LAIRD & LEE'S
Pocket Lawyer

By CHESLA M. SHERLOCK of the Iowa Bar

To know when a lawyer is not needed is just as essential as it is to have one when he is needed. Acquaintance with or quick knowledge of the general law is the only safeguard against costly litigation. This book has been carefully prepared with the idea of furnishing the essentials of legal procedure for everyday use. It gives an exceptionally clear and concise explanation of the scope and practice of:

AGENCY—CONTRACTS—CORPORATIONS—CRIMES—DOMESTIC RELATIONS — DIVORCE — HIGHWAYS — PARTNERSHIP — PERSONAL PROPERTY — PERSONAL RIGHTS — REAL PROPERTY — WILLS — WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

It contains forms for legal documents; its explanations are given in simple, non-technical terms; there is a complete topical index giving instant access to any wanted information. A comprehensive Dictionary of Legal Terms. Parliamentary Law at a Glance.

The Grammar of Present Day English

By
CARL HOLLIDAY
Professor of English, University of Toledo

"A clear and simple statement of formal grammar."
EDWIN HERBERT LEWIS, Dean of Lewis Institute

Common sense is the basis of both presentation and application; illustrative forms and usages are drawn from common experiences. The style is easy, informal, almost conversational; the information is not buried under a mass of words. The arrangement is natural, each detail is thoroughly covered in its proper place, step by step. It teaches only what the child ought to remember; and it makes sure that both memory and practice is the inevitable result.

Only the essentials, but all of them. It contains all the English grammar used today; shows quickly but definitely what is correct, and why it is correct. Incidentally, the study of grammar becomes not the bug-bear it has always been to most of us, but a thing closely and pleasantly related to life, a vital growing organism whose destiny is the intimate concern of the individual.

"Almost as interesting reading as a story book. I have also enjoyed immensely reading the testimonials. I have called the attention of the prineipals of my district to the textbook. It certainly will be very helpful to teachers of the upper grades in their work in English Grammar."
R. M. HITCH, District Superintendent, Chicago, Ill.

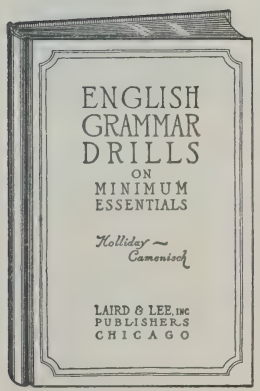
English Grammar Drills on Minimum Essentials

By

Carl Holliday, University of Toledo, Toledo
Sophia Camenisch, Parker High School, Chicago



More than 1,200 illustrative sentences carefully selected from the actual classroom experience of the authors; by their nature and variety adapted to meet individual needs and to challenge the pupil's power of thought. These drills aim at completeness in covering grammatical facts emphasized in recent valuable Reports on Minimum Essentials and meet the crying need of English teachers in High Schools today for an abundance of laboratory material on Grammar.

> "What we teachers of English have needed and wanted for a long time — a book of exercises simple enough for first and second year High School pupils and numerous enough to give them the drill they need. Selected with care and discrimination, they will economize both the teacher's time and the pupil's."
> ELIZA P. HALL, John Marshall High School, Chicago.

> "Such texts as this one, which have grown up from the actual classroom experience of teachers, are going to replace the theoretical treatises of professors and scholars. When this happens, we shall begin to teach English."
> H. Y. MOFFETT, Dept. of English, State University of Iowa.

Danish-Norwegian-English English-Danish-Norwegian

SELF-PRONOUNCING

DICTIONARY

By HENRY NISSEN

THE value and merit of this dictionary will readily be appreciated. Its two-fold design is to supply a long-felt need of having a self-pronouncing dictionary of convenient (hip-pocket) size and to give to the Danish-Norwegian population a system of markings that will minimize the difficulties of studying the English language. With a little study of the simplified system of diacritical markings and phonetic respellings used in Part I, one may, without difficulty, consult any standard English dictionary, and escape the confusion resulting from the use of two systems of markings. In Part II, a key to Danish-Norwegian pronunciation is provided, as an aid to those who wish to learn the Danish-Norwegian language.

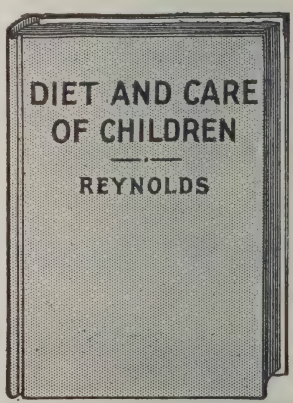
DIET AND CARE OF CHILDREN

QUESTIONS MOTHERS ASK THE DOCTOR

By HARRY S. REYNOLDS, M. D.



This compact and comprehensive volume solves in clear and simple language all the many problems which confront mothers and all those who have the care of children from infancy to advanced childhood.

The author is a physician of the highest standing who has specialized for many years in the care and treatment of infants and children. He tells in this book what every mother should know about the anatomy, physiology and development of infants. He enters fully into the important subjects of hygiene and environment, diet and feeding, the inculcating of good and the curing of bad habits. All the common ailments of infants and children are fully discussed, and simple treatments are given.

"I have read Dr. Reynolds' book with care and have turned it over to my wife, who has also examined it. From the viewpoint of a physician and the viewpoint of a mother this book is entitled to appreciative commendation. It ought to be of very real and practical service to any home in which there are growing children."—T. A. Storey, M. D., Director Department of Hygiene, College of the City of New York.

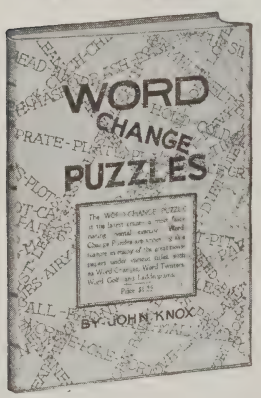
WORD CHANGE PUZZLES



By John Knox

The Word-Change Puzzle is the Latest Craze

A worthy successor to the cross-word puzzle. And in this book are two hundred and forty word-change puzzles and their solutions. The object of the game is to change a given word into another given word of different spelling and usually opposite meaning. The changes are made through a series of "steps" or alterations in each of which only one letter may be changed. For example, changing TIN to CAR results in TIN, TAN, CAN, and CAR. Each page is interestingly decorated.

LETTERING—By Thomas Wood Stevens

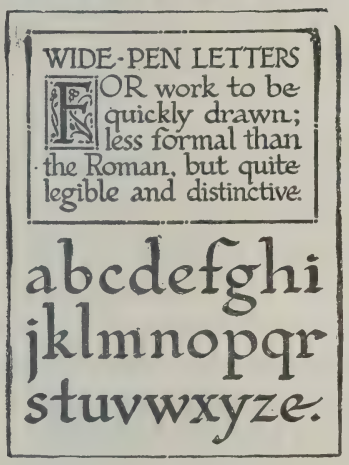

Plate 46—"Lettering"

Mr. Stevens' book on Lettering has become generally recognized as one of the standard works on the subject. The book presents no "system of sign writing" and advances no mechanical method. It is designed for artists, craftsmen, and students who have lettering to make. The object of this book is to develop lettering in relation to design, and to present good standards of lettering in many styles that are suitable for present day demands.

The most noteworthy and valuable feature of Mr. Stevens' book, however, is the large size and the number of the full page Plates. The list of 110 Plates includes the names of practically all who have distinguished themselves in lettering in recent years.

The Backyard Garden

A Handbook for the Amateur, the Community and the School

By EDWARD I. FARRINGTON

This splendidly compact volume is so charmingly written and yet so complete, so clear, and so practical that, while it inspires the old-time gardener with renewed enthusiasm, it makes plain and smooth also the path of the beginner who first took up the hoe at the call of "Uncle Sam." A score of useful reference tables, garden plans, a garden calendar, appropriate illustrations and an alphabetical index add to the educational and practical value of this comprehensive work. It is adapted for school and community work as well as to the needs of the home garden-maker, and will prove an invaluable aid to teachers and others having in charge any concerted gardening efforts.

Aunt Caroline's Dixieland Recipes

A Rare Collection of Choice Southern Dishes

Edited by EMMA and WILLIAM McKINNEY

Drawn from the treasured memories of AUNT CAROLINE PICKETT, a famous old Virginia cook. The "pinch of this" and "just a smacker of that" so wonderfully combined by the culinary wizards of the Southland have been carefully analyzed and recorded in this book, and after a practical test of each of the recipes here given they are presented as a veritable treasure trove of dainty, appetizing and tasty dishes. The variety covers a range sufficient to satisfy the demands of the modest household as well as the exacting tastes of the most pronounced epicure, embracing breads, beverages, cakes, candy, meats, pickles and relishes, pies and desserts, salads and dressings, soups and vegetables.

AUNT CAROLINE'S DIXIELAND RECIPES tells just how to prepare those wonderful dishes that made the South famous the world over for delicious viands. It is the only book of choice Southern dishes that sells at a popular price.

Attractively bound in real gingham cloth cover. Size, 5½x7¾. 147 pages.

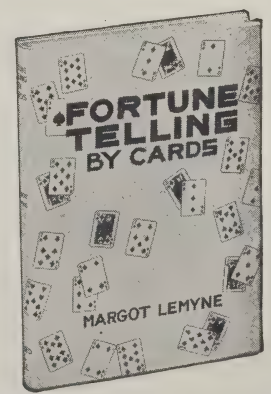
FORTUNE TELLING BY CARDS

By Margot LeMyne

A Common Sense Method Arranged for Ready Reference



A desire to penetrate the future and to learn one's "fate" is universal. Fortune telling by cards is one of the mediums most enticing to the curious. She who can "read the cards" possesses a never ending source of personal pleasure—to herself—and to her friends.

In compiling this volume the author has endeavored to give, wherever possible, ancient interpretations of the cards and and still present the art of fortune telling in a modern way.

Methods of telling fortunes according to five different layouts are given: The Rainbow Layout, The Ladder Layout, The Twenty-One Card Layout, The Star Layout, The Layout by Nines. Full page illustrations of each layout make the directions clear.

Significance of the numbers and definitions of the cards are given full attention. In fact, the directions are so complete and definite that fortune telling becomes one of the most easily acquired "arts"—and one of the most entertaining.

The book is cunningly decorated with marginal drawings on every page. The brilliant cloth binding will give as much "snap" to the bookshelf as the practicing of its art will give to any social gathering.

An Important Announcement

We call the attention of the American book trade to the unique new and limited edition of one of the most remarkable chronicles of marine adventure ever published—the epic story of the second voyage around the world made by Englishmen, written nearly 200 years ago by one who dared and suffered on that terrible four-year cruise. Roaring seas and deadly scurvy, clashing cutlasses and golden galleons—all the lure and glamor of the Spanish Main and treacherous coast of far Cathay—supply the vivid setting to this gripping narrative.

Admiral Anson

The Gripping Story of a Most Extraordinary Cruise

ANSON'S VOYAGE AROUND THE WORLD IN THE YEARS 1740-1744

Made by George Anson, Commander-in-Chief of a Squadron of His Majesty's Ships Sent Upon an Expedition to the South Seas. Compiled from Papers and Other Material of the Rt. Hon. George, Lord Anson, and Published under His Direction, by Richard Walter, A., Chaplain of H. M. S. "Centurion," Flagship of the Expedition. Edited, with an Introtion, by G. S. Laird Clowes.

Containing reproductions of the 42 original plates and charts and additional illustrations, including portraits dmiral Anson and other famous English seamen of the time, models of 18th century British and Spanish men-of-, the burning of Payta, Scott's painting of the battle with the Manila treasure-ship, the treasure arriving at the ver of London, etc.

Here is the thrilling narrative of the second voyage around the globe made by Englishmen—an exploit t for suffering and loss of life, dogged determination and grim heroism, is almost without parallel in sea annals. er did man battle disaster and death with more unflinching courage than did Anson's expedition on this ible four-year cruise.

Commodore George Anson (afterwards made Admiral and head of the British navy) left England in the of 1740 with eight ships and 1500 men to attack Spanish shipping and settlements on the west coast of the ericas. Off Cape Horn a succession of frightful storms met them, and for three months they were battered and led about by roaring seas. So furious and incessant were the westerly gales that it seemed they would never h the South Pacific. For 58 consecutive days they fought for life under reefed topsails, and then on the s of storm came deadly scurvy. Men weakened and died in dozens, and when at last Anson's flagship, the nturion," limped alone into sight of hospitable Juan Fernandez off the Chilean coast, half his crew of 400 had shed and only two quartermasters and six seamen had strength enough to work the ship.

How the indomitable Anson mastered these crushing disasters; took rich Spanish prizes in the South ific; sacked and burned the city of Payta, Peru; fought and captured in Philippine waters a great galleon bear- Mexican treasure worth over a million dollars; and finally returned in safety around the Cape of Good Hope England, forms one of the most absorbing sea tales ever penned.

This Special Edition of "Anson's Voyage" will be strictly limited to about 1200 copies America and England. There will be no other edition. In paper, format and beauty of illustion and printing it will be a worthy companion to our handsome limited edition of "The ght America." The Special Library Binding is used on a limited number of copies only, as a convenience to public librarie which usually prefer such a work in one volume, provided it is so bound as to stand the wear. The trade di count on this style is limited.

Here is a sea book that has strong appeal to thousands. Stirring tales of marine adventure of howling gales and roaring combers, iron-fisted skippers and "hard-boiled" crews, wreck, mutiny, piracy—a fascinatingly woven into this noteworthy story of famous ships and the men who built and sailed them.

The glory and romance, hardship and peril of old square-rigger days are painted with graphic pen by Ba Lubbock, the foremost living authority on this subject. Upon this book he has lavished the fruits of life-lon study and experience.

To mention only one or two interesting features, the first part of Volume 1 shows how life at sea in th last 50 years differed from that of the Elizabethan, Stuart and Georgian periods, and the seamanship of woo and hemp is contrasted with that of steel and wire. Then the ranks in sail are surveyed with a wealth of vivi anecdote and character sketches of masters, mates and men.

Later in Volume 1, we read of the famous ships themselves, from the heavily rigged iron clippers whic raced out to the Colonies with emigrants, to the handsome little brigs, barks and schooners which flew the stan ard of commerce all over the Seven Seas.

Vol. 2, "The Last of the Windjammers," Will Be Published in October

HE LOG OF THE "CUTTY SARK"

By Basil Lubbock. With 89 illustrations reproduced from valuable and rare oil paintings, ographs and photographs. 8vo. ($8\frac{7}{8}$ x 6 in.) Cloth, gilt top. $5.00 net

A history of the famous tea and wool clipper "Cutty Sark," the most interesting sailing ship still afloat, considered by many old seamen to have been the fastest of all the clippers. It has been compiled from her log ks, her captain's abstracts, and from information received not only from those who served aboard her, but from se who served aboard her rivals, or who were in any way connected with her.

One chapter, entitled "A Hell-Ship Voyage" is more full of dramatic incident than any sea story by Clark sell, and it gives the true details of a tragedy which Joseph Conrad has woven into one of his facinating books.

HE CHINA CLIPPERS

By Basil Lubbock, author of "The Log of the 'Cutty Sark'." With 34 illustrations, fly reproductions of old paintings and lithographs. 8vo. Cloth. Gilt top. $3.75 net

This book treats of the history of the celebrated clipper ships in the Chinese opium and tea trades; and gives iled accounts, taken from the logs of ships or from their captains and officers, of the great tea races.

It commences with an account of the Chinese opium trade and then goes on to the wonderful American pers, which in the early forties took the world by storm.

Plans and scale models of the best known clippers are included, as well as portraits of these beautiful ships, oduced from paintings and lithographs and collected with great difficulty owing to their scarcity.

HE COLONIAL CLIPPERS

By Basil Lubbock, author of "The Log of the 'Cutty Sark'." With 91 illustrations and ns. 8vo. Cloth, gilt top. $4.50 net

This book is divided into four parts. The first describes the great wooden clippers of the Black Ball, White , Eagle, and other lines, which carried the emigrants from Liverpool to Australia in the time of the Gold Rush, n all the world was taking ships to the Eldorado under the Southern Cross. Part Two deals with the wood and posite wool clippers, trading to Sydney, Melbourne and South Australia and also with the clipper barques in Tasmanian Trade—vessels which were contemporaries of, and which for beauty, speed, and seaworthiness ed with the China tea ships in their prime. Part Three gives an account of the magnificent iron sailing ships ch raced out to Australian ports with passengers and general cargo and home again with wool. Part Four takes o the New Zealand trade, and the rivalry between the clippers of Shaw-Savil and the New Zealand Shipping pany.

IE BLACKWALL FRIGATES

By Basil Lubbock, author of "The Log of the 'Cutty Sark'." With over 70 illustrations oduced from valuable and rare oil paintings, lithographs and photographs. 8vo. Cloth, top. $5.00 net

This book is divided into three parts, preceded by an Introduction in which a rapid survey is made of the lopment of sailing ships from Elizabethan days to the end of the 19th Century.

Part I deals with the history of the Blackwall Yard; one of the oldest shipbuilding yards in the British ire.

In Part II a voyage is taken to India in the last days of the Honorable John Company, so that we may glimpse of the sea life of those stirring times with all its perils and pleasures, its picturesque ceremonies, and omantic trading in little known seas, amongst peoples who had not been touched by the spreading tentacles uropean civilization.

Part III deals with the beautiful frigate-built passenger ships of Green, Wigram, Smith, Somes, Marshall, itt & Moore, and Duncan Dunbar, which were the successors of the old East Indiamen and the link between and our great passenger steamships of the present day.

IE WESTERN OCEAN PACKETS

By Basil Lubbock, author of "The Log of the 'Cutty Sark'." Illustrated with repro- ions of valuable and rare oil paintings, lithographs and photographs. Small 8vo. Cloth, top. $3.50 net

The author gives a brilliant account of the lines that served the Atlantic Ferry in the first half of the Nine- h Century, with their smart passages and their "hard citizen" officers.

The second part teems with romance, including an account of the rescue of the survivors of the "Ville de re" and of the "Loch Earn" by the "Trimountain." It is an interesting record of the days when the Yankee tet was Lord of the Western Ocean.

Abstract logs, voyages, specifications, a list of Donald Mackay-built ships and the record of the best Atlantic ages are in the appendices.

AMATEURS AFLOAT

The highly entertaining war and peace-time adventures of an amateur sailo
By H. Ivan MacIver. Illustrated with reproductions of photographs and two chart
8vo. (8¾ x 6 inches). Cloth, gilt top. $4.00 n

The author's yachting experiences extend over a number of years and cover a wide area. They inclu racing, cruising and motor-boating. His war experiences were even more varied. From August, 1914, to Decer ber, 1917, he served on H. M. Examination Vessels at the mouth of the Mersey, examining the ships arriving the port of Liverpool. Later he joined the Royal Naval Air Service in Southern Italy as officer in charge water transport. The end of the war found him serving as Lieutenant on a mine-sweeper in the North Sea.

THE BOOK OF THE DECADE FOR AMERICAN YACHTSMEN

THE YACHT AMERICA

By Winfield M. Thompson, William P. Stephens and William U. Swan. T
and views, chiefly from scarce old prints, lithographs, etc. Small 8vo. Cloth, gilt top.
$5.00 n

Also issued in a choice large paper limited edition consisting of 350 numbere copies on imported Normandy Vellum paper, with broad margins, and with extra illu trations, including a frontispiece in four colors. Royal 8vo., in artistic binding.
$15.00 n

The first complete story of the career of the famous yacht America from h spectacular victory over England's best yachts, in 1851, to her delivery to the Nav Academy at Annapolis in 1921, for preservation as a patriotic memorial to America supremacy with the sail;—a story that is in a sense the history of modern yachting.

Yachtsmen everywhere will recognize the authors as amongst the foremo writers on yachting matters, and as being exceptionally equipped for the task whic they undertook.

They have produced a work of strong narrative interest, comprehensive in ever respect, and vibrant with human incidents.

The story is told in fifteen chapters, with an appendix of original document race records, an index, etc.,—over 350 pages in all.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS—nearly sixty in number—have been gathered fro many sources, and include authentic pictures of the famous yacht and portraits of me associated with her at different times, from John C. Stevens, first Commodore of th
New York Yacht Club, and head of the syndicate that built the yacht, to Charl
Francis Adams, who turned her over to the Navy Department, on behalf of the Marbl head yachtsmen. Through the courtesy of the officers of the New York Yacht Clu permission has been given to reproduce paintings, prints, models, etc., from the unrivalled collection; and, almost at the last moment, it became possible to reproduc an English scale model made for the late Admiral Sir William Loring when he wa superintendent of the Portsmouth Dockyard in 1852, and which is now in possessio of his son, Colonel W. Loring, through whose courtesy a photograph of it was obtaine

A BOOK FOR EVERY YACHTSMAN

HE YACHT ALICE

Planning, Building and Cruises. By Henry Howard, Alice Sturtevant Howard and tharine Howard. With about sixty full-page illustrations, including line plates reproduced ctly from the original plans. 8vo. Cloth, gilt top. $5.00 net

THE ALICE

This important yachting book is the work of Henry Howard—a yachtsman of international reputation—assisted by his wife and daughter.

His experience as a cruising yachtsman covers many years and many types of boats. The result of that experience and of the lessons taught by these years of cruising and boat owning, is the ketch "Alice," one of the finest auxiliary cruising yachts in existence. He tells here the story of its planning, designing, and building, in a most thorough and alluring manner, that will appeal not only to the yachtsman, but to the general reader.

This is followed by a complete set of specifications—some 38 pages—the result of much study and of a life time's experience on cruising yachts, and comprising every possible detail of equipment for comfort, convenience, and safety.

The second half of the book—the work of Mr. Howard's wife and daughter,—describes two remarkable cruises on the "Alice"; one from New York to Miami through the inland water ways, the other a cruise of several weeks' duration among the Bahama Islands and to Cuba.

ORIES OF ACTUAL ADVENTURE AT SEA THAT DESERVE TO BECOME CLASSIC

HE VENTURESOME VOYAGES OF CAPTAIN VOSS

A new edition, with an introduction by Weston Martyr. Illustrated with numerous reductions from photographs and with the lines of the "Tilikum." 8vo., cloth, gilt top. With map wing routes of the voyages as end papers. $4.50 net

The first edition of "Venturesome Voyages" was published, under Captain Voss' own superon, in Yokohama in 1913. But a small number of copies got into circulation when the entire nce of the edition was destroyed in an earthquake. As a consequence, a book that ought to be a sic in its line is today almost unknown.

This new edition is an exact reprint, from one of the excessively rare copies of the first issue, n new illustrations, and a most interesting introduction by a man who, a sailor himself, was mate with the author during the last ten years of his life, and here tells his story.

As tales of adventure at sea, told with a simple directness and truly human feeling, the stories of the cruises Tora, Tilikum and Sea Queen would be hard to beat. The voyage of Tilikum, an Indian dugout canoe, ed and adapted for the purpose, is one of the most remarkable ever undertaken. Starting from Victoria, sh Columbia, Voss and a companion sailed in her across the Pacific to Australia, thence to Tasmania and Zealand, through Torres Straits to the Indian Ocean and South Africa. Then round the Cape of Good e, across the Atlantic to Brazil, and so to London via the Azores. This little ship—30 ft. long at the keel with an extreme beam of 5 ft. 6 ins.—covered 40,000 miles of the ocean, and rode out many heavy gales, ks to the means employed by her skipper and described in the book.

OVER 70 FINE LARGE PLATES, INCLUDING 4 IN COLORS

OLD SAILING SHIPS OF NEW ENGLAND

A collection of reproductions of old paintings of clipper ships that once sailed from Ne England ports in the palmy days of the American Merchant Marine. Comprising over 70 hal tone plates, printed in double-tone ink and including 4 in colors, on special prepared paper, wit descriptive text opposite each plate, and an index. Oblong 4to. (11½ x 9½ in.). Neatly boun in cloth (boxed). $5.00 n

In the earlier days of our Republic, America started a Merchant Marine, which in the decade from 18 to 1860 stood at the forefront of the world's maritime activities.

In those days, at the ports of Salem, Newburyport, Marblehead and Portsmouth were received and se all over this country immense cargoes from the treasure houses of the Orient.

The deeds and achievements of the Clipper Ships of that decade still live in song and story. Many of t old Captains are still living and the fortunes of many of the old families of Salem and Newburyport had the beginning, literally, in these ships.

THE RIDDLE OF THE SANDS

A stirring tale of adventure in the North Sea. By Erskine Childers. Illustrated wi full-page and folding maps, being reproductions from British and German Admiralty charts. Larg 12mo. (7½ x 5 in.). Cloth, gilt top. $2.00 ne

AUTHORIZED AMERICAN EDITION of a book that was characterized by John Buchan as "TH BEST STORY OF ADVENTURE PUBLISHED IN THE LAST QUARTER OF A CENTURY."

"A mystery story that for vivid and sustained interest, fascinating atmosphere, as well as interesting ar diverse characters, has seldom been equalled. . . . The logical and yet entirely unexpected solution is only reache at the very end of the book, though the reader's interest is aroused and held from the very first page."

The admirable maps and charts with which the book is illustrated not only add to its interest, but a essential to a full understanding of the scene of the adventure and of the final solution of the mystery.

LIFE AS MATE ON A CALIFORNIA CLIPPER SHIP

FAIR WINDS AND FOUL

A Narrative of Daily Life Aboard an American Clipper Ship. By Frederick Perry, wh made the voyages. Illustrated with six plates, printed separately and tipped on to dark grey mount Second edition. 8vo. (9 x 6 in.) Cloth, gilt tops. $3.50 ne

In 1873, the author was appointed as a Cadet Midshipman in the service of the Pacific Mail Steamshi Company. At the end of a three-year course he entered the service of the California clipper ships. This boo relates the stories of several voyages that he made while working his way up from third mate to first mate at th height of the history of these famous ships. He writes from personal experience and his narrative, always graphi at times almost thrilling, is bound to hold the reader's attention to the end.

"The story of life on a clipper ship has been told before, but usually from the point of view of the captai supreme and apart, or of that hard-driven human engine, the man before the mast. Mr. Perry's book presents from another point of view, one which is less known but undoubtedly of equal, if not greater interest than th others—that of the mate, the man whom he describes as the 'general manager, auditor, superintendent, humoris blasphemer, sailing-master, official log-keeper, work-creator and sleep destroyer' of the ship."

E SHIPS AND SAILORS OF OLD SALEM

The record of a brilliant era in American achievement. By Ralph D. Paine, author of ds of Adventure," "The Fighting Fleets," "Lost Ships and Lonely Seas," etc. Illus- with portraits, reproductions of old prints, etc. A new edition, revised, with a new preface e author and a new index. 8vo. ($8\frac{5}{8}$ x 6 in.) Cloth. $4.00 net

This book describes the deeds of a race of red-blooded Americans who won honor for their flag and renown eir nation during the era of its struggle for very existence. Every merchant vessel carried a battery of can- ehind her stout bulwarks and her seamen were trained to handle them. None of the builders of the Nation l a larger, more thrilling part than did the merchant explorers and fighting seamen of old Salem, who sailed no other ships had dared to go.

DM THE FORECASTLE TO THE CABIN

Being the memoirs of Captain Samuel Samuels of the famous packet-ship "Dreadnought." edition, with an introduction by Ralph D. Paine, author of "The Ships and Sailors of Salem," etc. With 24 illustrations, full-page and in the text. Small 8vo. ($8\frac{3}{8}$ x $5\frac{3}{4}$ in.). $2.50 net n.

"Here is the true sailor of romance, who ran away to sea at the tender age of eleven, who was shanghaied Baltimore crimp, chased by West India pirates, sailed around the world in a haunted ship, was master on a ee quarter deck at twenty-one, fought cannibals, declined the post of Admiral in the Turkish Navy, rescued istian lady from a Turkish harem, battled with Mediterranean banditti, and commanded the "Dreadnought" enty-eight voyages across the Atlantic, and always brought her safely into port."—From Ralph D. Paine's uction.

FORE THE MAST—AND AFTER

The Autobiography of a Sailor and Ship Owner. By Sir Walter Runciman, Bart. Illus- ed with twenty-six full-page plates, chiefly from photographs. 8vo. ($8\frac{7}{8}$ x 6 in.). Cloth, top. $4.50 net

Sir Walter Runciman has had a remarkable career, beginning with his running away to sea when a boy elve. He is one of the few living men who had personal experience of sailing ships, small and large, in the s. The story of the varied craft; their life all over the world; their quaint, courageous, fascinating crews; heir many adventures, are here vividly set forth in a volume that proves the truth of the old adage that th is stranger than Fiction."

Here is a book which is a living fragment of life, a portrait-gallery of types, which, under a few surface ges, remain today what they always were, the pith of a sea-born nation.

Two Notable Books on the War Against the Submarines

E AUXILIARY PATROL

By E. Keble Chatterton, late Lieut. Commander, R. N. V. R., author of "Q-Ships and ir Story," etc. With 48 half-tone illustrations, besides diagrams, etc., in the text. 8vo. x 6 in.) Cloth, gilt top. $3.75 net

The story of the minesweepers, trawlers, drifters, motor-boats, etc., which, as auxiliaries, afforded val- e aid to the Navy during the great war.

Though much has been written about the admirable work done by these craft, there has been hitherto ttempt to place the whole story in its true historical perspective as part of the amazing history of the World

This book presents as comprehensive and as correct an account of its vast subject as it is possible to com- within the limits of a single volume. It has the strongest possible appeal to all who love a brave story, is of permanent value as a contribution to naval history.

SHIPS AND THEIR STORY

By E. Keble Chatterton, author of "The Auxiliary Patrol," "Sailing Ships and Their ry," etc. With 50 full-page and smaller illustrations, chiefly from photographs. 8vo. x 6 in.). Cloth, gilt top. $3.75 net

This remarkable story of ships and men gives a full account derived from authentic sources, of the part ed by decoy ships in combatting the submarine menace during the great war. The deeds described will ver remain one of the most glorious chapters in the chronicles of the sea. Comparatively few people realize now, the wonderful work which these mystery ships did during the war. The author writes in most cases actual personal contact with the events described.

"Contains more of the Glamour of the Sea, and of heroic deeds by seafaring men than any war book yet lished."—Glasgow Herald.

THE PIRATES' WHO'S WHO

Giving Particulars of the Lives and Deaths of the Pirates and Buccaneers. By Ph Gosse. With six illustrations and a map. Small 8vo. (8 x 5½ in.). Cloth, gilt top. $3.00

A book that is the outcome of many years' research in pirate lore and literature. Biographies of pi and buccaneers from the earliest times to the present day. Although a serious work whose records are ent true, it makes most exciting reading. Members of the fair sex are to be found among the pirates, and they not err in leniency.

The map is a reproduction of one contained in "A New Survey of the West Indies, or the English Ar can; His Travail by Sea and Land. By Thomas Gage, London 1655."

NIMROD OF THE SEA

or the American Whalemen. By William M. Davis. New edition, with an introduction John R. Spears, author of "Story of the New England Whalers," etc. Illustrated with thi one full-page plates. Small 8vo. Cloth, gilt top. $3.00

A new edition of one of the best books on the whale-fishery ever written, that has been out-of-print years, odd copies bringing high prices when occasionally occurring for sale. Mr. Spears' introduction gives a lightful historical resumé of the story of the growth and later decline of the industry, and adds materially to interest and value of this new edition.

"Captain Davis not only authoritatively describes the whalers, their ships and their implements, but book is loaded to the 'hatch coamings' with tales of adventure, every one of which is a 'corking' good story. From John R. Spears' Introduction.

OLD SAILING SHIP DAYS

"From Forecastle to Quarter-deck." By Captain John D. Whidden. With an int duction by Ralph D. Paine. With 29 illustrations from photographs. Small 8vo. (8 x 5½ i Cloth, gilt top. $3.50

A handsome new edition of an absorbing story of a quarter-century's life at sea during the palmy day the old-time sailing ships; the narrative of the actual experiences of one of the captains who commanded sailed them.

As Ralph D. Paine, in his delightful introduction to this new edition, says.

"The book deserves to live because of the unusual blend of truth and entertainment. He did not rea it when he was writing, but the episodes of his career were so varied and colorful as to satisfy the requirement a fictionist. In other words, things happened just about as you would have wished had you dreamed them yourself, and this is the ultimate test of a good tale."

IN MEXICAN WATERS

By George Hugh Banning. Profusely illustrated with photographs reproduced in collot and half-tone. Small 8vo. (9⅜ x 6⅜ in.) Cloth. Gilt top. $4.50 n

A lively account of a cruise to the islands lying off the western coast of Mexico, and of visits to some of towns and estuaries of the mainland, written by one who believes that though the geographical definition of island may be true, it is not the whole truth, for it ignores the mystery, romance and untold possibilities of adv ture.

SHANGHAIED OUT OF FRISCO IN THE NINETIES

By Hiram P. Bailey, F. R. G. S. A narrative of a voyage across San Francisco Bay Mexico, Chile, Australia and Fiji. Illustrated with a frontispiece by the eminent marine art J. Spurling, six line drawings, a deck plan and a chart. Small 8vo. Cloth, gilt top. $2.50 n

Mr. Bailey was snatched suddenly away from all friends, and found himself, when he awoke, upon a strai American ship, among strange men, upon a strange sea, out of sight of land, with a twenty-thousand mile voy in front!

His nautical growth among real deep-water sailormen and a "hard-case" mate is most vividly and l morously depicted. The narrative bristles with exciting but true incidents of the common hardships, desper dangers, laughable whimsicalities, and sea superstitions in a long sailing ship voyage. The author arrestin brings before all stay-at-homes the terrible events in one of the most vivid pictures imaginable—reminding strongly of Conrad in its descriptive power, and of Clark Russell in its verisimilitude.

An absolute facsimile of the original edition of

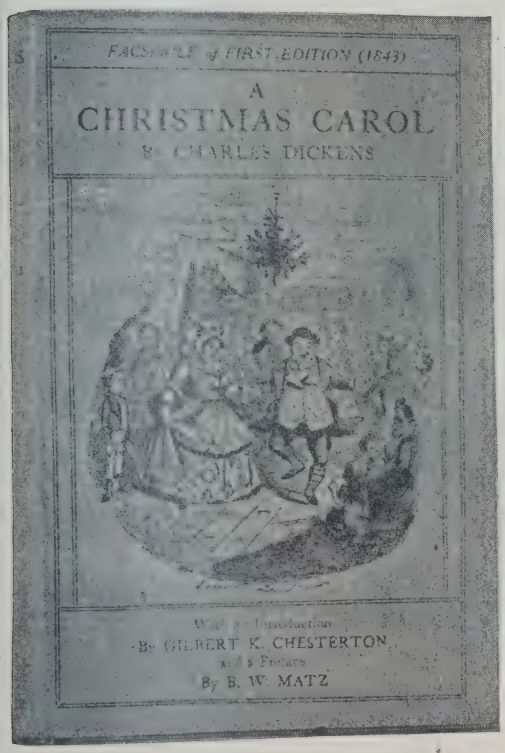
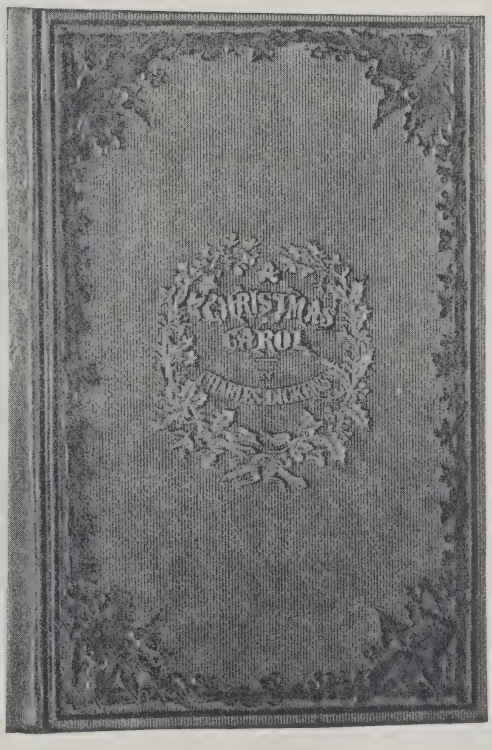
CKENS' "CHRISTMAS CAROL"

A Christmas Carol in Prose; being a Ghost Story of Christmas. By les Dickens. With four illustrations in color and four woodcuts by John h. A facsimile of the original edition, with an introduction by G. K. Chesn and a preface by B. W. Matz. Also containing facsimile reproductions ıe title page, preface, and top-half of the first page from Dickens' original uscript. 16mo. ($6\frac{3}{4}$ x $4\frac{3}{8}$ in.). Cloth, gilt edges. Each copy in a decora- Christmas box. $2.00 net.





In the preparation of this edition of Dickens' wonderful story, every effort has been made resent an exact replica of the original edition, published a few weeks before the Christmas 843. As far as is possible in these days, all points as regards paper, type, illustrations and ling have been faithfully adhered to. Leech's four wood-cuts have been printed from electros ıe original woodblocks, while the four color prints have gone through eight printings to obtain rfectly satisfactory result.

The binding is the reddish-brown cloth, with the green end papers and gilt edges, as in a uine first edition, and the title page is printed in red and blue as was that original issue.

Even the typographical inconsistency is repeated, as on the first page of a first edition re "Stave I" appears instead of "Stave One" to match the other chapter headings, a mistake ch, on discovery, was corrected in subsequent reprints.

Chesterton's delightful introduction is not the least of the attractions of this quaint little ion.

THE LARGEST TYPE EDITION

HARLES DICKENS' COMPLETE WRITINGS

A new edition, in exceptionally large type, including his novels and tales, letters peeches, plays and poems, miscellanies, etc., and Forster's Life of Dickens. With nearly lustrations. The set complete in forty volumes, each complete work sold separately,

Price, $2.50 per vol. net

For list of titles comprised in the set, see opposite page.

This edition of Dickens is one that particularly appeals to any one wanting a set to read ll as to show on the library shelves.

To begin with it is complete, being a reprint of the famous "National" edition issued hapman and Hall of London and generally recognized as being "the definitive and only lete edition of Dickens"—chance sets of which today bring very high prices.

It also includes Forster's famous Life of Dickens as well as a large collection of his letters, l by Miss Hogarth, the correspondence with Wilkie Collins, edited by Laurence Hutton, volume devoted almost entirely to Dickens' speeches, collected by R. H. Shepherd.

Then the type is the largest ever used in printing any edition, making a page that it is a ure to read. (See type specimen below.)

The illustrations—nearly 200 of them—are careful reproductions, direct from original s, of the old-time favorites, long associated in the minds of Dickens lovers with the stories illustrate, and including the etchings and drawings of George Cruikshank, Hablot K. Browne iz"), Seymour, Barnard, Leech, Frost, Maclise and others.

The convenient size of the volumes, in conjunction with their handsome flexible binding, s the set a distinct improvement upon any previous large-type edition—books that are to hold and read, and a joy to look upon.

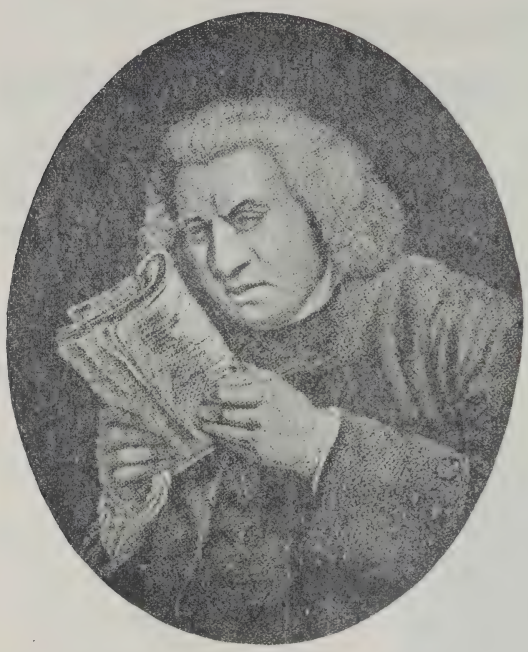
oughtn't to. Here, young 'ooman, Miss Sawbones, Mrs. Vinkle, don't!'

Whether it was the magic of Mr. Winkle's name, or the coolness of the open air, or some recollection of Mr. Weller's voice, that revived Arabella, matters not. She raised her head and languidly inquired, 'Who's that, and what do you want?'

'Hush,' said Sam, swinging himself on to the wall, and crouching there in as small a compass as he could reduce himself to, 'only me, miss, only me.'

'Mr. Pickwick's servant,' said Arabella, earnestly.

'The wery same, miss,' replied Sam. 'Here's Mr. Vinkle reg'larly sewed up vith desperation, miss.'



A Handsome New Issue of

ROGER INGPEN'S Beautifully Illustrated Edition of

THE LIFE OF SAMUEL JOHNSO

By James Boswell. Newly edited, with notes by Roger Ingpen. A new edition, with a new introduction by Mr. Ingpen. With more than five hundred illustrations, full-page and in the text, including thirteen full-page plates in photogravure. Three vols., 4to. Cloth, gilt tops (boxed). $15.00

THE SAME

Elegantly bound by Bayntun of Bath, England, in half morocco extra, gilt tops, hand tooled and finished. $35.00

The original issue of Ingpen's beautifully illustrated edition was printed from type, so that in preparing this new issue, which was done under Mr. Ingpen's supervision, it became necessary to re-set the text entirely, so that the book was again printed from new type. The original illustrations have been used, except that the full-page photogravures have been printed from new plates, obtained direct from the original portraits and paintings, as was done in the first issue.

Mr. Ingpen has contributed a very delightful new introduction, in which he traces the growth of interest in Johnson and his circle which has taken place since the original publication of his edition, nearly twenty years ago.

"Mr. Ingpen is too good a Johnsonian and too good an editor to let the pictures be a mere collection. He has chosen authentic pictures only, and further they are pictures that rightly illustrate the Life. Reynolds, Gainsborough, Romney—here are three masters of art who contribute from the stores from which it has been possible to draw . . . It should appeal to a great company of readers, those, in particular, who still have to taste the joy of acquaintance with the immortal book. Their introduction to it could not take place under better auspices than these well-illustrated, well-printed, well-edited pages."

HE CROOKED AND NARROW STREETS OF THE TOWN OF BOSTON, 1630-1822

By Annie Haven Thwing. New edition, revised and corrected, with litional notes. Illustrated with twenty-four full-page plates in photogravure and en folding maps. Text handsomely printed in bold type on heavy cream ve paper, with generous margins. Royal 8vo. Tastefully bound in antique le, cloth back, board sides, uncut. (boxed) $3.00 net.

"A Unique and Remarkable Town History. Beginning with the lanes and cowpaths of earliest times, s Thwing sketches the history of each street, giving the names of owners and dwellers from the settlement Boston's organization as a city. The book is a beautiful example of fine printing and binding and is profusely trated with maps and views of the old city."

HE LIVES OF THE RAKES

By E. Beresford Chancellor, M. A., etc., author of "Memorials of St. mes' Street," etc. Handsomely printed on the finest hand-made paper and ustrated with forty-eight full-page plates. 6 vols. 8vo. (9 x 5¾ in.). Cloth. oxed) London, 1925. $33.00 per set net.

A CHOICE LIMITED EDITION OF A MOST FASCINATING WORK, CONSISTING OF 300 SIGNED AND NUMBERED SETS.

The first volume deals with King Charles II and his court—"a sovereign," writes Mr. Chancellor, "who k his pleasures anything but sadly, and a group of men who also showed in this, as in other ways, their abnor- lity by taking their pleasures (and what varied ones they were!) joyously, and by an almost epic disregard of olic opinion and the feelings of the seventeenth and eighteenth century equivalent for Mrs. Grundy."

The second volume is confined to the Restoration Rakes: The Duke of Buckingham, the Earl of Rochester, Earl of Dorset, Sir Charles Sedley, Sir George Etheredge, and William Wycherley. In Volume III Mr. ancellor presents, for the first time, the disgraceful life of perhaps the wickedest man that ever walked the eets of London, Colonel Francis Charteris. Philip Duke of Wharton is also dealt with in this volume. In lume IV we are given a description of the Hell Fire Club at Medmenham and of its most famous members, Earl of Sandwich, Sir Charles Dashwood, John Wilkes, Churchill the poet, and others. Volume V is devoted the Marquis of Queensbury (Old "Q") and the Earl of Barrymore. The last volume deals with the Rakes the Regency, including King George IV, Lord Hertford, Colonel George Hanger (afterwards Lord Coleraine), d others of this period.

THE NOVELS THAT MADE TROLLOPE FAMOUS

HE CHRONICLES OF BARSETSHIRE

Comprising: The Warden; Barchester Towers; Doctor Thorne; Framley arsonage; The Small House at Allington; The Last Chronicle of Barset. By nthony Trollope. WITH FULL-PAGE ILLUSTRATIONS FROM ORIGI- AL DRAWINGS BY SIR JOHN E. MILLAIS AND OTHERS. Together, vols., small 8vo. Cloth, gilt tops. (boxed) $18.00

The set here offered comprises the series known as the "Chronicles of Barsetshire." Trollope wrote and ublished a number of novels before meeting hard-earned success with "The Warden," "Barchester Towers," Dr. Thorne," "Framley Parsonage," "The Small House at Allington" and "The Last Chronicle of Barset." HESE STAND OUT AS SIX OF HIS BEST WORKS.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS include a number of the original illustrations by Millais, of whom Trollope could ever speak too highly and of whose work he said, "In every figure that he drew it was his object to promote ie views of the writer whose work he had undertaken to illustrate, and he never spared himself any pains in udying that work so as to enable him to do so. I have carried on some of these characters from book to book nd have had my own early ideas impressed indelibly on my memory by the excellence of his delineations."

FOREIGN CLASSICS FOR ENGLISH READERS.

Edited by Mrs. Oliphant. Per volume 1.25

Spain, Italy, France, and the golden age of Germany, when Goethe and Schiller wrote their immortal poems and dramas, furnish the material for this invaluable series of volumes on the foreign classics. Such notable writers and scholars as Sir Walter Besant and H. M. Trollope give us not only translations of the most striking portions of these great books, but sketches of the times and society in which they were written, and the lives of their authors.

The Big Biography on Our Fall List

WAR-TIME SECRETS OF DOWNING STREET REVEALED in these Long-awaited Reminiscences of the British Prime Minister from 1908 to 1916

MEMORIES AND REFLECTIONS
1852-1927

By THE EARL OF OXFORD AND ASQUITH, K.G.

LORD OXFORD'S diaries and letters included in these two volumes deal unsparingly, but not without a touch of humor, with the men and events of the fateful years of the World War. His frank opinions of Lloyd George, Winston Churchill, Lord Kitchener, Bonar Law, General Sir John French, Admiral Fisher, Field Marshall Sir William Robertson, and others, are only one of the many noteworthy features of a work which is not only a fascinating autobiography of a great English statesman but an authoritative contribution to history.

Brief Extracts from Lord Oxford's Diary:

Aug. 1, 1914: Hauled King George out of bed at 1:30 A.M. on receipt of news of Tsar's decree for complete Russian mobilization.
Cabinet meeting, August 1, Lloyd George all for peace; Winston Churchill very bellicose and demanding immediate mobilization.

Aug. 2: Opposition to intervention in the Cabinet but Prime Minister clear in his mind on the question of war.

Aug. 3: Germany invades Belgium.

Aug. 4: Ultimatum to Germany, Winston has on all his war paint.

Aug. 5: Kitchener installed in War Office.

Aug. 6: Cabinet resembles "a gang of Elizabethan buccaneers."

Aug. 31: Would submerge troublesome Ireland for ten years under the waves of the Atlantic.

Sept. 14: Tory Party walked out of the House.

Sept. 29: Americans become disagreeable over seizure of cargoes.

Oct. 1: Belgians need starch infused in their backbone.

Jan. 8, 1915: Admiral Fisher wanted to shoot German prisoners.

Feb. 27: Winston Churchill and Lloyd George can only think talking.
Pen picture of war council in session.

Mar. 10: Russia wanted to make sure of Constantinople.

Mar. 13: Lloyd George does not care a damn for the Jews.

Mar. 24: Lord French complains of Joffre.

Mar. 25: Winston Churchill intriguing.

April 1: Lloyd George would buy out the drink trade at a cost of £250,000,000.
Admiral Fisher afflicted with megalomania.

[This outline represents only the material in five out of the forty-five chapters contained in the two volumes]

Two octavo volumes, fully illustrated, boxed, $10.00

Important Works on Cookery

THE BOSTON COOKING-SCHOOL COOK BOOK

By Fannie Merritt Farmer. This revised and greatly enlarged edition of the acknowledged leader of all cook books, combines practically all the recipes formerly published in Miss Farmer's "A New Book of Cookery" with the 2117 recipes contained in the previous edition of "The Boston Cooking School Cook Book" so that it now contains, in all, 2677 tested recipes. It is really two books in one, though the price remains unchanged, and is the last word on the art of cookery. With 122 illustrations. 825 pages. $2.50 net.

SEVEN HUNDRED SANDWICHES

By Florence A. Cowles. The largest and most complete collection of tested sandwich recipes ever put forth in book form. An invaluable book for housewives and managers of cafeterias and restaurants. (1928) $1.75.

CANNING, PRESERVING AND JELLY MAKING

By Janet McKenzie Hill. Aims to present the latest ideas on the subject using the methods found to be simplest and shortest by the experiments of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, state universities and cooking experts. Illustrated. New Edition. (1927) $1.75.

CHOICE RECIPES FOR CLEVER COOKS

By Lucy G. Allen. More than five hundred original recipes for those who already know how to cook and appreciate the best in food and flavor.By the Director of The Boston School of Cookery. Illustrated. $2.00.

COOKING FOR TWO

By Janet McKenzie Hill. A Handbook for Young Housekeepers. With more than one hundred illustrations. $2.50.

THE UP-TO-DATE WAITRESS

By Janet McKenzie Hill. Practical directions concerning details of dining room service. With fifty-three illustrations. Revised Edition. $1.75.

SALADS, SANDWICHES AND CHAFING-DISH DAINTIES

By Janet McKenzie Hill. More than a hundred different varieties of salads among the recipes — salads made of fruit, of fish, of meat, of vegetables, etc. With fifty illustrations. $2.00.

THE BOOK OF ENTRÉES

By Janet McKenzie Hill. A long and varied list of entrées, including, a chapter on planked dishes and those served en casserole. A collection of 800 recipes, including vegetable entrées, croquettes, cutlets, soufflés, aspics, mousses, salads, fruit entrées and casserole and planked dishes. $2.00.

CAKES, PASTRY AND DESSERT DISHES

By Janet McKenzie Hill. A book covering fully every variety of this branch of cookery; every recipe which it contains has been tried and tested. Fully illustrated. $2.00.

AN

OF PUBLICATIONS FOR THE

FALL OF 1928

NEW YORK CITY
61 WEST FORTY-EIGHTH STREET

The Jealous Gods

by GERTRUDE ATHERTON author of THE IMMORTAL MARRIAGE, etc.

A Processional Novel of the Fifth Century B.C. (concerning one Alcibiades).

A STRANGE successor to the Pericles of The Immortal Marriage, Alcibiades leaps upon the stage as the maddest spirit of Athens. Arrogant, intolerant, dissipated, at times unscrupulous, rioting in the streets at night, reveling in wild parties with hetæræ, he is the antithesis of Pericles in everything but immense brain power and gift for leadership. But he is even more beloved by the people and is given the highest honors of the state at the age of thirty.

His life is full of women, the famous and accomplished hetæræ, for the most part, and one of the queens of Sparta also crosses his twisted path. But the heroine of the novel is of a sort never before introduced into fiction. Tiy, a descendant of the Pharaohs, and a personage in the Woman's State of Egypt, dazzles and horrifies the Athenians, forcing those men who despise women to accept her as their equal, and taking her place in the life of Alcibiades. The singular relationship of these two violent personalities creates the suspense and drama of the book.

Again we meet Socrates, Aristophanes, and those other immortals who burst forth in that bloom of creative genius which made little Athens the peer of any Empire, and the Fifth Century B.C. the peer of any span of five centuries in history. And again, as in The Immortal Marriage, Mrs. Atherton brings life, not only to the men themselves, but to the brilliant civilization which they made, and which made them.

The Feathered Nest

by MARGARET LEECH author of TIN WEDDING, etc.

The desperate and pathetic struggle of a mother to retain her hold over her grown sons as her only justification for living.

THIS book concerns a handsome and dominating woman who in middle age finds herself uncontrollably shaken by the two passions of her life—mother-love and cupidity. Neither impulse serves a useful purpose, for Isabelle Forster's fortune is already large, and her sons have grown beyond the need of her devotion.

Each son in his own way resists her. Ferd, the eldest, is sensitive and over-bred, the prototype of his charming and elegant father whom she never loved. The second son, Haskell, has a nature as intolerant of restriction as her own. Carlie, the youngest, seems most vulnerable and, though he too eludes her, it is not without a conflict between the love and the antipathy which she arouses in him in almost equal measure.

Isabelle's rôle in the story is not always a sympathetic one, but Miss Leech has not portrayed a cruel or eccentric woman. On the contrary, it has been the author's purpose to make understandable the desperate struggle in a woman's nature, particularly in middle years, when the suppressed emotions of a disciplined life burst into unnatural flame, which is presently to die down in the comparative coolness and serenity of age.

Readers of Tin Wedding and The Back of the Book will remember Miss Leech's fine talent in treating the subtle emotional fabric of intimate relationships. The theme of The Feathered Nest is excellently adapted to such treatment, and confirms Miss Leech's high rank among our younger writers.

A Story-Teller's Holiday by GEORGE MOORE

A beautiful limited edition, revised, but absolutely unabridged, of this celebrated work, together with Ulick and Soracha.

TEN years ago George Moore opened his new book, A Story-Teller's Holiday, with a leave-taking which was in truth a greeting. It was a greeting and a vow of consecration of his powers to the public for whom he elects to write,—the men and women of literary discrimination. The ten years that have elapsed have proved the sincerity of his vow to these chosen readers, and their appreciation of Mr. Moore's service to the art of literature.

A Story-Teller's Holiday is distilled from the pure essence of the author's genius, that genius which selects instinctively the shape in a story and the rhythm in a paragraph which make for beauty,—that genius which marks George Moore as the most distinguished member of the aristocracy of letters alive today.

Perhaps it is not generally known that Mr. Moore had originally intended to include Ulick and Soracha, published two years ago, with A Story-Teller's Holiday. The present edition carries out the original plan for the first time. The old text has been perfected, and Ulick and Soracha has been rewritten, but the work is absolutely unabridged.

This edition, specially bound and printed on watermarked paper, is strictly limited to twelve hundred and fifty sets. The first volume of each set will be signed by the author.

November 2 volumes boxed $20.00

Mrs. Condover by JOHN METCALFE

author of THE SMOKING LEG AND OTHER STORIES

A subtle tragedy o mood with a blind gir as the siren of a boy and-girl love affair.

THE every-day life of the meager London suburb is the setting of the love story of young Kenneth Bly and Vera, the blind girl. But though most writers, given this setting, would have woven a realistic tragedy of sordid detail, John Metcalfe wafts the intangible tragedy of mood over the heads of the young lovers. The dark foreboding of some unnamed doom above and beyond mere human events and human doings is symbolized by the massive figure of Vera's mother, Mrs. Condover. This terrible woman, a religious fanatic, warns Kenneth that his happiness cannot lie with Vera. But the mother's warning in words is symbolic of the warning of Fate itself, and in its shadow Kenneth feels himself drawn toward the inevitable, no matter how wisely his reason tells him to draw back.

More than one critic in England has compared the book to Maugham's masterpiece Of Human Bondage, and the likeness in theme and in power of development is too striking to be missed. But the lodestone which draws Kenneth's human frailty to its destruction against his better judgment, is not, like Philip's, in the essence of mere human nature; it is in some unnamed doom that hovers in the sky of human destiny, above human beings themselves. It is symbolized by Mrs. Condover, and because it goes on after her death, she too, though dead, moves through the book to the close.

Mrs. Condover fulfills the promise of Mr. Metcalfe's earlier work. It is also an achievement in itself, by virtue of the skill which crowns an intangible mood with the conviction of reality.

The Coming of the Lord

by SARAH GERTRUDE MILLIN, author of GOD'S STEPCHILDREN, etc.

Mrs. Millin applies her genius for economy to a huge canvas, and outdistances her own magnificent achievements of the past.

MRS. MILLIN has written a novel of gigantic stature. Her scene is again South Africa, but her canvas is broadened to vast dimensions. She writes again of the grim unequal struggle between blacks and whites, but she has shifted it to the background, where it arches its huge shoulders against the sky, dominating the men in the foreground as the Greek heroes were dominated by Fate. But the story is about men, not races.

Fate has cast the lot of these men with minorities. One is a Jew, one an Indian, one a German, the last an African native with the education and intellectual outlook of the white man, but the physical and emotional color of the black. These four cannot accept the clear-cut cleavage between blacks and whites as their concern or their battle. They all try in their various ways to hold aloof; all become engulfed, one to lose his life.

For Arnold Duerdon, of British stock, insists on precipitating the conflict. Only in a mob atmosphere, where physical courage wins at the expense of the subtler virtues, can he salvage his wounded vanity, which has never tasted success since the Armistice of 1918 lowered the curtain on his great scene. He seizes his opportunity when the black evangelist Aaron leads his black followers to camp on the Heights above the town, promising them that there they shall see the Coming of the Lord.

Men sprung from minority races try to hold aloof from the conflict between blacks and whites, only to be submerged in the battle that is not theirs.

Duerdon's only answer is physical violence. He organizes the Vigilants, to drive Aaron's dark-skinned band away from the town, and finally precipitates the hatred and bloodshed which engulf the minority men, and bring death to the Jew, who more than any other has striven to hold himself aloof from the battle which was not his.

Few writers would dare so ambitious an undertaking; still fewer could crown the ambition with an achievement of such dimensions. The Coming of the Lord flows with the fateful beauty of the fugue, blending many themes into a single tragic crescendo.

Short Stories from Vanity Fair

1926–1927

VANITY FAIR, that smartest of the monthlies, has printed some of the most distinguished stories that have been written in Europe and America. It was among the first to give the short story writer a new scope and freedom, and has on more than one occasion "discovered" a young writer who was afterwards to be acclaimed by the critics and the public.

This volume contains selections of the very best of these stories. A list of a few of the contributors will be sufficient to give the reader an idea of the quality of the collection:

Sherwood Anderson	Aldous Huxley	Faraday Keene
Thomas Burke	Ferenc Molnar	Paul Morand
Louis Golding	Michel Corday	Arthur Schnitzler

Caspar Hauser

by JACOB WASSERMANN author of THE WORLD'S ILLUSION, etc.

The most distinguished novel of this most distinguished German novelist makes its first appearance in America.

THIS book is considered by most European critics the finest and most important of Wassermann's novels. It now makes its first appearance in English.

Caspar Hauser, that strange figure which puzzled Europe in the years from 1828, when he first appeared, to 1833, when he met his inexplicable death, has remained an unsolved mystery to this day. On the one hand it is claimed that he was a deliberate impostor, while many others maintain that he was the Crown Prince of Baden, victimized by the family of the ruler's morganatic wife, who desired to secure the succession.

Wassermann's story is laid against a vivid panorama of Europe in the Nineteenth Century. Caspar Hauser is a symbol; he is the human being, pure and unsophisticated as Adam was before the Fall. He is endowed with great natural talents and an almost superhuman sensitiveness. But his fellow men—and especially women—bungle the task of making him what he might be. Caspar Hauser provides the balance by which the modern world is weighed and found wanting.

This is undoubtedly the most important European work of the present season. Wassermann has written a special preface for this, the only American edition. The translation is by Caroline Newton.

October $3.00

The Mad Professor

by HERMANN SUDERMANN author of THE SONG OF SONGS, etc.

Sudermann's first novel since the war—a brilliant study of a bold and independent man in conflict with the popular will.

THE appearance of a Sudermann novel for the first time since The Song of Songs, about two decades ago, is nothing less than an event. A giant not only among German writers, but in the whole field of European literature, Sudermann brings to The Mad Professor the sincere profundity and vibrant execution of his earlier work, plus the suffering and growth and groping for a new philosophy which the world war imposed on the great minds of Europe.

A reviewer of the German edition, writing in The Nation, said: "Der Tolle Professor, Hermann Sudermann's most recent and most sustained effort in the field of fiction since Es War and Das Hohe Lied, is essentially a political novel. In mood, individual characterization and motivation the novel rests on the solid foundation of Sudermann's experiences as a student in the University of Königsberg in 1875. Although veiled in a charitable anonymity, not a few of its sharply etched portraits of university dignitaries, including that of the Mad Professor, are drawn from life and with sardonic veracity. The Mad Professor is an ambitious attempt to depict the confusion and despair which may engulf an individual of bold and independent habit of thought who finds himself at odds with the popular will during a period of social and political transition."

The publication of this book has been delayed by difficulties in translation. We are glad to announce the present translation by Isabel Leighton.

Elegant Infidelities of Madame Li Pei Fou

by CHARLES PETTIT
author of THE SON OF THE GRAND EUNUCH

Showing how gracefully a Chinese woman can enjoy freedom, how gratifying the results to the opposite sex—and further complications.

WRITTEN in the inimitable style of The Son of The Grand Eunuch, this delightfully sophisticated story tells of a very timid and very captivating Chinese woman, who tastes the joys of western liberty and western liberties with the aid of a most charming young man. The delicious flavor of the book is suggested in the following chapter headings:

How a genius can be unbearable to his wife when he is seized with inspiration.

How useless it is for a man who finds his wife stupid to seek intelligence among his concubines.

The pleasure which the wife of an illustrious man of letters finds in bidding him good-bye.

How natural it is when one has satisfied four of the senses to think of the fifth.

How difficult it is for a pretty recluse to communicate with the outside world.

With what simplicity love may lead to crime.

Concerning the imprudence of a man who drinks a cup of tea after having witnessed infidelity.

How a young man should not hesitate to risk suffocating in a chest of drawers in order to save the reputation of his mistress.

How difficult it is for a young man to disappear from the world especially in the springtime.

Reasons why a college education is indispensable in love.

Six Moral Tales from Jules Laforgue

Edited and Translated by FRANCES NEWMAN

Frances Newman translates and introduces the "lunar philosopher," who taught English and American writers the art of sophistication.

JULES LAFORGUE'S Six Moral Tales are probably the one perfect literary expression of the quality commonly called sophistication. Without reading them it is impossible to know the period of French literature which made the Englishmen of the nineties into Dowsons and Beardsleys, which made the Huxleys and the Sitwells of our day, and which promises, judging by present signs, to inspire an era of sophistication in our own American fiction.

In his Ivory, Apes, and Peacocks, James Huneker wrote of these Moralités Légendaires—"I do not know which to admire most . . . The Miracle of the Roses is of an exceeding charm, while Pan and the Syrinx has a quality which I can recall nowhere else in literature; perhaps in the cadences charged with the magic and irony of Chopin or the half-dreams of Watteau, colour and golden sadness intermingled . . . He (Laforgue) is the most delightful company for one who is weary of the Great Good Game around us."

Now Americans will be able to read the "lunar philosopher" in the translation of Frances Newman, whose own fiction proves her ability to understand Laforgue's gay, ironic melancholy.

A Gallery of Women

by THEODORE DREISER
author of AN AMERICAN TRAGEDY, etc.

Dreiser sketches for the reader the panorama of lovely and strange women who have passed across the scene of his experience.

IN this new book Theodore Dreiser has done for certain women and all women exactly what he did, according to all critics, in Twelve Men for certain men and all men.

These ladies troop forth from the notebook of his memory, a procession of lovely and strange women. Very few men have known women as has Dreiser, and no one who is living today is so capable of probing into the maze of complicated machinery of mind and matter which, to so many of us, is the great enigma. As these women of Dreiser's experience move under the enlarging glass of his genius, the reader sees the author's own life as it was deepened and enriched, colored and motivated by the daughters of Eve.

As always, Dreiser appraises the forces that make the human comedy and the human tragedy what it is: love and passion, jealousy and ambition, hate and despair. "To read him unmoved is to confess that there is nothing moving in the eternal tragedy of man," wrote H. L. Mencken. Dreiser has never compromised with popular demand; yet he has achieved, after long years of tenacious adherence to an ideal, that popularity which seldom touches a true artist in his own lifetime.

There will be a limited edition of five hundred and sixty copies of this book, numbered and signed by the author, five hundred and thirty-five of which will be for sale at twenty dollars.

November 2 volumes boxed $5.00

Painted Veils

by JAMES GIBBONS HUNEKER

The only work of fiction by the most celebrated American critic of our generation.

IN view of the recent appearance of a pirated edition of this celebrated work, we are republishing it without abridgement in justice to the Estate of James Huneker, to ourselves, and to booksellers. A careful examination will show the difference between the pirated edition and that which we issued in 1920, now long out of print and most difficult to procure.

Painted Veils, already recognized as a classic, is the only work of fiction by the giant of American critics. When Henry L. Mencken first read the manuscript, he wrote as follows:

"What chiefly marks the book, it seems to me, is its prodigious gusto, the abounding joy with which it is slapped together. . . . Huneker gets Huneker into it — and Huneker is a rare spirit, the artist on a glorious holiday, a Pan dancing with arm and legs. Not, of course, a young man, still feeding on grass; rather a Pan grown somewhat paunchy and cynical, a Pan well fed for years upon Kaiserschmarrn and Risi-bisi. The sublime bull-fiddling in the scherzo of the Fifth Symphony inevitably suggests itself. The same sardonic delight is in Painted Veils. The book belongs to the same category of conquering blasphemy. It is, in a very real sense, the crowning work of Huneker. It gathers all his scattered ideas into one sheaf and projects them imaginatively and brilliantly."

This edition will be limited to twenty-three hundred copies.

Scarlet Heels

by EDITH M. STERN
author of PURSE STRINGS

A young French nobleman, exiled in America, encounters the ruthlessness of our machine-made civilization, which knows no aristocracy, no traditions, no reverence.

HENRI Yves Grégoire, Vicomte de Grandbord, son of a French nobleman and an American heiress, finds himself wholly out of sympathy with the American world when his unfortunate rashness forces him, at the age of eighteen, to leave the France he loves. With rare discrimination and sympathy the author portrays the clash between his aristocratic traditions, and the vulgarities and ruthlessness of the democratic republic.

The narrative begins in Gregory's childhood and presents a beautiful picture of a sensitive child against the background of the old family château. But the tense drama is in the second half of the book, when Gregory must make his adjustment to the strange American world which knows no aristocracy, no traditions, no restraint, and whose women behave with such alarming and misleading freedom.

The book subtly develops the new theme of the aristocratic foreigner in America, in contrast to the familiar motif of the poor immigrant. The characters are shown, in each case, as the inevitable products of the civilization that created them; yet each has individuality and living warmth. Readers of Purse Strings will be delighted to find how far Mrs. Stern has developed in her second novel, without losing the vividness and economy which the critics found so unusual in her first.

Murder Mansion

by HERMAN LANDON
author of THE GRAY PHANTOM

An inexplicable murder is committed in a mansion already dark with the shadow of a crime of a century ago. Mysteries multiply until——!

AN old New York house, impregnable with memories and secrets, is the principal setting of Herman Landon's new mystery novel, Murder Mansion. The shadow of a crime committed a century ago hovers over the old residence on Fifth Avenue, darkening the lives of its occupants and projecting its evil influence into the era of motor cars and skyscrapers.

As you open the book you find yourself removed into a world of musty secrets and wicked conspiracies, the scene being dominated by a man who, although long since dead, still governs the lives of the characters in the story. There is a murder within impregnable walls. There is an ancient piano which, of its own accord, as it seems, plays a melody associated with tragic events in the past. There is a valet who brushes clothes, reads palms and solves riddles that seem impenetrable.

Then there is a key, an immense key that doesn't seem to fit into any lock. It is the outward symbol of a mystery that cuts deep into the lives of several people.

August $2.00

The publishers are happy to announce for January, 1929, THE MARSHALL MURDER AND OTHER CASES OF DETECTIVE DUFF, by Harvey O'Higgins. This original detective, following the "psychological trail" of his victims, provides a novel theme for the author's ever skillful pen.

Second Cabin

by MARY HEATON VORSE

The thrills, the humor, the irony and the desperate struggle concentrated in ten breathless days of an ocean passage.

IN the second cabin of an Atlantic liner bound for New York, many things can happen in ten days. And in Mrs. Vorse's Second Cabin, a bewildering variety of things actually do happen to her odd collection of passengers, representing every possible age, nationality, sensibility, aspiration, purpose and conflict of purpose. And everybody sees what is happening to everybody else, or tries to.

The Second Cabin is like a small town with the fronts of the houses taken away and the "Goods" watching the "Bads." The Second Cabin fights the First Cabin, and gets into rows with the Third Cabin, whose girls it steals. Then a storm blows up, and the ship's lights are extinguished—a sardonic hint of the imminence of death. In the face of danger the "Goods" and the "Bads" exchange rôles, for everybody is too busy with stark reality to trouble about disguises. The ship's engines throb a roaring accompaniment. And in the midst of it, two lovers make a discovery.

Second Cabin is the most ironic piece of human drama, and the most dramatic piece of irony, that the book world has seen for many moons. In the unique setting of this novel, the breathless speed of its crowded events becomes convincing as well as enthralling.

Applause

by BETH BROWN

The queen of the Burlesque Show is loved by all men but she herself is in love with Applause.

A QUEEN of Burlesque was Kitty Darling, the big-hipped, big-bosomed, honey blonde. She grew up in Burlesque from the honky-tonk days on New York's Bowery to the present-day small-time show in the city slums or in the sticks.

Burlesque is crude, rude, raw, red hot, spicy. So was Kitty. Burlesque sports its Garter Night, Amateur Night, Stag Show, Undress Numbers. Kitty was a perfect mistress of all these ceremonies. Burlesque is the second rung from the bottom of the show-game ladder. Those who perform upon that rung must be daring. Kitty Darling was.

Kitty's Eddie was up in Sing Sing—because of Kitty. Jo King, the comic—he always made one word of his name and never failed to add No Joking,— Joe loved her too. Hitch loved her. Slim Vermont loved her. Reilly loved her. All men loved her. There was something fascinating and wonderful about Kitty. Kitty, being vain, liked having all men love her. But there was only one thing that Kitty really loved and that was—APPLAUSE.

Then April was born to Kitty, born backstage while the show was going on out front. Kitty loved April. But she also loved applause. She had been fighting for applause ever since those Bowery burlesque days. She could not have April—and applause too. So she——

But that is the story of Kitty Darling, Queen of Burlesque.

Headlines

by MILDRED GILMAN author of COUNT TEN

A Novel of the Tabloid Age. With an ingenious device never before used in literature, Mrs. Gilman makes reality more thrilling than the headlines.

MURDERS and suicides and such tragedies really do happen! Perhaps you read the tabloids with a sceptical smile, but in Mrs. Gilman's new novel you will see their rasping melodramas in a setting which is unmistakably the real world. The scene is a new real estate development on Staten Island. The characters are half-Americanized foreigners—Finns, Italians, Germans, Irish—with all their loves and hates and tragedies. When the tabloid encounters the apparently ordinary lives of these apparently simple people, it tells the story somewhat as follows:

Son Slays Dad. Mother of Twenty-two Tries to End All. Kill Van Kull Yields Mystery Body. Wealthy Society Woman Adopts Italian Tot. Tidal Wave Deals Destruction to Cottagers.

But Mrs. Gilman beats the ballyhooers at their own game. She tells the same stories: murders, floods, elopements, suicides, but she makes reality not only far more convincing, but also far more thrilling and moving than stereotyped sensation. With rare sympathetic imagination she pictures the eventful lives of these immigrants and their children:—their struggle to become Americans and their interpretation of their adopted country through the tabloid headlines. Humor flows gently through her narrative, even when passion runs high and tragedy gathers its forces.

The result is a triumph of drama over melodrama, of imagination over convention, of hand-made passion over machine-made sensation.

Ryder

by DJUNA BARNES

With Jurgen, Tom Jones, Falstaff and Casanova, Ryder is a master of cuckoldry, a dealer of justice and a doughty warrior.

THIS story tells how Wendell Ryder loved all women and understood all things; how he dared to make no compromises and cared to brook no restrictions; how he brought pain to those he loved most and how they loved him more for it; how three unforgettably tragic human lives were bent to his willfulness; how he jousted wisely and wenched with beauty.

It tells how all these things brought about the eternal damnation of his soul, and, what is more important, the fulfillment of his existence as a man of five senses and three dimensions.

Fancy is here; the fancy that illumines a story of muddled existence and lifts it out of time and place into a universality that is epic. Wisdom is here, giving pause to our knowledge of the limitations of human understanding. Tenderness is here, making of an almost unbelievably and poignantly unbearable situation a fact and a beauty that encompasses compassion. Humor fills and informs this book with laughter that is deeper than the laughter of our time.

This edition will be limited to three thousand copies.

The Son of Man

THE STORY OF JESUS

by EMIL LUDWIG
author of NAPOLEON

The biographer of the Man of War now gives us the history of the Prince of Peace. The book has the simplicity of greatness. From page to page it accumulates power until, at the end, when Jesus suffers on the cross, we feel that we have lived for a span of years on those spiritual heights where the trivialities of every-day life sink to their true insignificant proportions.

The prelude is one of the finest historical essays ever written. It surveys the Jewish life of the time, the far corners of the Roman Empire, the intellectual life, and the forerunners of Jesus among Jewish and Gentile philosophers. Though the name of Jesus is never mentioned in these first fifty pages, they are heavy with his presence, and every line seems to point to his coming.

Ludwig distinguishes clearly between the two great periods of the life of Jesus: the early period, when he first forsook the carpenter's bench and went about humbly preaching the "glad tidings," and the later period when he was filled with the consciousness of a Messianic mission and when the shadow of Calvary began to fall across his path. This distinction clarifies much that has been confused and reveals a seeming inconsistency in the teachings of Jesus as a natural process of growth under the blows and buffetings of experience.

The translation by Eden and Cedar Paul reads like an original work in English by a writer of the first rank. The Rembrandt drawings are beautifully reproduced, and their harmony with the spirit of the text confirms the reader's impression of the lofty conception which Mr. Ludwig has preserved throughout.

Some Quotations from Ludwig's Latest Masterpiece

JESUS, NOT CHRIST

"This book deals with Jesus, and has not a word to say about Christ. The author does not meddle with theology; that arose later, and he does not pretend to understand it. He tells the story as if the tremendous consequences of the life he describes were unknown to him—as they were unknown to Jesus, and unwilled. . . . When any reference is made to the miracles, they are interpreted naturalistically, for I am writing history and building up a picture of human characters."

THE INNER LIFE

"My aim is to portray the inner life of the prophet. What interests us here is not his later influence, exercised through the instrumentality of others, but the world of his own feelings. The developments of that world of self-feeling, the aims and motives of a leader, his struggles and weaknesses and disappointments; the great spiritual battle between self-assertion and humility, between responsibility and discouragement, between the claims of his mission and his longing for personal happiness—these must be described. A prophet is portrayed, a man greater than all his contemporaries."

JERUSALEM WAITING

"Night still broods in the halls of the temple. All are asleep; Jews and Gentiles; sages, beggars and rich men; priests and people; pride and wisdom. Nevertheless, hatred of the Roman conquerors smoulders in the heart of the people. Even while the conquered are sleeping and while hate is in abeyance in their relaxed limbs, still through the dreams of men and women alike looms faith in the one God. 'He will return as King of the Jews and Lord of the world!'"

Meet General Grant

by W. E. WOODWARD
author of GEORGE WASHINGTON

The man — not the myth. Woodward's biography of Grant is even better than his George Washington.

GENERAL ULYSSES S. GRANT hated war! At West Point he was an indifferent student, far below the average in academic standard and conduct, and described by his officers as a negligent, lazy cadet.

He was cast for the part of Desdemona in an amateur performance of Othello given by his regiment when he was a young officer.

He called the Mexican War a piece of wholesale robbery on the part of the United States. He said that he took part in it only because he lacked the moral courage to resign his commission.

He was regarded in his native town as the village numskull. He disgraced himself as a petty officer by his outrageous drinking. He made a hopeless failure as a business man during the few years that he left the army to try his hapless fortunes in civil life. Shabby, incompetent, trying pathetically to be a success though every detail of his appearance bespoke failure, he would amble down the street while all the neighbors shook their heads and murmured—"poor Grant!"

Then came the Civil War. . . .

A hero worth the respect of the intelligent and mature.

For the first time Americans may meet General Grant as a man and not as a myth. That, indeed, is what they learned to expect from Mr. Woodward when George Washington: the Image and the Man, created a national sensation two years ago. Mr. Woodward has a new conception of biography. He believes that national heroes have too long been the day-dreams of the race, embodying the aspirations and hungers of the average man. Mr. Woodward's heroes are made of different clay.

Meet General Grant is a masterpiece of the Woodward method in biography. The man Grant looms in bold silhouette against the lively historical background and stands head and shoulders above other men. If Mr. Woodward sickens of a diet of saccharine heroism, he nevertheless has his own ideal of a manly hero, a man of flesh and blood and brains and rugged determination.

"A great general and an incredibly poor business man," says Grant's biographer in a passage typical of the incisive terseness of the book. "The liquor habit pursued him all his life, and profoundly affected his career. He was a pacifist at heart who became a world-famous soldier against his will. He had a reverence for success, for cleverness and wealth that amounted almost to a religion. It was this—and loyalty to his scheming friends—that made his presidential career such a ghastly fiasco."

Mr. Woodward has the rare wisdom to understand Grant the failure, as well as to appreciate Grant the success.

Martin Van Buren

by DENIS TILDEN LYNCH author of Boss Tweed

An Epoch and a Man —the harum-scarum career of our eighth President.

WHAT Boss Tweed did for the Tammany machine, Van Buren did for our national political machine. Van Buren's model of 1836, in which he rode to the White House, is still used, without change, by Republicans and Democrats.

His matchless genius for political intrigue was early recognized. At the age of eighteen—three years before he could vote—he was delegate to the Congressional Convention. His soaring career has more glamor than a tale of Oriental splendor and fantasy. Starting as the poorly educated son of a struggling farmer and tavern keeper, he became the ruler of a great nation and the guest of European potentates.

As we turn the pages dance music fills the drawing rooms, rapiers flash and clash, brawls arise in taverns, quiet streets suddenly teem with red-handed rioters, faithless servants loot the public coffers and heroes bleed that democracy's wounds may heal. Some of the notable figures include the Clintons, the first John Jacob Astor, the Livingstons, the Adamses, Lafayette, Napoleon, Irving, Louis Philippe, Victoria—then England's girl queen—Citizen Genêt, Thomas Addis Emmett, the Gallatins, Webster, Monroe, Jackson, the Widow Timberlake, Light Horse Harry Lee and others of the Virginia Dynasty on whose ruins Van Buren erected his Albany Regency; and finally, Thomas Jefferson himself, whose faith Van Buren professed and profaned.

The volume is profusely illustrated with rare old prints of the famous and infamous characters with whom we live on terms of intimacy, thanks to Mr. Lynch's contagious imagination.

On My Way

by ART YOUNG author of Trees at Night

The genial memoirs of the famous cartoonist illustrated with his drawings of the outstanding figures of the past twenty years.

ART YOUNG'S biting cartoons have dramatized the social crises of the past twenty years in the pages of nearly all our periodicals. He has been a fighter, crossing swords with many of the outstanding figures of this century, and marching shoulder to shoulder with others. Yet he is known as one of the best-loved and most genial philosophers of America.

Fully illustrated with Young's immortal cartoons, which even without the text would constitute an artistic record and a social history in themselves, this book is nevertheless a personal story, sprinkled with comment, anecdote and confession. The great figures of American industrial and political life are pictured here in the pen and ink exaggerations which made the artist famous. But he describes them with the humor and humanity which made him beloved even by the victims of his delightfully malicious art.

This beautiful volume, postponed from the spring season, can now be definitely announced. It will make a fitting and graceful gift book, vital in content, charmingly casual in style, and graphic and unforgettable in its illustrations.

The Life of Lord Curzon

by THE RIGHT HONORABLE THE EARL OF RONALDSHAY

Being the authorized biography of George Nathaniel Marquess Curzon of Kedleston, K. G.

WHEN the first volume appeared, this distinguished work was acclaimed as an outstanding biography of the 1928 season, and as a contribution to history as well as to the world of letters. Volumes II and III, dealing with the years 1905–25, are of even deeper interest to contemporary readers than Volume I.

During these twenty years when the historical scene was seething with action, Lord Curzon was always in the thick of events. He was Viceroy of India in the heyday of the British Empire; he was a Cabinet member in the portentous years of the Great War; he was Foreign Secretary during those critical post-war years when foreign policy was the outstanding problem of Britain, when the League of Nations, in its formative years, was on trial as a force in international affairs, and when all Europe, in the throes of social transition and upheaval, looked to the foreign policies of the Great Powers, and especially of Britain, to determine its fate in the decades to come.

Under the brilliant pen of Lord Ronaldshay, himself a distinguished statesman and man of letters, and an intimate of Lord Curzon, this history of a man becomes also the history of an age, a book sure to grow in significance and value as the years pass.

The Interpreter: Geddes

by AMELIA DEFRIES

The most fruitful thinker of Great Britain—scientist, sociologist, educator, public servant — is introduced to the public in an illuminating biography.

TWENTY years ago, in his Pillars of Society, Mr. A. G. Gardiner singled Patrick Geddes out as perhaps the most fruitful thinker in Great Britain. With the reticence of the true man of science, Geddes has allowed his influence to spread and his audience to widen without the usual fanfare of publicity.

Known as biologist, sociologist, educator, and social geographer, Geddes has held a chair in botany at St. Andrews University, organized masques and pageants, planned more than fifty cities in Europe and Asia, built an extra-mural college at Montpellier, France, planned the new University of Jerusalem, and written the biography of the eminent Indian physicist, Sir Jagagis Chandra Bose.

Because so much of Patrick Geddes' life has gone into these myriad activities, and so little into written exposition, the man's personality reveals itself in his work and conversation rather than in books. Like Socrates his influence is personal and direct. The Interpreter: Geddes is a particularly useful introduction to his mode of thought and activity because Miss Defries has wisely laid her emphasis on the more intimate aspects of the man. She has caught his tone and gesture admirably; she gives us many characteristic anecdotes and sidelights; each page gives a hint of the boundless wealth and energy of Geddes' mind. Mr. Walter Fuller used to say that Geddes needed a Boswell; and in Miss Defries he has found a competent substitute.

Henry The Eighth

by FRANCIS HACKETT

A Personal History—Revealing why Henry had so many wives, and other state secrets of this royal Don Juan.

EVERYBODY knows Henry the Eighth as England's Royal Bluebeard, who loved early and often (and late), who thumbed his nose at popes, who executed wives and peers and public ministers, and who, in spite of his selfishness and self-indulgence, was statesman enough to lay the foundations of the great modern power which Britain was to become.

Under the fire of Mr. Hackett's brilliant pen, the legend becomes reality, the libertine becomes the statesman, the fabled Bluebeard becomes the calculating dynast, casting off one queen after another when she has failed to realize his governing ambition, a sound male heir. In those days people saw the hand of God in the frustration of Henry's ambition; the wise reader of today, with a hint from Mr. Hackett, will make a different interpretation.

The book is full of actual conversations which took place between Henry and his intimates, conversations which the gossips of his day would have given their eyes to hear. For these Mr. Hackett the writer is indebted to the scrupulous researches of Mr. Hackett the scholar. (These researches have delayed publication, but the book can be definitely announced for this fall.)

Yet Mr. Hackett has written, not a history but a story, with the unchanging drama of human nature as its main concern. Before you read the book you feel that Hackett is the ideal biographer for Henry. When you finish it, you know that both Henry and Hackett have outdone themselves.

The Devil and Cotton Mather

by KATHERINE ANNE PORTER

Probing deeply into the morbid fanaticism and life-long emotional debauch that made Cotton Mather a witch-burner.

THIS study in sadism is one of the most remarkable psychological portraits in the whole field of biography. Miss Porter's chief concern is with the prolonged emotional debauch that was Cotton Mather's hidden life, expressing itself outwardly in the cruelty, superstition, and intolerance which made the old divine famous as the savage witch-burner of colonial history.

Luckily he kept a diary. One page of this amazing document reveals—all unconsciously—more than a psycho-analyst can draw from a reluctant patient in six months of daily sessions. To so shrewd a student of human nature as Miss Porter, this diary is a rich mine of material for treatment in the modern biographical manner. She discovers in Mather a life-long death obsession and the secret practice of diabolism. She explains his witch-burning orgies, comparing them with the outbursts of the religious revivalist of our own day.

As a narrative of the religious ecstasy and righteousness, the bigotry and superstition of the Salem witchcraft mania, as a psychological study of a morbidly diabolical figure, and as a portrait of a conscience that found in cruelty a means to self-approbation, this biography of Cotton Mather challenges the imagination, and provokes the thoughtful mind to speculate a little longer on the mystery of human nature.

The Plays of Aristophanes

With Sixteen Page Illustrations in Full Color and Sixteen Black and White Sketches and Decorations
by JEAN DE BOSSCHERE

THE greatest of all the ancient satirists, Aristophanes wrote his plays to express his vision of life, his delight in life itself behind the screen of contemporary events. For us he is the representative of the old comedy; yet his genius not only includes but also transcends the old comedy. His true and highest faculty is revealed by these wonderful bits of lyrical writing in which he soars above everything and moves to laughter and tears. Of all modern poets and dramatists, Shakespeare alone can be compared to him.

Of the forty-three comedies admitted as genuine, eleven only are existent:—The Knights, The Acharnians, Peace, Lysistrata, The Clouds, The Wasps, The Birds, The Frogs, The Thesmophoriazuse, The Ecclesiazuse, Plutus. The present edition includes all these plays, rendered in a beautiful and unabridged translation. The translator is unknown, but the text originally appeared under the imprint of the Athenian Society in London in the nineties.

This edition is strictly limited to two thousand and fifty sets of which two thousand are for sale at $25.00. In format it will conform with the style of limited editions established by this company. The illustrations by Jean de Bosschere are among his most interesting work. This work will not be reprinted.

The Emperor Jones

by Eugene O'Neill Illustrated by Alexander King

THIS famous play by Eugene O'Neill is here offered in a special limited edition, in every way worthy of the position which the piece holds in literary history. The edition is uniquely bound and printed on special watermarked rag paper. The typography is designed by S. A. Jacobs, now noted as the designer of the limited edition of Strange Interlude. The eight striking illustrations in two colors are by Alexander King. Mr. O'Neill has said that if he himself had been a great artist he could not have achieved a finer synchronization between play and pictures.

It is hardly necessary to recall the play itself, now hailed as a masterpiece by two continents, and performed in half a dozen languages. Perhaps no one has ever written so powerful a study of how a mortal fear can strip a man of that illusion of sophisticated security with which civilization clothes her naked children, and can hurl him back into the clutches of savage superstition and devastating terror. For those who can face so stark a truth without flinching, The Emperor Jones is a classic of world literature.

This edition is strictly limited to seven hundred and seventy-five copies, numbered and signed by the author, of which seven hundred and fifty are for sale at $15.00.

The Decameron of Giovanni Boccaccio

Translated by John Payne

With an Introduction
by the late Sir Walter Raleigh

BOCCACCIO'S most famous work, existing for over six hundred years, is now a classic in every civilized country. The whole spirit of amorous intrigue, physical adventure, gentle humor and audacious love is contained in the One Hundred Tales of Boccaccio

"This work," writes Francis Hueffer, "marks in a certain sense the rise of Italian prose. . . . Boccaccio for the first time speaks a new idiom, capable of rendering all the shades of feeling from the coarse laugh of cynicism to the sigh of hopeless love."

The translation used here is the celebrated one made by John Payne. Now the reader can be certain of having not only an unabridged text, but also a most charming interpretation of the original. We have added a brilliant essay on Boccaccio by Sir Walter Raleigh.

As a new addition to the Black and Gold Library, this book will make one of the most beautiful and satisfactory editions of the Decameron available in one volume.

The Icosameron

or

The History of Edward and Elizabeth

by JACQUES CASANOVA DE SEINGALT

Translated and Edited by Arundell del Re

UNTIL now these matchless tales of adventure have been known only to collectors and literati, although Casanova's name is famous through his Memoirs and the writings of other authors.

The Icosameron relates the experiences of a brother and sister who return to their native home in February 1615, after having left it in March 1533, for a journey across the ocean in the ship of the Lord High Admiral. (All the historical particulars and the names mentioned are correct.) At the news of their return, the Lord and Lady of the Manor express a desire to hear an account of their travels, which lasts for twenty days; hence the title.

Their adventures are marvelous and no short description can do justice to the many details described. Parts of the book are obviously satirical, and show the influence of Swift, but its interest lies far more in the extraordinary insight it gives into the breadth of Casanova's culture and knowledge.

The publishers consider this one of the most important additions made to the now well-established Black and Gold Library. The very rarity of the original makes it unique, and the selections from the five volumes have been done into English with the greatest skill. Nothing of any real consequence, adventures or personality, has been omitted.

Shorter Novels of Herman Melville

With an Introduction
by Raymond Weaver

THESE stories from the pen of the author of Moby Dick are just coming into their own in the appreciation of literary connoisseurs. In making this volume the first American addition to the Black and Gold Library, the publishers believe that the stories will reach a wider circle, and will be loved for their imagination and high romance.

Of one of them E. M. Forster wrote: "For a real villain we must turn to a story of Melville's called Billy Budd. . . . It is a remote, unearthly episode, and should be read both for its own beauty and as an introduction to Melville's other works."

Dr. Weaver's masterly introduction adds to the value of the collection, analyzing Melville's contribution to American letters, and presenting the background of the author's life, from which the stories grew.

Man the Miracle Maker

The Story of Inventions

by HENDRIK WILLEM VAN LOON author of THE STORY OF MANKIND, etc.

HERE is something really new under the ancient sun—Van Loon's story for boys and girls of how man made himself king over all his fellow creatures.

The Survival of the Weakest

To begin with, man was the beggar in the kingdom of living things. Puny in size, weak in muscle, slow of foot, naked and vulnerable, he looked like the Cinderella of the earth's family. But now the beggar is undisputed master over all his fellow creatures, and has left his richer brothers so far behind that they can never catch up with him. How did he do it?

Van Loon Offers Theory of Self-Made Man

Here is a puzzle which set Hendrik Van Loon thinking, with the same delightful results to his readers that that whirlwind process always brings about. Van Loon lays the miracle at the door of inventions, inventions by which man constructed for himself feet swifter than the rabbit's (i. e. wheels), warmth securer than the polar bear's (i. e. fire, clothing, and shelter), claws and fangs sharper than the lion's (i. e. arrows, knives, and finally gunpowder), muscles a million times stronger than any beast can boast (i. e. water power, electric power, steam power). The bear, the rabbit, the insect, the lion, had only one or two special gifts apiece to help them to self-preservation; man has thousands, and he has made them all himself.

Whatever Will He Do Next?

We are still only on the outskirts of the Stone Age, says Van Loon. In the centuries and the millenniums to come, man will probably subdue the entire visible universe, unless his common sense lags so far behind his inventiveness that he kills himself off in a series of terrible wars.

The Book Itself An Invention

This book about inventions is itself an invention, another demonstration of the daring imagination and philosophy of which the human brain is capable when it is inhabited by such challenging curiosity, and such whimsical originality as Van Loon's. The Van Loon drawings are here too, one hundred and fifty of them, each attesting in another form to the triumph of ingenuity. Seldom have boys and girls been offered such a tonic for their minds and such a feast for their imaginations.

Dreiser Looks at Russia

by THEODORE DREISER

A picture of Soviet Russia as unforgettable as those of Czarist Russia by the writers of the generation of Dostoievsky and Chekov.

THAT incorrigible individualist, Theodore Dreiser, visits Russia at the invitation of the Soviet Government and views its working demonstration of the Communist State. Stranger still, this Dostoievsky from Chicago visits the land of Dostoievsky, to find imitation Chicagos springing up all over its limitless miles.

Dreiser finds Russia a strange mixture of Oriental color, staunch Communism and a determined effort to pattern itself in some ways after the United States. He tells us what he does not like as well as what he likes. He gives us a forthright, truthful picture of women and the sex question, literature and art, religion, propaganda, the peasant, and a striking comparison of the Russian and the American temperaments. When he is intoxicated by the spots of eastern color he gives us pictures as brilliant as an Oriental rug, as miraculous as if they had been conjured up by the rubbing of Aladdin's lamp.

Dreiser was able to do for Russia what none of her own sons could do—he interprets her newly stirring aspirations with the sympathy of a temperament strongly akin to the Russian, with the experience of an American who understands some phases of the would-be Russia better than the Russians themselves, and with that brooding wisdom which makes the reader of his novels feel that Dreiser has lived a very long time, and understands things in which the rest of us are yet children.

Frontiers of Hope

by HORACE M. KALLEN author of WHY RELIGION, etc.

A philosopher travels through Europe and Palestine and describes the Jewish life of a new era under a variety of flags and fortunes.

KALLEN the philosopher wanders through Europe and Palestine and ponders on the sights which Kallen the Jew sees. West of the Caucasus he finds the Jew as the new sick man of Europe, but in the flowering homeland of Palestine he discovers the unquenchable stream of Jewish life gushing forth into new channels, and spreading out into new plains and uplands.

This philosopher sees not only the Jew, but the Jew as he must adjust himself to the changing European scene. He describes the champions of the new social orders—the Mussolinis, the Stalins, the Pilsudskis,—and how they are reshaping the life and labors of the ancient peoples of the new Europe.

The book harmonizes Kallen's many gifts into an integrated whole. Now he is the traveler, picturing the colorful panorama of metropolis and countryside, palace and market place. Now he is the sympathetic human being, throbbing with the poetry and tragedy of his people. Now he is the philosopher, viewing the human drama as one might view it from another planet. Now he is the current historian, analyzing the social trends in Europe, as he has done so brilliantly for those of America. Now he is the psychologist, seeing the universal laws of human nature behind the scenes of action. Mr. Kallen has distinguished himself in all of these fields, and Frontiers of Hope gleans his many harvests to enrich its pages.

Persian Pictures

by GERTRUDE BELL
author of LIFE AND LETTERS OF GERTRUDE BELL

Gertrude Bell's first impression of the Orient — describing its mystery and beauty with the contagious ardor of youth.

THROUGH her Letters, published in the spring of 1928, Gertrude Bell is now widely known to American readers as the Englishwoman who ventured into the heart of the Arabian desert, where no European woman had ever before set foot, to become the beloved friend of the Arabs, the kingmaker and counsellor of Oriental monarchs, and the peer of archæologists, art critics, scholars and explorers. In a man these achievements would have been more than remarkable; in a woman, in that land where women were held in low esteem, they were nothing short of miraculous.

In Persian Pictures the girl Gertrude Bell gives us her first impression of the East. "The East is full of secrets—no one understands their value better than the Oriental," she writes. And the reader travels with her as the dazzling panorama of eastern mystery and beauty, of music and swinging lanterns and nightingales in moonlit gardens, passes before her delighted young eyes for the first time.

This book of travelers' tales, in every way worthy to rank with Kinglake's Eothen, fills the one gap in her life of which no letters are extant. The sketches were written originally for her own satisfaction, and she consented reluctantly when the London publishers, sensing their literary value, and their intoxicating zest for the new and the strange, begged to be allowed to publish them.

The Big Ditch

by ERIC WALROND
author of TROPIC DEATH

The heroic story of the building of the Panama Canal; a gigantic adventure in the colorful setting of the tropics.

THE building of the Panama Canal, that gigantic triumph of engineering over the most stupendous physical difficulties, lends itself to vivid telling as a human interest story. Strangely enough, though other accounts of the feat have been written, Mr. Walrond is the first author to bring out the drama of this as yet unsung epic of human heroism.

He tells of revolutions, riots and the stirrings of racial consciousness among the varied nationalities engaged in the work. He tells of the titanic achievements of science, of human labor, of engineering. He describes the life and death battle against disease and insect pests which in that tropical climate present a more formidable front than armies of mere men. In this book, as in Tropic Death, the atmospheric quality is enriched by the author's memories of his impressionable boyhood years spent on the Isthmus.

The Big Ditch is a colorful and dramatic, yet careful and authentic work. Mr. Walrond's high ability has been recognized not only by the critics and the public, but also by the Trustees of the Guggenheim Fund, who have just granted him one of their fellowships for further research and writing in the West Indies and the countries bordering on the Caribbean.

The Sexes

by DOROTHY PARKER author of ENOUGH ROPE, SUNSET GUN, etc.

The sophistication of our day reaches its height in these satires, which exhilarate the tired business man without insulting his intelligence.

MRS. PARKER needs no introduction. If you missed her in The New Yorker or Vanity Fair, you found her in Life, or in The New Republic. If you make it a rule never to read magazines, you have chuckled over her verse in Enough Rope and Sunset Gun. And here, incidentally, is an indication of her wide appeal. The sophisticated, the light-hearted, the social minded; the desultory magazine reader and the conscientious bookshop browser—all read Dorothy Parker.

Now you may enjoy with entire respectability the spicy pleasure of laughing at your fellow human beings, and particularly at those who have irritated you most on occasions when you had to be polite. The society lady who is woefully sorry for herself, the complacent bourgeoise who believes that Fred really would eat steak for dinner every night if you gave it to him, the bewildering dialogue of the flapper and her boy friend, the solemn hilarity of the lady who is lit from within—all these and many more, which you meant to keep in magazine form, and which you somehow lost, are enclosed for safe keeping within the two covers of this volume.

Ever since the appearance of Gentlemen Prefer Blondes, the critics have recognized that current American satire can be more than hilariously amusing, that it can be literature and social commentary as well. Mrs. Parker's satirical sketches have been rightly classed in this exclusive category.

Innocent Bystanding

by FRANK SULLIVAN
author of THE LIFE AND TIMES OF MARTHA HEPPLETHWAITE

A collection of Sullivan's sketches, which make absurdity into a fine art.

FROM time to time Sullivan emerges from his retirement to make some pithy comment on the Farce Called Life. Of such searching blasts, to use Mr. Sullivan's own words, is Innocent Bystanding composed.

The book contains a chapter on the Care of the Caddis Worm, another chapter devoted to the economic situation of the laundries in strongly pro-Klan states since kluxism began to wane, and several chapters on Love, the new ethereal Force discovered by Madame Curie and Thomas A. Edison, which Mr. Sullivan thinks will revolutionize the world.

Frank Sullivan is one of the few humorists who have the knack of making their readers laugh without feeling mean. His gift for absurdity lies in his genius for choosing familiar backgrounds and poking incongruous and amazing situations into their midst. In these sketches collected from The New York World and elsewhere, the reader may enjoy in lamplight leisure the spicy humor which he had to gobble with his morning breakfast or wedge in between the shoulders of his fellow subway travelers.

Gestalt Psychology

by DR. WOLFGANG KÖHLER
author of THE MENTALITY OF APES

Dr. Köhler's first book on his new theory, an epoch-making discovery in psychology.

WITH Freud and Watson, Dr. Köhler completes the triumvirate who have added a measurable cubit to the stature of psychology in the past two decades, bringing it to the mature growth of a full-fledged science. Dr. Köhler's experiments on animals, especially apes, are already famous. But his new Gestalt Psychology is probably the contribution by which he will be remembered. It considers each psychological situation as a whole, and lays the basis for function-study (as distinguished from structure-study) in this youngest of the sciences. Thanks to Dr. Köhler, we now have the beginnings of a physiology of psychology.

Gestalt Psychology is the first book which this pioneer has written on his epoch-making theory in any language. Avoiding technical terms where simple English will serve the same purpose, this book can be readily understood and appreciated by an intelligent layman with some background in the subject.

"Dr. Köhler is winning the serious respect of the judicious and unexcitable," says one of the recent standard textbooks. Leaders of thought of the various schools of psychology have recognized the implications of Gestalt Psychology for the next two decades of scientific progress in their field. Those who wish to keep abreast of the new developments in this science cannot afford to miss Dr. Köhler's new book.

This work, postponed from the spring season, can now be definitely announced for fall publication.

Sadism and Masochism

by DR. WILHELM STEKEL author of IMPOTENCE IN THE MALE, etc.

The fourth of Dr. Stekel's important series on the abnormalities of instincts.

IN the opinion not only of psychoanalysts, but of the most eminent neurologists and students of human conduct the world over, Dr. Stekel's great studies analyze the instincts and emotions and particularly sex, more thoroughly and with greater simplicity and insight than any other work that has ever been written.

Sadism and Masochism is the fourth part of Dr. Stekel's great work, Disorders of the Instincts and Emotions. In this particular volume he presents his theories on Sadism and Masochism as the result of his experiments. He discusses the nature of the abnormal instinct and its many manifestations, and gives the reader an authoritative explanation of the various impulses, their actions and reactions, together with a careful description of their effects on society and morals. As in the previous volumes of the series, the author amplifies his conclusions with full accounts of case histories. The translation is by Louise Brink.

Because of the intimate character of this general analysis, and the number of cases cited, it is considered expedient by the publishers and by Dr. Stekel to restrict the sale of the book to professional circles. It may be sold only to physicians, lawyers, ministers and educators.

The Story of Health — by RICHARD H. HOFFMAN, M.D.

A readable and gripping account of man's quest for health through the ages and the growth of his greatest ally—science.

THIRTY years have been added to man's life span in the last thirty centuries. Will twenty years more be added in this generation? No field of knowledge can challenge the imagination, or tease the brain to speculation as can this, which links us in a common interest and a common quest with our ancestors for hundreds of generations.

Dr. Hoffman tells the story of this quest. We see the witch doctors at the dawn of history; we hoard with Egyptian priests pseudo-secrets of health that give them power over kings; we walk the sands with Greek experimenters; we march with Christian monks through the streets of plague-stricken cities; we stand before the alchemists' crucibles; we follow the exhilarating discoveries that have doubled the life of man in three centuries, and promise to add twenty years to all born in our times.

With the dawn of modern science "the skeleton comes out of the closet." Then Dr. Harvey shows what makes life go round. "A Scratch in Time" heralds the enlistment of vaccination in the life-salvaging army. The glands are discovered as the regulators of life. The X-ray makes the body transparent. Finally, "the soul reveals itself," in a chapter entitled "From fraud to Freud."

As an outstanding physician, Dr. Hoffman has the necessary scientific equipment for his task. As a writer of rare historical background and delightful lucidity of style, he gives the layman a comprehensive and absorbing narrative of man's greatest struggle.

From Magic to Science — by CHARLES SINGER, M.D.

The story of the human mind and its struggle to understand the universe.

THE story of human reason may well claim to be the most important of the summarizing histories of human progress and human experience which have been so popular in recent years. This book, beginning with the far away centuries when men could explain the universe only in terms of magic, and tracing the development of the scientific outlook which has gradually been replacing magic, is an account of the pre-natal period, the birth, childhood, and adolescence of reason. You may add the "manhood of reason," if you believe that it has at the present day indeed reached maturity.

The book will help you to settle that, and similar philosophical questions, because it deals with so much more than mere facts. Stimulating alike to the intellect and the imagination, it considers the historical relation of religion and science, contrasts the superstitious mind and the scientific mind, and discusses the meaning of the scientific attitude toward life, as the reaction of the equipment of the human mind to the universe in which man lives and moves.

Though written by a most distinguished scholar, this book is thoroughly comprehensible to the layman. As a fascinating story, as an illuminating history of a most important aspect of civilization, and as a philosophical essay, it answers the very questions that the thinking men and women of this century are constantly asking themselves.

Cawdor

by ROBINSON JEFFERS author of TAMAR, ROAN STALLION, etc.

The latest work of the great poet who expresses the contemporary dilemma and the universal yearning.

ROBINSON JEFFERS is now definitely recognized as one of the foremost poets of America, not only of his generation but of all generations. He is discussed, not only in reviews as his books appear, but wherever the important tendencies of American poetry and American letters over a period of years are surveyed and appraised. From England as well as from America, from such critics as Havelock Ellis and George Sterling, the song of praise resounds. Babette Deutsch, the poet, writes: "This reviewer, reading Jeffers, felt somewhat as Keats professed to feel, on looking into Chapman's Homer."

"I think of Cawdor," Robinson Jeffers wrote in a letter, "as making a third with Tamar and The Women at Point Sur. In Tamar human affairs were seen looking westward, against the ocean; in Point Sur looking upward, minimized to ridicule against the stars; in Cawdor they look eastward, against the earth, reclaiming a little dignity from that association."

The volume will include a variety of shorter poems, narrative and lyrical sketches, embodying, to quote Jeffers again, "the mere common sense of our predicament as passionate bits of earth and water."

There will be a special limited edition of three hundred and seventy-five copies of this book, of which three hundred and fifty will be for sale at the price of ten dollars.

Lotus and Chrysanthemum

Compiled and Edited by JOSEPH LEWIS FRENCH

An anthology of Chinese and Japanese poetry which has won a unique place for itself in carefully selected libraries.

AFTER the enthusiastic greeting which the limited edition of this anthology received, the publishers are glad to announce the issue of the trade edition. The poems cover a range of twenty centuries or more, the most recent being chiefly from the sixteenth century. Among the translators are writers familiar to the general reader, such as Lafcadio Hearn, Witter Bynner, and Ezra Pound, as well as those famous chiefly among Oriental specialists, such as Cranmer-Byng, Arthur Waley, and Shigeyoshi Obata.

"Mr. French has put together a collection opulent of color and of delicate fragrance," said the New York Times on the appearance of the limited edition. With the growing appreciation of the Oriental arts,—painting, sculpture, interior decoration, as well as literature—a collection such as this, discriminating and catholic in its selection of original authors and translators, fills a real need in the libraries of poetry. Mr. French's introduction could stand by itself as a literary essay. Coming as a preface to this volume, it orients the reader, assuring him that he should look in these pages first for pleasure, and second for a wider knowledge of the Oriental timbre. He will find both.

The Immortal Friend

by JIDDU KRISHNAMURTI author of THE KINGDOM OF HAPPINESS, etc.

The Hindu philosopher - poet describes his quest for happiness in soaring flights of poetic imagination.

THROUGHOUT the ages poetry has been the medium by which the seer and the prophet have endeavored to express the experience of the mystic, to tell of the union of the human soul with its Eternal Source. And among modern poets none is more passionate in this quest than Jiddu Krishnamurti. Himself of the East, that fount of mysticism, where men have found contentment by emancipating themselves from the Tyranny of Things, Krishnamurti has already given his philosophy to the amazed western world in his exquisite poem The Search, and in a beautiful prose essay that is really poetry, The Kingdom of Happiness.

In The Immortal Friend happiness is again his theme, and he writes as one who has reached the goal of the eternal quest. Turn inwards, he cries, and in the depth of your own being you will find the joy which no outer circumstance can mar, the peace which no turmoil can shatter. There, too, you will find the Eternal Companion of your dreams, and walk with Him forever.

It is an ancient theme couched in a new form of exquisite beauty, a story of an experience which the author has tried, and found not wanting.

Lucretia Borgia

by ERNITA LASCELLES
author of THE SACRIFICIAL GOAT

A sparkling satirical play based on the romantic and melodramatic career of Lucretia Borgia.

THIS spicy and deliciously satirical melodrama deals with the famous Borgia family and especially with the romantic career of Lucretia Borgia herself.

Caesar Borgia and his sister Lucretia held Rome, and indeed all Italy, in fear and trembling at the end of the fifteenth century. With a host of murderers at their command, they saw to it that their enemies did not live to trouble them for long, and, when murders had to be committed more subtly, there was always the dazzlingly beautiful Lucretia to pass the hemlock, which the victim could never refuse if she offered him the cup with her own fair hand. She was as famed for the number of her husbands as was Henry the Eighth for the number of his wives, but the mortality rate among Lucretia's spouses was even higher.

Out of this material, rich in melodrama, and challenging to the imagination of an enterprising playwright, Miss Lascelles makes a sparkling and sophisticated play. Now it plunges you into horrors, murders, tortures; now it trips with the light wit of delicious satire and daring dialogue.

This play will be produced in New York by Horace Liveright in the fall of 1928.

To be published simultaneously with production $2.00

Propaganda

by EDWARD L. BERNAYS
author of CRYSTALLIZING PUBLIC OPINION

Propaganda, the all-important power, is described by our foremost publicity expert.

PROPAGANDA has become so necessary a part of every idea and organization striving for public acceptance that its possibilities and its limits need to be defined. In this book Mr. Bernays analyzes the relation of this new force to the unprecedented conditions which have called it into being.

He discusses the reasons for propaganda, the new type of propaganda, the new propagandist, and especially the new media—the radio, telephoto, and other epoch-making mechanisms for the transmission of ideas. He approaches the question of public relations from the standpoint of the new psychology, and of the old. Finally he discusses the new trends in big business, social service, education, art, politics, and other forces of present-day life.

The book is the first contribution to the subject of propaganda from the standpoint of theory and practice, by one who has followed both phases. Mr. Bernays has been instrumental in developing the new profession of public relations counsel. Out of an experience drawn from fifteen years of activity with all kinds of individuals and movements seeking public good will, he sets forth the ideas which his creative mind has developed in the course of practical experience.

Strange Bedfellows

by SILAS BENT
author of BALLYHOO

A Review of Politics, Personalities, and the Press.

UNDER Mr. Bent's penetrating searchlight the political scene becomes exciting as a spectacle and intriguing as speculation.

He surveys the high spots of our broad national landscape: Al Smith—the mad stock market—Herbert Hoover, "miracle man"—Andrew Mellon, "our third richest citizen plunging into the political cockpit,"—William Randolph Hearst, "the playboy of the press turning propagandist,"—the religious fanatics, "lobbying for the Lord,"—and the journalistic jazz of "a great news agency appealing to juveniles." The chapters on the newspapers deal with developments that have cropped up since Ballyhoo was written.

The volume falls naturally into three divisions. The first, occupying nearly half the book, deals with politics and political leaders. The second treats of the daily newspaper. The third is called "The Almighty Dollar," and deals with manifestations of the new American religion, as Mr. Bent chooses to call it.

In an election year we can hardly get on without Silas Bent. Readers of his brilliant magazine articles know what to expect when he throws one of his political reels on the screen. In this pungent and original discussion they will once more enjoy Bent's gift for lively story telling, revealing interpretation, and brilliant forecasting, which has on more than one occasion been justified by the course of events.

Doomed Ship

Written in the Sing Sing Death House

by JUDD GRAY

Probably no murder case in the history of our country has been so exploited, falsified and sensationalized, as that of Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray. The vilest of human emotions were aroused: on the one hand a hideous blood lust, on the other a maudlin sentimentality. Decent public opinion revolted: some of it against the press, some against the institution of capital punishment, most against the two sordid figures in the center of the stage.

Gray as an Average Man

The autobiography of Judd Gray is one of the most biting pieces of debunking ever offered to the much bunked American public. In place of lurid melodrama it gives the reader tawdry reality. In place of jazzed-up fiction, it gives him artless truth. By this very contrast the naïve narrative becomes in the hands of the intelligent reader a scorching exposure of sensationalism.

For whatever the press might say, Gray had no illusions about himself, either as hero or as devil. "All this is very average," he writes early in his book, "and very average I considered myself in the brief moments I spent in introspection. As I take my daily walk in the gray concrete pen that is my only chance to drink the sun and air, I realize how set apart an average man can become." And later he speaks of himself as "one of those average Americans that Mencken laughs at."

A Study in Human Nature

Every reader will make his own estimate of the author. Gray's unhappy marriage, his relations with Ruth Snyder, and her almost hypnotic influence over him, the intense religious fervor which seized him after his arrest and carried him through the last black months of his life—all these can be variously interpreted, and a final verdict is almost impossible. Some readers will regard Gray's life as absolutely drab and normal, suddenly hurled into melodrama by an odd twist of circumstance. To others the story will serve as an unconscious revelation of abnormal tendencies, running underground for most of a lifetime, to emerge to the surface in unusually spectacular form. To the psychologist this is a priceless document.

On the whole people will read Gray's life, not to condemn or to condone, but as a study in human nature. It is as such that it is offered to the public.

Publishers' Note

The publishers issue this book only after confirming its authenticity beyond the shadow of a doubt. It was composed in the death cell at Sing Sing, and finished less than an hour before the execution. Gray gave it to his sister, who arranged it for publication. It remains as he wrote it, except for the omission of a few repetitions and occasional incoherent passages. It is by his wish that it is published in book form, and not serialized.

The Future of an Illusion

by SIGMUND FREUD

The sage of Vienna presents the philosophical standpoint of psychoanalysis.

"NO. Science is no illusion. But it would be an illusion to suppose that we could get anywhere else what it cannot give us."

Thus Sigmund Freud concludes his prophecy of the fate of religion and considers the vital question of whether men will ever be willing to depend on science alone to explain the universe and to reconcile them to its ruthlessness. The "illusion" which the sage of Vienna discusses is no other than religion itself.

In this essay he presents the philosophical standpoint of psychoanalysis. For such a revolution in emotion and in conduct as this new science has wrought cannot fail to be accompanied by a similar revolution in philosophy. Freud has already shaken the pattern of individual conduct to its foundations, and thus indirectly influenced the philosophy of the twentieth century no less than Darwin influenced that of the nineteenth. But in this book he states the psychoanalytic philosophy directly, in its individual, its social, and its cosmic aspects. He also corrects the widespread misconception that the psychoanalyst would like to abolish suppressions and unleash the instincts.

Freud brings a message no less startling to the generation which accepts him than that which he brought to the generation which he shocked and stunned not so many years ago. Again he challenges a timid world—this time to courageous and tough-minded thinking, as he once challenged it to courageous and tough-minded living. As he has taught us to forsake childish things and become adults in our conduct, so he urges us to maturity in our philosophy of the cosmos.

When It's Cocktail Time in Cuba

by BASIL WOON

Not a guidebook, but a guide to the delightful sights and sounds, cocktails and cockfights, scenery and señoritas in the tropical luxuriance of Cuba.

RUM, roulette and racing; sugar, cigars and señoritas—these are the ingredients of this effervescent picture of what the tourist does in Cuba, what he sees, and what he drinks.

First, as to what he drinks. Mr. Woon gives the real recipe of the Daïquiri as given to him by Facundo Bacardi himself, maker of "the rum that cured a king and pickled a nation." He tells you that there are seven thousand places in Havana where alcohol is sold, and helpfully lists the names of the best bartenders, and the drinks that made them famous.

Second, as to what he sees. Languorous ladies stroll somnolently through the pages, feverish of eye and ruby of lip. (The Lovers' Lexicon teaches the male reader how to conquer the heart of the beautiful girl who has stabbed him with her glance from behind a barred window.) The fast life of the Cuban Paris is revealed in its aura of tropical romance:—the carnival, the cockfights, the lottery; jai alai (the national handball game); the roulette wheel spinning fortune and ruin variously to the breathless players.

With his frivolous art, Mr. Woon tells you more about Cuba than you will find in a whole shelf full of statistical guide-books. He makes you thirst—for Cuba and other things.

Our Debt to Greece and Rome

EDITED BY

GEORGE DEPUE HADZSITS, PH.D. and DAVID MOORE ROBINSON, PH.D., LL.D.

A SERIES of books designed to help modern men and women understand themselves and their time by understanding the past. Vast stores of special knowledge heretofore open only to scholars are now given to general readers. What Shakespeare took from Plutarch; what Euclid gave to the Brooklyn Bridge and the Woolworth Building; how Aeschylus, Aristophanes, Sophocles, and Euripides contributed to modern drama, opera and musical comedy; how Greek religious worship speaks in modern Christian churches; how modern poetry still echoes the music of Sappho; how our courts move to the logic of Roman law — these are a few of the innumerable fascinating stories made available to intelligent general readers.

The wide scope of the series is apparent from the titles.

ADAMS, OSCAR FAY.

Dear Old Story Tellers. Illustrated..... 1.25

Homer, Æsop, Mother Goose, Perrault, Brothers Grimm, Andersen, and others.

ALEXANIAN, MANOOG DER.

When I Was a Boy in Armenia. Illustrated..... 1.25

(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)

The writer of this interesting and inspiring book was educated at Harvard, and he tells with simple sincerity his life story, from a tragic childhood onward. He at the same time tells fully of Armenian customs, education, industries, and festivities, from the games of early youth to the solemn observances of later life among an intensely religious people. The intelligence of the Armenians, their dramatic history, and their heroism under oppression are ably brought out.

ALLEN, GRACE BARTON.

Water Color Painting. Illustrated..... 1.75

The author takes up the subject in a practical way, dividing it into a number of chapters under the headings of colors, materials, flowers and still life, landscapes and marines, figures and animals, composition, decoration, color washes, etc., etc., covering the entire subject.

AMBROSI, MARIETTA.

When I Was a Girl in Italy. Illustrated..... 1.25

(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)

The author's entire girlhood was spent in Northern Italy, and in early womanhood she came with her family to America. Her story gives a most graphic account of the industries, social customs, dress, pleasures, and religious observances of the Italian people.

AMID, JOHN.

With the Movie Makers. Illustrated..... 1.50

The glamor of a trip behind the scenes, with glimpses of the men and methods of the cinema lie in this authentic and constructive book, by a man who knows all the ins and outs of the motion-picture game from personal experience.

ARNADOTTIR, HOLMFRIDUR.

When I Was a Girl in Iceland. Illustrated..... 1.25

(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)

Miss Arnadottir was born in Iceland and lived there until she came to America. Her book describes vividly the very things that boys and girls most wish to know about any country—how the people live, what the children do at home and at school, what games and sports they like best, what are their favorite stories and legends.

AYER, M. ALLETTE.

Daily Cheer Year Book. Introduction by Rev. F. E. Clark, D.D. 1.50
Each day in the year is provided with a page of wonderfully well chosen extracts from the best writers.

The Joys of Friendship 1.50
No joys on earth outrank those of friendship. The apt title, the merit of its selections, make it an ideal token to pass from friend to friend.

Heart Melodies. Full leather..... 2.00
Gems of thought in prose and verse that cheer, encourage and uplift.

Keep up Your Courage. 1.50
A choice collection of gems of inspiring thought.

Our Mothers 1.50
A wealth of the best things in prose and verse bearing tribute to mothers.

BALLARD, H. H.

1000 Blunders in English. 16mo..... .60
So easy it is to fall into colloquialisms, and current inaccuracies, that few will turn over the pages of this handbook without finding some weakness of their own exposed.

BANKS, REV. LOUIS ALBERT, D.D.

Live Boys in Oregon. Illustrated..... 1.50
The stirring account of the author's own boyhood in a picturesque region.

BARNES, ANNIE M.

Little Betty Blew. Illustrated..... 1.50
This is an Indian story of over two hundred years ago, with the scene in South Carolina.

BARRETT, ETHEL COOK.

Betty Jane of the "House of Smiles." Illustrated..... 1.50
Betty Jane is no affected, tiresome little self-appointed saint, but a very live, active girl of fourteen who likes other people, wishes to see them happy, and knows the value of being able to smile.

Betty Jane of the Cheer Shop. Illustrated..... 1.50
Betty Jane tells her own story in a captivating way. She is fifteen and in the high school. Her family own and conduct an inn in a typical "Main Street" town, and there Betty is allowed to manage a tea room during spare hours. She has already caused the inn to be known as the "House of Smiles" by her impulsive, good-hearted, and successful efforts to make people enjoy life more and like each other better, and it was natural that she should call her new venture the "Cheer Shop," which it proved to be. Betty will make you feel better with her bright, frank way of telling all about herself and friends and you will see why all come to like her so well. For all girls in their teens.

BASSETT, MARY E. STONE.

The Little Green Door. Illustrated..... 1.75
A charming romance of the time of Louis XIII.

BAYLOR, EDITH M. H.

A Little Prospector. Illustrated..... 1.50

What a bright little fellow actually did and experienced during the residence of his parents in the mining districts of Nevada.

BERNARD, FLORENCE SCOTT.

Diana of Briarcliffe. Illustrated..... 1.50

To have a kind lady of wealth, won by the girl's personality, take Diana from the Home for Orphans and send her to college seemed like a fairy tale come true, and might well turn her head, as it did—for a time.

BEURET, GEORGETTE.

When I Was a Girl in France. Illustrated..... 1.25

(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)

Georgette Beuret has so well told of France in telling her own early life that the book is fascinating for readers of any age.

BEY, AHMED SABRI. (Ahmed Sabri)

When I Was a Boy in Turkey. Illustrated..... 1.25

(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)

The author was brought up as a strict Moslem, finely educated, and became an officer in the Turkish army. Unwilling to carry out orders to massacre Christians, he became an exile from his native land. Ahmed Sabri Bey tells of his boyhood with affection and respect for much that is fine and splendid in a masterly race, and notes the faults of his country with regret.

BICKNELL, LEONA MILDRED.

How a Little Girl Went to Africa. Told by Herself. Illustrated. 1.50

In simple style the little author tells with remarkable descriptive power of the long voyage to Cape Town, the residence and travels among strange and singular peoples.

BIGELOW, M. T.

Handbook of Punctuation. 16mo...... .60

A standard, universally-used work on punctuation and other typographical matters, for the use of printers, authors, teachers, scholars, and, in fact, everybody.

Mistakes in Writing English, and How to Avoid Them. 16mo. .60

For the use of all who teach, write, or speak the language.

BLAISDELL, DR. A. F.

Stories of the Civil War. Illustrated. LIBRARY EDITION..... 1.00

*SCHOOL EDITION..... .50

Short graphic accounts of the principal battles and events, written mainly by those who took part in the scenes described. Includes poems, Lincoln's Gettysburg address, a Memorial Day chapter, etc.

BLANCHARD, GRACE.

The Island Cure. Illustrated..... 1.50

Bright and more than merely pretty Jean Beverley needed a vacation, and was advised to take the "island cure," —not the overworked South Sea islands, but some of the captivating ones on the New England Coast.

BOLTON, SARAH K.

How Success is Won 1.25

Short sketches of the lives of Edison, Wanamaker, the poet Whittier, Peter Cooper, Johns Hopkins, and others.

BOUVÉ, PAULINE C.

American Heroes and Heroines. Illustrated..... 1.50

This book contains some twenty brief, clever, and attractive sketches of famous men and women in American history, among them Father Marquette, Anne Hutchinson, Israel Putnam, Molly Pitcher, Paul Jones, Dolly Madison, Daniel Boone, etc.

BOY'S WORKSHOP, A. With an introduction by Henry Randall Waite. Illustrated..... 1.25

This book tells you how to make and to use a workbench; how to use tools, and to care for them; lets you into the secret of bookrests, tables, cabinets, etc., shows you how to build wooden tents, make a fernery, bind magazines, take photographs, tie knots, and do a great many other things. For every boy.

BRAINERD, NORMAN.

Winning His Shoulder Straps. Illustrated..... 1.50

A rousing story of life in a military school by one who thoroughly knows all about it. Athletics are featured, and every boy, good, bad, and indifferent, is a natural fellow.

Winning the Eagle Prize. Illustrated..... 1.50

The hero not only works his way at Chatham Military School after his father's financial misfortune, but has the pluck to try for a prize which means a scholarship in college.

Winning the Junior Cup. Illustrated..... 1.50

A cup is to be presented by the Junior class to the one of the two lower classes that they consider the manlier in muscles and morals, and the manliest one in the class is to be its custodian.

Winning His Army Blue. Illustrated..... 1.50

In a military boarding-school where things are lively, but where honor is supreme, one cadet can gain a special prize, the highest possible in the school. This is called "Winning His Army Blue."

BROOKS, AMY.

Rosalie Dare. Illustrated..... 1.25

Rosalie Dare will charm the hearts of all readers, even as she does those of her companions in the story, which has, with its mirth and rapid changes of scene, every element of attractiveness for little folk.

Rosalie Dare's Test. Illustrated..... 1.25

Rosalie, a little girl of seven, is an orphan living with an uncle. There are other relatives who more and more wish to take their turn in caring for her as she grows in attractiveness.

What Rosalie Dare Won. Illustrated..... 1.25

"What Rosalie Dare Won," is the affection of all who knew her, by the loving helpfulness which she shows to all about her, even under trying circumstances.

BROOKS, ELBRIDGE S.

Under the Allied Flags. Illustrated..... 1.50

The Story of Our War with Spain. 8vo. Illustrated..... 2.00

The best young people's history of our war with Spain—carefully prepared from the most authoritative data.

In Blue and White. Illustrated..... 1.50

The conspiracy against the life of Washington, known as the "Hickey plot," furnishes the background for this story of a trooper of the Life Guard in New York in 1776.

In Leisler's Times. Illustrated..... 1.50

A story of Knickerbocker New York.

Storied Holidays. Illustrated..... 1.50

A unique and charming collection of historical stories about the world's holidays.

The American Sailor. 4to. Illustrated..... 2.00

Includes both navy and merchant service, tracing the development of American seamanship from the time of the Indians and Northmen to the late Spanish war. Arctic explorations, whaling, smuggling, lake and river service are all included.

BROOKS, ELBRIDGE S.—Continued.

The American Indian. 4to. Illustrated..... 2.00
The first and only complete and consecutive story of the red men of America. It is sympathetic, but not sentimental; picturesque, but not romantic.

The Boy Life of Napoleon. Adapted from French of Madame Eugenia Foa. 8vo. Illustrated..... 2.00
A timely and altogether attractive volume, and the best life of the boy Napoleon extant. Madame Foa was one of the most popular of French writers for young people, and her delightful account of the great emperor's boy life was carefully revised and enlarged by Mr. Brooks.

THE TRUE STORY SERIES.

The True Story of Lafayette. 4to. Illustrated..... 2.00
The absorbing, simply told, and stirring story of a remarkable character in American history; the "whole story," from the boyhood of the great Frenchman to the close of his long dramatic and romantic career.

The True Story of Benjamin Franklin. 4to. Illustrated..... 2.00
The only popular life of the great Franklin written from a human standpoint for the boys and girls of America.

The True Story of U. S. Grant. 4to. Illustrated..... 2.00
It tells, without too much war detail, and with every attention to his boy life, his public life, and his last heroic days, the remarkable story of the greatest American soldier.

The True Story of Abraham Lincoln. 4to. Illustrated..... 2.00
It does not talk of war or politics, but tells for young Americans the true and wonderful story of Abraham Lincoln, the American.

The True Story of George Washington. 4to. Illustrated..... 2.00
This very popular volume, with its direct, simple, practical, patriotic, and truthful style, has become the standard "Children's Life" of the Father of our Country.

The True Story of Christopher Columbus. 4to. Illustrated... 2.00
"His conception of the character and mission of Columbus is largely outlined, but firmly and most carefully executed, and is one of the noblest in literature."—C. D. Warner.

The True Story of the United States of America. Told for young people. 4to. Illustrated..... 2.00
The true story of the beginnings, rise, and development of the Republic of the United States, from 1492 to the present time.

BROWN, EDNA A.

Four Gordons. Illustrated..... 1.75
Louise and her three brothers are the "Four Gordons," and the story relates their experiences at home and school during the absence of their parents for a winter in Italy.

Uncle David's Boys. Illustrated..... 1.75
It tells how some young people spent a summer vacation, full of good times, but with some unexpected and rather mysterious occurrences.

When Max Came. Illustrated..... 1.75
This is the story of Max, who did not wish to visit his New England cousins, and of Hope, who was certain that she could never like a boy who had been brought up in Europe.

Arnold's Little Brother. Illustrated..... 1.75
A lively narrative introducing us to small boys in the Lower school, to big ones in the Upper school, and to masters who are human beings.

BROWN, EDNA A.—Continued.

Archer and the "Prophet." Illustrated..... 1.75
Archer has already appeared, at a much younger age, as "Arnold's Little Brother," and is now a senior at the same school, St. Stephen's. The "Prophet" is a nickname given to an outside boy whom good-hearted Archer befriends.

The Spanish Chest. Illustrated..... 1.75
This book has the charm that goes with all books by Miss Brown, and a distinct one through having its scene laid in the picturesque island of Jersey. An American lady with her daughter and sons spend a winter as lodgers in a quaint villa.

At the Butterfly House. Illustrated..... 1.75
It tells how Cary Dexter came to the Butterfly House, how Candace Halliday lived in the gray cottage on Thorn Mountain, and how both girls were sophomores in the Ridgefield High School, of which Cary's father was principal.

Rainbow Island. Illustrated..... 1.75
The book, with its scene laid on the Maine sea-coast, brings a whiff of salt air as wholesome as itself. The plot is ingenious, the incidents are unusual, and we meet interesting people.

Robin Hollow. Illustrated..... 1.75
Sally Allison at sixteen declared herself capable of keeping house for her older brother, Sandy, at Robin Hollow, the century-old cottage in Vermont which Uncle Alexander had bequeathed to his namesake nephew. The story tells how the two passed a country winter, which brought satisfaction to both.

That Affair at St. Peter's. Illustrated..... 1.75
A bright novel by this well-known author, who here enters a new field. It is a mystery story, but is unusual because it does not begin with a murder.

Journey's End...... 1.75
Amory Russell, just back from two years' service with a surgical unit in France, begins his medical career in the little seaport town where he had grown up in the Quaker home of his uncle and aunt. Into his life comes Elizabeth, a girl of modern type and tendencies, who, somewhat against her will, becomes interested in this young man of such different inheritance and training.

The Silver Bear. Illustrated in Colors..... 1.50
Lucy and Dora lived in the brown cottage opposite the drug-store, and this story tells of the interesting things which happened during one summer. It also tells about Arcturus, the silver bear, which Dora wore on her neck-chain on especial occasions, and how the bear became important in quite an unexpected way.

The Chinese Kitten. Illustrated in Colors..... 1.50
The color of the kitten was blue, and Aunt Margaret sent it to console Dora because Arcturus, her silver bear, went on a vacation without her permission. The story tells how Dora and Lucy spent a week at the beach, and how they went to school and visited in Boston.

Whistling Rock. Illustrated in Colors..... 1.50
Loveday Blair was seven years old, and as long as she could remember she had heard Daddy talk about Whistling Rock Island. So she thought it worth while to have the measles when they meant a whole summer spent there.

Three Gates. Illustrated in Colors..... 1.50
The fence before Pauline Winsor's home had three gates, all in a row, which gave the house its name. Polly lived there, with Mother and Grandma and Uncle Jack; with Kerry Crumb, the Irish terrier, and the pussy, Mittens. The story tells what Polly did at home and at school, how she went chestnutting with her friend Carola, and helped sell balloons at the street fair, and was "Heidi" in the library play for Good Book Week.

BROWNJOHN, JOHN. (Charles Remington Talbot.)

The Adventures of Miltiades Peterkin Paul. Illustrated..... 1.50

Here is a child classic which relates the mirth-provoking exploits of the ingenious small boy named Miltiades Peterkin Paul and spoken of as "a great traveler, although he was small."

BULFINCH, THOMAS.

The Age of Fable; or, Beauties of Mythology. Edited by Rev. E. E. Hale. 8vo. Illustrated..... 1.75

The educational value of this work cannot be over-estimated, as it enables the student, by means of the text and illustrations, to enter into the mythological conceptions of antiquity, and prepares him to interpret and enjoy the works of the masters of art as well as the classical allusions of which our best modern literature is full.

The Age of Chivalry; or, Legends of King Arthur, Stories of Round Table, The Crusades, Robin Hood, etc. Edited by Rev. E. E. Hale. 8vo. Illustrated..... 1.75

In the introduction the author gives an outline of the condition of Europe after the decline of the Roman Empire, showing the origin and purpose of chivalry, and explaining all things necessary to be known to give one a clear and distinct idea of the feats of the Knights of the Round Table, and whatever pertains to that remarkable period.

Legends of Charlemagne; or, Romance of the Middle Ages. 8vo. Illustrated..... 1.75

These stories of the second Age of Fable, the age which witnessed the dawn of the several states of modern Europe, were but little known even by the liberally educated, and were not available before the publication of this volume. They have become absolutely necessary to an appreciation of what is best in modern literature.

BUNKER, Dr. M. N.

It is the author's purpose to divest hypnotism of the supernatural, to show how it is done, and to explain its rational basis.

COLLINS, A. FREDERICK.

The Boy Astronomer. Illustrated..... 2.00

The whole subject is clearly and accurately treated, including a great amount of general information about weather and tides. The many diagrams complete the best popular work on astronomy ever issued.

The Boy Chemist. Illustrated..... 2.00

The author has presented in simple form the great facts of the elements that make up our world, and shown how they combine in nature and the arts. A young lad can easily produce wonderful results by following the experiments so clearly described. All apparatus is as simple as possible, and constant attention given to safety for the young experimenter.

The Boy Scientist. Illustrated..... 2.50

Here is a whole library of entertainingly-presented useful knowledge in one handsome volume. Its fifteen chapters cover all the great scientific fields, from "The Nature of Space and Time" to "Flight of Birds and Man." Other chapters cover with remarkable thoroughness, in spite of restricted space, the important subjects of Astronomy, Microscopy, Photography, Chemistry, Precious Stones, the Spectroscope, X-Rays, Radio, Motion-Pictures, and the fundamentals of Surveying, Geology, and the Einstein Theory. If a boy could have but one book, this would deserve to be the one.

COMSTOCK, HARRIET T.

A Boy of a Thousand Years Ago. Illustrated..... 1.50

It will at once be understood that the "boy" of the story is Alfred the Great in his youth, but it cannot be understood how delightful a story this is until it is seen and read.

DARLING, MARY G.

We Four Girls. Illustrated..... 1.50

DAVIS, EDITH VEZOLLES.

The Magic Fiddle. Illustrated..... 1.50

Little Marie is shocked when she learns that she is not an American, and though she is curious and eager to know something of her own country, she can find no blame in her heart for the mother who has told her nothing of herself. Marie was born with the love and gift of music and she wishes that her strange, sad mother could understand this. How a real fiddle comes into her life and brings about an almost magical combination of events which end in happiness for both mother and daughter, is as much a surprise to Marie, as to the reader.

DAVIS, EDNA CLARK.

Miss Polly Wiggles. Illustrated..... 1.50
The bright little heroine herself, is so lively that she is usually called "Polly Wiggles" instead of by her own stately name, "Elizabeth Eaton."

Polly Wiggles and Some Others. Illustrated..... 1.50
A merry group centers about the summer home of the father of "Polly" and, of course, there must be a "club." This is not all for frolic, by any means, for the girls, with many funny mishaps, actually learn a great deal about cooking.

DAVIS, PROF. W. W.

Whirlwinds, Cyclones, and Tornadoes. 16mo. Illustrated..... .60

DEAN, ELIZABETH LIPPINCOTT.

Dolly Madison, The Nation's Hostess. Illustrated..... 3.00
This biography of one of America's most charming and notable women, Dolly Madison, covers with vividness and accuracy the period from 1768 to 1850. In doing this, it portrays the personal characteristics, the social, the political, and home life of the prominent men and women of that time. We meet George and Martha Washington and the two Custis children, Thomas Jefferson and his daughters Martha and Polly, the New England John Adams and the two Abigails, the "Great Little Madison", the handsome Alexander Hamilton, crafty Aaron Burr, Daniel Webster and scores of other well-known characters, none more dear to the American people than the great Marquis de Lafayette. It presents a new approach to this period of American history, and meets well the test of the historian.

DE GROOT, CORNELIA.

When I Was a Girl in Holland. Illustrated..... 1.25
(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)
An interesting tale of child life strange to us. Miss De Groot, who came from Holland to be educated at a prominent business College in California, gives a vivid picture of her native country, in which children are so well trained to usefulness.

DEMETRIOS, GEORGE.

When I Was a Boy in Greece. Illustrated..... 1.25
(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)
A graphic account is given of the country and its customs, with the home and school life, tasks and pleasures, of a real boy in a land strange to us. Naturally, much is said of relations with the Turks.

DENISON, E. E.

The Play of Auction Hands. Illustrated..... 2.00

DIAZ, MRS. ABBY MORTON.

The Story of Polly Cologne. Illustrated..... 1.50
Polly Cologne was a rag baby that was lost and came back in a wonderful way.

The William Henry Letters. Illustrated..... 1.50
Freckles, red hair, and a quick temper are William Henry's failings, but they weigh little against honesty, truthfulness, and loyalty. The former make his heart sore many times, but the latter win the love of his schoolmates and gladden the home to which his letters go.

William Henry and His Friends. Illustrated..... 1.50
More about the inimitable William Henry.

The Cats' Arabian Nights. Illustrated..... 1.50
The cat stories told by a cat to save the lives of all the other cats. A big, funny book, filled with hundreds of pictures. A book America has always chuckled over.

DIXIE, RAYMOND.

The Boy Magician. Illustrated..... 2.00
In this valuable book Mr. Dixie, Ace of Magicians, has brought together a large and varied assortment of tricks with cards, coins, balls, handkerchiefs, and other ordinary articles which any boy can do and which will baffle the grown-ups even as they will his young friends.

How a stalwart young student won his position at guard and made progress in other ways.

With Mask and Mitt. Illustrated..... 1.75
Very much more than merely a baseball story.

The Great Year. Illustrated..... 1.75
Three fine manly captains of the football, baseball, and track teams support each other in winning three championships.

The Yale Cup. Illustrated..... 1.75
The "Cup" was given by Yale alumni for athletic and other excellence and its winning makes the story.

A Full-Back Afloat. Illustrated..... 1.75
Dick Melvin, star athlete, is induced to earn an eventful passage to Europe by helping on a cattle steamer.

The Pecks in Camp. Illustrated..... 1.75
The scene of this book is laid in a typical summer camp for boys, with great rivalry between two lodges, or houses in which the boys live.

The Half-Miler. Illustrated..... 1.75
"The Half-Miler" is a story of a young man of positive character at grips with the stern problem of earning his way in a big school.

STORIES OF THE TRIANGULAR LEAGUE.

The School Four. Illustrated..... 1.75
Football is no less prominent in the progress of the story than rowing, and both general school life and competitive relations with other schools are set forth to the life.

At the Home Plate. Illustrated..... 1.75
There is good baseball in this book, as its title indicates, but it is hardly more prominent than football and hockey, which in turn are simply features in a grand story of school life.

The Unofficial Prefect. Illustrated..... 1.75
The story of an exceptionally bright student hampered by his own selfishness. How he was victorious over himself and how he brought honor to his school make a story of school life that is as splendid as it is unusual.

DUNHAM, EDITH.

Fifty Flower Friends with Familiar Faces. Illustrated in Colors..... 1.75
Children cannot too soon begin to know the wild flowers, and here they are told in a charming way where and when to look for each of fifty widely distributed common flowering plants; also how to get their names.

DYER, RUTH O.

The Sleepy-Time Story Book. Illustrated..... 1.25
A bed-time book of nature stories so written that one is compelled to read them in a lulling tone of voice. True to their purpose they do not excite, but hold the child's interest until drowsiness comes to bring refreshing sleep.

That's Why Stories. Illustrated..... 1.25
The innate child-love for a fairy story is here satisfied without misleading or terrifying, and many a lesson of kindness is taught. Fanciful reasons are given for many a fact in nature.

DYER, RUTH O.—Continued.

The Daytime Story-Book. Illustrated..... 1.25

Vexation and ill-temper are pleasingly avoided by stories that make play and entertainment of buttoning wee shoes and making ready the bright face, the soft hair, and the little hands for a happy day, with a soothing afternoon nap.

What-Happened-Then Stories. Illustrated in Colors..... 1.50

An author of very popular books, trained in the psychology of childhood and the story-telling art, has taken fifteen of the standard tales of childhood and fitted each with a happy ending. The original story is told first, followed in each case by the delightful sequel.

The Little People of the Garden. Illustrated..... 1.50

Here we meet in a friendly way "Miss Apis" (the bee), "Miss Formica" (the ant), "The Little Plough" (the earthworm), "Mr. Rana" (the frog), and many other interesting little neighbors, and learn the wonderful way Nature has fitted them for their lives, and the constant peril in which they pass them.

The Adventures of the Ink Spots. Illustrated..... 1.50

Here is the jolliest, showiest, most whimsical and most entertaining book for little children that can be imagined.

Peggy Pretend. Illustrated..... 1.75
Here is a charming little heroine, a veritable Joy Girl, whose quaint fairy wisdom enables her to make life a wonderful game of "Let's Pretend," and justifies her fanciful nickname,—Peggy Pretend.

"The Good-For-Nothing Graysons." Illustrated..... 1.75
Of course a family of six children left motherless and to grow up largely by themselves in a formerly aristocratic mansion in a quiet New England town would be a fruitful subject of gossip, and it is no wonder that busybodies, led by the village postmistress, who made the most of her position, picked at them and called them the "Good-for-nothing Graysons". Brave Nancy, just entering womanhood, is the eldest, and goes on faithfully, trying to control her younger brothers and sisters, including mischievous twins, Philip and Florence, nicknamed "Flip" and "Flop". After many complications, the Graysons prove their quality in spite of the gossips, and Nancy is left looking forward to great happiness.

FORBUSH, DR. WILLIAM BYRON.

The Young Folks' Book of Ideals. 8vo. Illustrated..... 2.50
The greatest of vocational books. Five hundred and eighty pages of brilliant writing. It tells how to develop all that is best in boys and girls, and is divided into four component parts: I, the Sturdy Body; II, The Alert Mind; III, Good Fellowship; IV, The Awakened Self.

FOSS, SAM WALTER.

Mr. Foss had the rare faculty of expressing the humdrum incidents of every-day life poetically. The range of his poetry was as wide as humanity itself. His homely Yankee dialect, overflowing with humor, tenderness, and knowledge of human nature fascinates and holds all who read. He thought that the way to make men better was to make them laugh. But underneath the laugh is the clear ringing message which strikes home.

Back Country Poems. Illustrated..... 1.75
Whiffs from Wild Meadows. Illustrated..... 1.75
Dreams in Homespun..... 1.75
Songs of War and Peace..... 1.75
Songs of the Average Man. Illustrated..... 1.75

FRAZAR, DOUGLAS.

Perseverance Island. Illustrated..... 1.00

The best Robinson Crusoe story. Not the story Defoe wrote, but the story of a shipwrecked man thrown almost naked on a desert isle and how he was able by the use of his brains, the skill of his hands, and a practical knowledge of the common arts and sciences far to surpass the real Robinson Crusoe. A favorite for years.

Practical Boat Sailing. 16mo. Illustrated..... 1.00

A concise and simple treatise on the management of small boats and yachts under all conditions, with explanatory chapters on ordinary sea-manoeuvres, and the use of sails, helm, and anchor, and advice on what is proper to be done in different emergencies; supplemented by a short vocabulary of nautical terms.

FREES, HARRY WHITTIER.

There are sixty photographic reproductions and sixty stories of animal pets costumed and posed in all manner of duties and pastimes.

The Animal Mother Goose. Illustrated from Photographs of Living Animals. Quarto..... 2.00

Real kittens, puppies, and pigs, dressed as the best-known Mother Goose characters; photographed with unfailing kindness and patience by the greatest of all experts in that line and used in a beautifully printed book; the best-edited of all editions of Mother Goose.

FRENCH, HARRY W. (Abd el Ardavan.)

The Lance of Kanana. Illustrated..... 1.25

Kanana, a Bedouin youth, is branded, even by his father, as a coward because he prefers the humble lot of a shepherd to the warrior's career that he, the son of a sheik known as the "Terror of the Desert," was expected to follow. "Only for Allah and Arabia will I lift a lance and take a life," he maintained. Opportunity to prove his worth soon comes, and the supposed coward, understood too late, becomes in memory a national hero.

FUESS, CLAUDE MOORE.

All for Andover. Illustrated..... 1.75

The son of a former athletic star at Andover, goes where his father went, and becomes one of four close friends, all very different. That the others are from wealthier homes brings out the true democracy of a grand academy and of American life at its best.

The Andover Way. Illustrated..... 1.75

A "spoiled child" begins to take regular exercise, and develops into a good distance-runner, helping to win the relay race against Exeter. At the same time, he gradually overcomes his deficiencies and is almost completely transformed in what his mates call "the regular Andover way."

Peter Had Courage. Illustrated..... 1.75

Peter was a bright athletic youngster, growing up in a village in Central New York. His father was the leading doctor of the community, and a man of rare good sense, as he had need to be. Peter was leader of a club called the "Followers of Deerfoot," the members of which liked to camp out in the woods, and were ready for mischief, but, as in many a "gang," there was real honor and manliness at the bottom. Come what might, Peter was ready for it, with honest grit. There are many tales of wholesome sport and life in the forest, and the book excels in convincing reality. At the close, Peter starts for Andover, with what his father has reason to regard as a grand foundation.

GAINES, CHARLES KELSEY, Ph.D.

Gorgo. A Romance of Old Athens. Illustrated..... 1.75

I enjoyed Professor Gaines's "Gorgo" as I have few novels read during the last twenty years. It is not only a clean, wholesome and charming story, but one of the best and most accurate interpretations of the noble and sad days of ancient Athens ever written.—Dr. Edward Howard Griggs.

GEIBEL, MARGUERITE TURNEY.

Norma's Friends. Illustrated..... 1.50

In this brightly written book that is worth a dozen ordinary ones on account of the good sense constantly appearing in the development of the leading characters without any prosy moralizing, a fortunately situated girl who enters high school early in the story is able to work wonders for many, in an entirely natural way. She does it by thinking of things at the right time, and others do the rest. For girls—and boys as well—from twelve upward.

GILMAN, ARTHUR, A.M.

Magna Charta Stories..... 1.25

GILMORE, M. JACQUELINE.

The Secret of Scared Acres. Illustrated..... 1.50

"Scared Acres" was the name given to a Kansas ranch in the exciting days of long ago. Here Joan, a girl from present-day New York, must spend a year, far from her family and friends. The very first night brings an absorbing mystery that is but the beginning of such a succession of strange happenings and characters as can hardly be described. But Joan and a bright girl friend are equal to the situation, and not only learn a fascinating story and much thrilling American history, but unravel the mystery in a way that brings happiness to the mistress of "Scared Acres" and her friends. For girls from fourteen to sixteen.

GODOY, MERCEDES.

When I Was a Girl in Mexico. Illustrated..... 1.25

(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)

This is the delightful account of happy girlhood in one of the fairest and richest of all countries. A book like this will do much towards correcting many wrong ideas, so generally entertained, of our Southern neighbor.

GOODRIDGE, J. F.

Mother Goose Melodies, with 50 Silhouette Illustrations in White. Oblong..... .50

GRISWOLD, FLORENCE.

Hindu Fairy Tales. Illustrated..... 1.50

Mrs. Griswold, a well-known sociologist and lecturer, has recognized the beauties of many of the Hindu folk stories and presented them in a form to be enjoyed by young readers. They are of men and animals, both serious and humorous, and kindness, justice, and generosity are constantly emphasized.

HALE, EDWARD EVERETT.

Boys' Heroes. Illustrated..... 1.25

A popular, gossipy account of Hector, Horatius, Alexander the Great, Hannibal, King Arthur, Richard the Lion-Hearted, Bayard, Israel Putnam, General Lafayette, Napoleon and others.

HALL, A. NEELY.

A. Neely Hall is without doubt the best known author in the country of articles and books on handicraft for boys.
—Westminster Teacher, Philadelphia.

The Boy Craftsman. Illustrated..... 2.50

Every real boy wishes to design and make things, but the questions of materials and tools are often hard to get around. In this book a number of chapters give suggestions for carrying on a small business to bring in money with which to buy tools and materials for making apparatus.

Handicraft for Handy Boys. Illustrated..... 2.50

Outdoor and indoor pastimes have been given equal attention, and much of the work is closely allied to the studies of the modern grammar and high schools.

The Handy Boy. Illustrated..... 2.50

Tells the boys how to apply handy methods to the making and doing of hundreds of worth-while things in which he is intensely interested. There is woodworking, electrical and mechanical toy-making, scoutcraft, and other forms of indoor and outdoor handicraft.

Carpentry and Mechanics for Boys. Illustrated..... 2.50

There are suggestions for various handy garden-accessories, and hundreds of plans for mechanical and electrical toys and gifts, for household contrivances, and for playground and camp equipment, making altogether a volume that will be indispensable to red-blooded American boys.

Home-Made Games and Game Equipment. Illustrated..... 2.50

The Handicraft Books by A. Neely Hall are standard. Every one of the many plans and designs has been developed and found applicable in the author's own workshop, where he has the assistance of his brother, a draftsman of unusual skill. Part One is devoted to indoor games while Part Two covers a wide field of outdoor activities.

HALL, A. NEELY.—Continued.

Outdoor Boy Craftsmen. Illustrated..... 2.50

This volume is devoted to outdoor handicraft, exclusively, and it fairly bulges with ideas for outdoor good times, including among forty-odd chapters such subjects as auto camping, a portable radio set, hike and camp kits, pushmobiles, windmobiles, ice yachts, fishing tackle, boats, traps, a diving tower, a water chute, etc., etc.

Home-Made Toys for Girls and Boys. Illustrated..... 2.00

Here is a veritable gold mine of suggestions for home-made toys, each one of which has been carried out successfully many times.

HALL, A. NEELY and PERKINS, DOROTHY.

Handicraft for Handy Girls. Illustrated..... 2.50

With the aid of an experienced craftswoman, Mr. Hall has opened the door for the great and constantly increasing number of girls who like to "make things," and see no reason why the joy of mechanical work should be restricted to their brothers; with this book it need no longer be.

HALL, BERTHA M.

The Happy-Thought Story Book. Illustrated..... 1.50

These delightful stories vividly portray the keen joy which comes to a child who can turn to a parent with the confident expectation of loving encouragement in the working out of a child's little problems, and a willing share in giving pleasure to others.

HALL, CHARLES W.

Adrift in the Ice Fields. Illustrated..... 1.00

The adventures of a party of Englishmen while hunting sea-fowl on the sea-ice.

HALL, FREDERICK F.

Toggles. Illustrated..... 1.50

The story of a boy who lived outdoors and had lots of fun.

HALL, JOHN O.

When I Was a Boy in Norway. Illustrated..... 1.25

(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)

Norway, the "Land of the Midnight Sun," is only less fascinating to read about than to visit, and no one else can so well tell us about it as one of her own talented sons who has obtained distinction in the United States.

HALL, MARY LEORA and PALMER, SARAH ELIZABETH.

Story-Plays, with Music, Finger Plays, and Rhythms. 4to Illustrated...... 1.50

The story plays and finger plays are bright and attractive, and the rhythms have a rare charm that comes from combining good music with the melodiousness that children love.

HALSEY, RENA I.

Blue Robin, the Girl Pioneer. Illustrated..... 1.75

Nathalie Page develops into capable young womanhood by becoming a member of The Girl Pioneers of America.

America's Daughter. Illustrated..... 1.75

This is an inspiring story of girls who organize a club called "Daughters of America."

HANLEY, GEORGIA ELDREDGE.

The One-Eyed Fairies. Illustrated..... 1.50

This book is entertaining as well as instructive. It tells a story and teaches how to do each necessary kind of plain sewing stitch and some fancy ones, too, so that a little girl can practise on her doll's dresses and sometimes her own to help Mother.

HARLAND, MARION.

When Grandmamma Was New. Illustrated..... 1.75

A delightful autobiographical story of a little Virginian long "before the war." This book has a perpetual charm for old and young, North as well as South.

HARRIS, AMANDA B.

American Authors for Young Folks. Illustrated..... 1.25

HARRIS, ANNIE ELIZABETH.

Hale Merrill's Honey Quest. Illustrated..... 1.50

Hale Merrill, a girl of fourteen, suddenly finds her city home broken up and is thrust into a public school in a country village, a violent change in her self-centered and unevenly-developed life under the care of an adored governess.

HAUCK, LOUISE PLATT.

The Youngest Rider. Illustrated..... 1.50

Why did the historically famous Pony Express Company put an age limit of twenty-one years on its riders and give a great and hazardous enterprise into the hands of mere boys? Because the daring spirit of youth was needed to face the many dangers of the trail not only without hesitation, but even with joyous eagerness. "The Youngest Rider" is the tale of a manly lad of sixteen who kept his oath of allegiance and repeatedly risked his life in the days of '60 and '61 to be on time with the mail. Frequent tragic possibilities do not repress the keen merriment that enlivens the story. A book in a class by itself for interest. For all boys and their elders.

HAWKES, CLARENCE.

Dapples of the Circus. Illustrated..... 1.50

The story opens on the island of Shetland and follows the pony, Dapples, through his later career with the Great American Circus and the many adventures that came to him and his devoted young master, "Freckles." Circus life is told from accurate knowledge, and a great deal of information is given.

A Gentleman from France. Illustrated..... 1.50

Pierre was a splendid Airedale presented to a colonel in the French army. Pierre found army life a great change, but became a war hero and won the Croix de Guerre.

Jungle Joe, Pride of the Circus. Illustrated..... 1.50

We are taken to a Malay jungle and shown how wild creatures are secured for a circus menagerie, and how they are trained in captivity, among them a baby elephant that a Malay boy comes to love like a brother. Then, after stirring adventures, little Ali and his pet come to America, and are attached to a great circus for eight years.

HAYES, HIRAM WALLACE.

The Newspaper Game. Illustrated..... 1.50

How a bright boy, just ready for college, and his friend, only three years older, overcome the conservatism of a veteran newspaper man and by sheer enterprise and sound business principles—not without exciting and dangerous experiences—built up a paying business on new lines is a grand and inspiring tale. Incidentally one gains a good acquaintance with all features of that most fascinating business, making a newspaper, and learns not a little about law. For all boys from fifteen upward who can feel enthusiasm and admire honest success.

HAYES, DR. ISAAC I.

Cast Away in the Cold. Illustrated..... 1.00

This story, by the famous arctic explorer, who for a long time held the "farthest-north" record, is supposed to be told by an old sea captain of his early arctic experiences.

HEADLEY, REV. P. C.

Fight It Out on This Line. A Life of General U. S. Grant. Illustrated 1.00

HEATH, JANET FIELD.

Ann's Family. Illustrated..... 1.50

Ann was only ten, and an orphan. Her aunts and uncles took turns in caring for her, and it seemed as though each contrived to have Ann come when she would be most useful. No wonder the little girl, who was such a help and comfort wherever she went, longed for a "steady family," as she expressed it. Finally there came even greater happiness than Ann had dreamed of.

Ann at Starr House and Far Away from It. Illustrated..... 1.50

Ann was nearly thirteen, brought up to be self-reliant, and always friendly and winsome. She was settled in her new school and gloriously happy at her new home which she and Uncle Bob called "Starr House" when her uncle had to go to Sumatra on business. What to do with Ann was a problem, which she eagerly helped solve by going with him. Then came a wonderful trip, on which Ann continued to make friends. Bright, helpful Ann brings happiness into a number of lives, enjoys doing it, and gains deserved rewards. A story to benefit as well as entertain girls from twelve to fifteen.

HEINRICH, MAX.

Correct Principles of Classical Singing..... 1.50

Essays on choosing a teacher and the art of singing, together with an interpretative key to Handel's "Messiah," and Schubert's "Die Schöne Müllerin."

HERBERT, BLANCHE E. (Founder of Good Cheer Club.)

The Good Cheer Book..... 1.50

The book that the world needs now. It is an anthology of optimism, made up of bright, cheery selections in poetry and prose from the best authors from Shakespeare to the present day, but all giving encouragement and inspiration.

HERTZMAN, ANNA-MIA. (Leonne de Cambrey.)

When I Was a Girl in Sweden. Illustrated..... 1.25

(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)

The author tells in a sincere, pleasing way her girlhood, with its studies, duties, and pleasures, and closes by showing how she was drawn to the United States of America. We enjoy with her what she enjoyed, and share both her early pranks and later aspirations. For children from eight to any age.

HICKOX, WILLIAM.

The Correspondent's Manual. 16mo. ..... .75

This book is built up entirely from what a veteran trainer of secretaries and clerks has found actually to be needed. All business and other information has been verified by the highest business and professional authority. It should be on every desk in every office.

KELLEY, RUTH E.

The Book of Hallowe'en. With magazine references, reading lists, index to quotations, and general index. Illustrated..... 1.75

The only book entirely devoted to Hallowe'en, the most romantic and the most frolicsome of all the year's celebrations. Starting with a brief account of sun-worship, it reaches the survival of mingled superstitions in our own land. Miss Kelley's trained knowledge as one of the staff of the Public Library, Lynn, Mass., has enabled her to make this a book of exceptional value.

KELLOGG, ELIJAH.

There is a manliness of tone in Elijah Kellogg's books for boys that is very much admired. His heroes are not those whom the death of some rich and distant relative, or a sudden turn of fortune's wheel, makes rich and influential. They hew out their own fortunes, struggling honestly with difficulties, and rising by means of them to a higher manhood. It is doing wrong by a boy to let him grow up without reading Elijah Kellogg's books.

ELM ISLAND STORIES. Illustrated. .....each 1.50

Shipbuilding and seafaring stories.

Lion Ben of Elm Island.
Charlie Bell; The Waif of Elm Island.

A plain, straightforward series of simple and interesting "talks with the boys" on how to prepare, handle, and care for the necessary tools used in carpentry and joinery.

KILNER, COLLEEN BROWNE.

La-La Man in Music Land. 4to. Illustrated..... 1.50

With fascinating illustrations and delightful verses, "La-La Man in Music Land" appeals to children, and at the same time gives them the rudiments of music in a clever way they cannot forget. An odd little character, "La-La Man," journeys through a fanciful music land, introducing boys and girls to the tiny tots and other personages of that kingdom. As a gift-book, this will delight the child, while as a means of interesting him in music, it will please the parents. The author devised the volume out of her own experiences in introducing children to music, because she saw the great need of it. It is the unusual—a gift-book that instructs.

LANGE, D.

On the Trail of the Sioux. Illustrated..... 1.50

A story based on the last desperate stand of the brave and warlike Sioux tribes against the resistless tide of white-men's civilization, on the Minnesota frontier in the early days of the Civil War.

The Silver Island of the Chippewa. Illustrated..... 1.50

This tells of the famous Silver Island in Lake Superior. Much is taught of nature and woodcraft along with the accounts of exciting adventures with which the book teems.

Lost in the Fur Country. Illustrated..... 1.50

An Indian story of mystery, peril, and daring, presenting Indian nature and the general life of the great wild regions in the North with charm and authority.

LANGE, D.—Continued.

In the Great Wild North. Illustrated..... 1.50
Mr. Lange is a trained naturalist, and knows the history and characteristics of the American Indian as they are known by few now living. He finds a congenial theme in the scenes and times of the "Great Fur Trail," stretching into the Hudson Bay Region.

The Lure of the Black Hills. Illustrated..... 1.50
How three friends and the two young sons of one of them yielded to the lure of the mysterious Black Mountains, how they outwitted the hostile Sioux, and what they found in the great canyons, the streams, and on the granite peaks.

The Lure of the Mississippi. Illustrated..... 1.50
Mr. Lange's "Indian Stories" have a standing because they give so much really profitable information while satisfying the youthful desire for a story of adventure.

The Silver Cache of the Pawnee. Illustrated..... 1.50
This is a real adventure story of the old Santa Fe Trail, which ran to Santa Fe from Independence, near Kansas City, across the buffalo country of the Great Plains.

The Shawnee's Warning. Illustrated..... 1.50
A thrilling story of the Oregon Trail in 1843, when a thousand men and women made the long journey from the Missouri River to the Willamette Valley in Oregon.

The Threat of Sitting Bull. Illustrated..... 1.50
Two lads from Boston with guides on their way to the settlements in Western Montana, encounter hardships and dangers in the unknown wilderness where General Custer and his famous Seventh Cavalry fought the last great battle against the Sioux.

The Raid of the Ottawa. Illustrated..... 1.50
This story tells how two American boys successfully followed the trail of an Ottawa who had stolen their younger brother.

The Mohawk Ranger. Illustrated..... 1.50
Under the guidance of a ranger and the Mohawk, Aneohta, two New York boys follow an older brother who has gone with a Huron Indian to the region of Lake Nipissing.

The Iroquois Scout. Illustrated..... 1.50
The scene is laid in the valleys of the Hudson and Mohawk, touching West Point and Fort Niagara. The outstanding figures are Ganadoga, a young Iroquois scout of the Oneida tribe, and two white lads of the Hudson Valley.

The Sioux Runner. Illustrated..... 1.50
Most of the events of the present book take place along the Missouri River between Fort Pierre and Fort Benton. With this background of romance, is told the story of two Kansas lads, who left with a train of emigrants to learn what had become of two friends who had started down the Missouri from Fort Benton with a rich load of golddust, but had never reached home.

The Gold Rock of the Chippewa. Illustrated..... 1.50
The scene is laid in the region of Lake Superior, at about the beginning of the Revolutionary War. A young man of twenty, and a lad of thirteen, come from Vermont to the Sault Ste. Marie to join in the adventures of the fur trade.

LEE, YAN PHOU.

When I Was a Boy in China. Illustrated..... 1.25
(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)
Yan Phou Lee was one of the young men sent to this country to be educated here, finally graduating with honor at Yale. This tells his recollections of his native country.

LEETCH, DOROTHY LYMAN.

Tommy Tucker on a Plantation. Illustrated..... 1.25
Tommy was a little boy with a fine home in Norfolk, Virginia, in the Colonial days, but his parents took a trip to England, and so Tommy made a long and wonderful visit to Myrtle Hill Plantation, the home of his uncle, and enjoyed everything, from the stately entertaining of those days to visits to the "Quarters," where the good-natured negroes of the plantation lived.

Annetje and Her Family. Illustrated..... 1.25
New York, the world's greatest city, owes much to the thriving Dutch families who were there when it was "New Amsterdam." Little Annetje's home life acquaints us with the manners, habits, and methods of all these worthy people. The large type and abundance of good text illustrations help to make a book of exceptional value for all children from six to ten, and readable for anyone.

LILIUOKALANI, QUEEN.

Hawaii's Story. Illustrated..... 3.00
The rise and fortunes of Hawaii's royal family; the overthrow of the dynasty, and the erection of a republic.

LINDSAY, MAUD.

A Story Garden for Little Children. Illustrated..... 1.50
Equally suitable for home or school is this happily named, happily written "garden of stories" by an expert in the very difficult art of worthily interesting the little ones. Every detail of the book delights the eye and mind.

The Story-Teller for Little Children. Illustrated in Colors..... 1.50
This book takes its name from the wandering minstrel or "Story-teller" of the Middle Ages, who, from palace to cottage, was the most welcome of all guests in the opinion of the children. So is this book most welcome among books for younger boys and girls. Its stories are fascinating, each one a gem of thought and expression. Each story has a full-page illustration in colors.

Bobby and the Big Road. Illustrated in Colors..... 1.50
The wonderful genius of Maud Lindsay as a writer for the young is apparent in every line of "Bobby and the Big Road," a book for children from five to seven, and good reading for anyone. "The big road" is the Southern term for the highway leading to town, and little Bobby and his kind father and mother, who leave the city for a home in the country, find that it constantly leads to a delightful acquaintance with nature and to pleasant friendships.

Little Missy. Illustrated in Colors..... 1.50
Little Missy is the delightful story, told by herself, of a little girl on a Southern plantation, and a faithful picture of the happy childhood of many a "Little Missy." Many of the characters are drawn from life, and many of the incidents are based upon fact.

Silverfoot. Illustrated in Colors..... 1.50
When a young Southern planter went to join the Confederate Army, he left his beautiful horse, "Silverfoot," in the care of three enthusiastic little girls, who were faithful to their trust, but had exciting adventures while guarding their treasure, and many other thrilling experiences connected with the stirring time in which they lived.

The Toy Shop. Illustrated..... 1.50
"The Toy Shop" is a book of happy stories about children and their playthings, told in simple fashion for little folk from four to seven years old. These stories follow the toys purchased at the Toy Shop to their various new homes, and tell of what happens to them there. The aim of the book is to give joy to children.

LINDSAY, MAUD.—Continued.

The Choosing Book. Illustrated in Colors..... 1.50

"A new book by Maud Lindsay" is all that needs to be said to the book trade of the entire country and to those who are looking for the very best reading for children from six to ten. This favorite writer is at her best in this collection of whimsical tales which are told in a contest between two story-tellers in the olden days when story-telling was a recognized occupation and pastime. Every little reader of the book is given an opportunity to choose his favorite by a unique method of voting, and it is safe to say that each story-teller will have many friends. No hasty writer is Miss Lindsay. Each line is carefully wrought out to carry the effect in the happiest way, but the labor is all in the writing and never apparent. The reading is a constant delight.

LINDSAY, MAUD and POULSSON, EMILIE.

The Joyous Travelers. Illustrated..... 2.00

How interesting these Joyous Travelers are, the Squire's Little Son, the Young Lord, the Chapman or Peddler, the Farmer, the Elder and the Younger Sister, and all the rest! And what captivating stories and ballads they tell! Comical, quaintly wise, poetic, heroic, magical—each has its own charm. The book is a treasure-trove for story-tellers.

The Joyous Guests. Illustrated in Colors..... 2.00

A great favorite on account of the remarkable story-telling gift and poetic ability of its authors, the quaintness of its old-time characters in "Merry England," the best of all times and scenes for story-telling, and its artistic beauty. A Squire opens his spacious halls to Christmas guests, old and young, and insists that all tell tales.

This book is a succession of talks to boys on such subjects as "Self Honor," "The Price of Success," and many others—twenty-one helpful sections of a book that it will please any youth to own and prize.

MARTIN, G. G.

Jamaica "Ginger". Illustrated 1.50
His name was really Arnold Wade but he grew up on the docks of Jamaica, and was called "Ginger" from the bright color of his hair. But he had good blood in him, and it was his ambition some day to own one of the fine clipper ships that he so often saw and admired. At sixteen there came a great change in his life, and he was called to Salem to become a bondboy for a shrewd and grasping uncle who was a rich ship-owner. Giving up his chance for a successful career, he stands for right against wrong and escapes to his boyhood home, a humble cabin. Then surprising changes take him back to Salem and into his own.

"Genius comes in with 'Little Prudy.' Compared with her, all other book-children are cold creations of literature; she alone is the real thing. All the quaintness of childhood, its originality, its tenderness and its teasing, its infinite uncommon drollery, the serious earnestness of its fun, and the fun of its seriousness, the naturalness of its play, and the delicious oddity of its progress, all these united for dear Little Prudy to embody them."—Col. McGOWAN, SUSIE W.

Teeny Tales for Tiny Tots. Illustrated in Colors..... 1.75

Fifty of the best possible stories for the little ones, the larger part standards, retold in the way an experienced kindergartner finds effective in her own work. The quality of all is of the highest, and they develop and educate while they entertain. The large, clear type, and the liberal number of beautiful pictures in colors will help this book to be treasured by those who are interested in the wise care of very young boys and girls.

McVICKAR, HENRY GOELET and COLLINS, PERCY.

A Parish of Two 1.75

This story is told by an interchange of letters between an invalid clergyman and his man-of-the-world friend, each author writing the letters of one of the characters.

MILLER, AGNES.

The Chimes of Daskam High. Illustrated 1.50

A group of girls and boys of today, active in the varied, picturesque life of a typical American high school, take the parts in this merry and stimulating story.

Two Girls and Two Treasures. Illustrated 1.50

An unusual mystery story of school days and doings. Instead of accepting a popular belief that luck vanished forever with the still unexplained disappearance, forty years before, of the town's great treasure, a silver plaque, the "two girls," Lucille and Ethel, and their friends organize patriotic work to break the "bad luck" spell. How courage and intelligence win a hard fight, and unexpectedly bring to light rich hidden "treasures" to build a prosperous future for all citizens of their town is told in this eventful story, in which lively, natural boys and girls face a situation familiar to many young Americans today. For girls of high school age.

MIRZA, YOUEL B.

When I Was a Boy in Persia. Illustrated 1.25

(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)

No land has a name more suggestive of an interesting story than Persia, and the author has told most entertainingly of the real life of the people, learned by growing up as one of them, with exceptional intelligence and advantages. One very interesting feature of the book is a full account of the making of various kinds of beautiful rugs. The author's style is good, and his evident sincerity impressive.

MITCHELL, WILMOT B.

Elijah Kellogg. The Man and His Work. Illustrated 1.50

His early life, student days, pastoral life, authorship, and famous work among the seamen in Boston are all treated capably and well.

MOKRIEVITCH, VLADIMIR DE BOGORY.

When I Was a Boy in Russia. Illustrated 1.25

(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)

The author, a noted political exile, familiar with America, tells of his early life with a frank confidence and a descriptive power which win the reader and make him understand much of the strange land in which the heart of a boy could yet be the same as we know it.

MORGAN, ALFRED P.

The Boy Electrician. Illustrated 2.50

Alfred P. Morgan has told not only how to make all kinds of motors, telegraphs, telephones, batteries, etc., and to do so economically, but has explained the principles upon which these depend for operation. It is a book of practical plans for electrical toys and apparatus and is an explanation of the principles of every-day electricity.

MORGAN, ALFRED P.—Continued.

Boys' Home Book of Science and Construction. Illustrated.... 2.50

This remarkable book conducts its readers upon an absorbing excursion in the wonderland of Science. With many carefully drawn and illustrated plans and plain descriptions, boys are shown how to make at slight cost a great variety of mechanical appliances. Worth a whole library in its information, furnishing a liberal education in science, and so written as always to be entertaining and never dry.

MORGAN, ANNA BLUNT.

MURPHY, MARGUERITE.

Patricia From New York. Illustrated..... 1.50

Patricia, daughter of a wealthy and prominent New York family is well on the road to being spoiled. Her parents realize this, and while they are taking a year abroad Patricia is placed with her grandparents in a Minnesota village and given her first experience in a public high school.

Patricia and the Other Girls. Illustrated..... 1.50

Patricia is at a camp for girls on Lake Winnebago, Wisconsin, and has as her guest the girl who was her best friend in the Minnesota village where Patricia has passed a year and learned many things. The camp is under regular management, four girls to a tent, and an odd combination results in Patricia's tent. There are mysteries and excitement.

MURPHY, MARGUERITE.—Continued.

Patricia's Problem. Illustrated..... 1.50

After a year in a Minnesota village, which taught her much, Patricia returns to New York, where she is "left out of things," as she tells her mother, because she stands out against the rapid ways of her own set. How she works out her problem with the aid of sterling friends, is an intensely interesting and very profitable story for girls of fifteen and upward.

NEW, ILHAN.

When I Was a Boy in Korea. Illustrated..... 1.25

(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)

Ilhan New, as he styled himself in America, where surnames come last, is a native Korean, born of Christian parents, who as he approached manhood was sent to the United States for his education, and was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1919. After a successful business experience here, he returned to Korea in 1927, and is prominently established in Seoul. He not only has much to tell that is of great interest to young and old, but is exceptionally well qualified to tell it, as his book proves.

NEWCOMB, CHARLES B.

All's Right with the World..... 1.75

"It will be read by me very many times for its marvellous power of thought, perfect diction, and complete analysis of many problems of life, answering many queries that vex one, giving rest with repose.—Mrs. John A. Logan.

Discovery of a Lost Trail..... 1.75

"This book is one to feed the famine of the times. It is an interpretation of the spiritual law that builds. Truth lies in the intuitions, and upon this thought the work sheds a fulness of light with many rays."—Hezekiah Butterworth.

Principles of Psychic Philosophy..... 1.75

NEWCOMB, KATHERINE H.

NORTH, GRACE MAY.—Continued.

Dixie Martin, the Girl of Woodford's Canon. Illustrated..... 1.75

The Martin children, with Dixie, the eldest, and only twelve at that, go right to the hearts of those who read about them. Everyone admires a girl who can be a capable "little mother" to brothers and sisters, and Woodford's Canon, among the Sierra Nevada Mountains, makes a wonderful place for things to happen.

O'HAGAN, JOHN A. M.

The Song of Roland..... 1.00

OLIVER, MARY ETHEL.

Hail, California! Illustrated..... 1.50

This stirring story has for its setting the University of California, and its author knows her ground thoroughly. But, more than that, she knows the college spirit, which has nothing else like it. The central figure is Florence Essex, pretty and popular, who has taken for granted all the good things that have so easily come to her until she enters the "little world of rich and poor" which one finds in a college. Then comes a whirl of interesting studies and friends, sorority life, athletics, and pageantry, all contributing something to the development of a strength of character, that leaves Florence a splendid example of the true work of a college, the making of men and women, and able to meet life's great decisions sensibly.

PARK, FRANCIS E.

Grey Sprite, the Silver Knight. His Adventures in the Old, Old Forest. Illustrated in Colors..... 2.00

After a wealth of adventures this story ends as all would wish. The nature study introduced in the most natural way is so accurate as well as vivid that a child unconsciously grasps a great many lasting bits of knowledge that are a valuable part of education, while at the same time imbibing honor, kindness, and loyalty. For children from six to ten, if they can get it away from the older folk.

PARKHURST, BURLEIGH.

The Painter in Oil. Illustrated..... 1.75

A book of greatest practical use to the amateur painter; also of value and interest to the student of pictures. A guide to the principles and processes of the craft of painting which gives the reasons for things as well as the things themselves. It has many illustrations, including pictures of tools, copies of famous paintings and color charts.

PATTESON, S. LOUISE.

When I Was a Girl in Switzerland. Illustrated..... 1.25

(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)

Switzerland is a most popular country, and its charm is felt even by those who have never seen it. A daughter of this beautiful land who long made her home in the United States and was well known, tells entertainingly of her early life at home and at school, with much about the country itself and its customs. For girls from ten to fourteen.

PIERCE, LOLA.

The House that Ran Away. Illustrated..... 1.50

The house did run away, at least its location was greatly changed, and it contained a great mystery in the shape of a code letter, the unravelling of which was intensely interesting to Theodora and Jane, who did not go away for summer vacation.

POSSE, BARON NILS.

The Special Kinesiology of Educational Gymnastics. Illustrated. With Analytical Chart. 4to...... 3.00

Exposition of the Swedish system. Technical, but one of the best books in English on the subject for teachers and others interested in "the development of an exact science of bodily culture."

Handbook of School Gymnastics. 16mo..... .75

Contains one hundred consecutive tables of exercises and an appendix of classified lists of movements.

POULSSON, EMILIE.

Finger Plays. With music by Cornelia C. Roeske. Illustrated. 4to...... 1.50

FINGER PLAYS.

Trade-Mark Registered in U.S. Patent Office.

This book is too well known to need description. Equally a favorite in primary grades and the kindergarten and in homes where there are young children, more than 120,000 have been used, and the sale is increasing because no other book of its kind approaches it in child-interest, wisdom of thought, or beauty of expression. The bright, "catchy" tunes, and the clearness with which the artist has illustrated the plays are just what is needed to complete the work of a great teacher and talented poet.

Through the Farmyard Gate. 4to. Illustrated..... 1.50

Made up of stories and rhymes for little children at home and in the kindergarten, about the pets and animals with which the little folk become acquainted "through the farmyard gate."

Child Stories and Rhymes. 4to. Illustrated..... 1.50

A charming book of short stories and taking rhymes designed for little children, and just what might be expected from one of the most successful and popular of kindergartners in America.

The Runaway Donkey and Other Rhymes for Children. 4to. Illustrated. 1.50

This book of illustrated rhymes tells more about the tricksy donkey, Barney Gray, and narrates also the doings of various birds and beasts in a way to please the fancy and arouse the sympathy of children, while gratifying the love of animals which is so strong in childish hearts.

Father and Baby Plays. 4to. Illustrated..... 1.50

Excellent music and a profusion of good pictures help complete a book that can be invaluable in every home where there is a father and a young child.

Top-of the World Stories. Illustrated..... 1.50

These well-chosen Scandinavian folk stories have been translated by one who is recognized both as translator and story-teller.

What Happened to Inger Johanne. Illustrated..... 1.75

Translated from the Norwegian of Dikken Zwilgmeyer.

Wherever Inger Johanne is, there is something going on. She tells us all about it so naturally and with such unconscious humor that we quite forget she is a character in a book. Her comical mishaps that fill the book with fun are many and varied.

Inger Johanne's Lively Doings. Illustrated..... 1.75

Translated from the Norwegian of Dikken Zwilgmeyer.

There are no dull pages in Inger's chronicles. If naturalness and ease are indications, Inger Johanne has lost nothing in the change from one language to the other; but is at all times and in all places herself; a breezy, unspoiled, wholesomely original child who will be a good book-companion for other children.

Four Cousins. Illustrated..... 1.75

Translated from the Norwegian of Dikken Zwilgmeyer.

A good grandmother in Norway was lonely and found life dull. So she wrote to her four daughters—one in Sweden, one in South Germany, one in a Norwegian city home, and one far up in the mountains—that each must send a child to stay for a year. If excitement and variety were what Grandmother wanted, the four cousins certainly furnished enough to satisfy even her active mind.

The Children's Year in a Happy Home. Illustrated..... 1.75

By Mary Howitt. Edited by Emilie Poulsson.

A great favorite in its time, and remembered with pleasure by all who ever knew it, this book, so good that it should not be lost, has been made over for children of today because in telling how Herbert and Meggy lived and played in their English home, it brings out so well the universal childish experiences and activities of which all children delight to read.

Miss Poulsson's skilful editing has cut out insignificant details and happenings, and thus made the story more enjoyable than its original form. For children from six to twelve.

POULSSON, EMILIE and LINDSAY, MAUD.

Yule-Tide in Many Lands. Illustrated..... 1.50

The varying forms of Christmas observance at different times and in different lands are entertainingly shown by one trained in choosing and presenting the best to younger readers.

RHOADES, NINA.

"No other living author so thoroughly understands the feelings of an isolated child as does Miss Nina Rhoades, whether infirmity, poverty, or innocent naughtiness set him or her apart from others."—New York Times Book Review.

"THE BRICK HOUSE BOOKS," FOR CHILDREN 6 TO 12.

Only Dollie. Illustrated..... 1.50
The story of a girl of twelve, who, when the mystery of her birth is cleared up, passes, like Cinderella, from drudgery to better things.

The Little Girl Next Door. Illustrated..... 1.50
The story of the friendship between a little rich girl and a little blind girl next door.

Winifred's Neighbors. Illustrated..... 1.50
Winifred sets out to find some children about whom she had read in a book. She meets a girl of her own name and their acquaintance proves of greatest importance to Winifred's own family.

The Children on the Top Floor. Illustrated..... 1.50
Winifred, of "Winifred's Neighbors," reappears, but the story gets its real heart interest from Betty, and Jack, a little cripple, who are the "children on the top floor."

How Barbara Kept Her Promise. Illustrated..... 1.50
Barbara promises to take care of her sister, pretty, petted, mischievous Hazel. She had a hard time doing so but how she succeeded forms a story with a great deal of warmth and humanity.

Little Miss Rosamond. Illustrated..... 1.50
Gladys and Joy of "The Little Girl Next Door" reappear. It is a story of Rosamond, in her Richmond house, and of the seaside where she met Gladys and Joy.

Priscilla of the Doll Shop. Illustrated..... 1.50
There are three stories in this book, and we have never known two little girls who agreed as to which one they liked best.

Brave Little Peggy. Illustrated..... 1.50
Peggy came from California to New Jersey to live with a brother and sister whom she has not known since very early childhood and has much to contend with.

The Other Sylvia. Illustrated..... 1.50
A little girl named Mary was a "King's Daughter" and had pledged to be helpful to all other Marys. Sylvia decides to do likewise but has a hard time finding little girls of her name. But she does find the "other Sylvia" and great happiness along with her.

Maisie's Merry Christmas. Illustrated..... 1.50
Maisie's Merry Christmas, Jill and Lill, and How Reggie saw the Sphinx, make up this volume of pleasing stories.

Little Queen Esther. Illustrated..... 1.50
Little girls will probably think that the very nicest part of the story is where the "fairy in the wall" turns out to be most delightfully real.

Making Mary Lizzie Happy. Illustrated..... 1.50
Each of the four stories in this volume is true to Miss Rhoades's high standard of good taste and her power to charm young readers.

A Real Cinderella. Illustrated..... 1.50
The real Cinderella was an orphan who had inherited a passionate love of music from her father. You'll delight in reading of the good half-brother who was glad to be the "prince."

RHOADES, NINA.—Continued.

Plucky Little Patsy. Illustrated..... 1.50

Patsy, whose real name was Patricia Rivers, was a girl of twelve in a New York flat. Imagine her suddenly transformed into an heiress and taken to live in an English manor-house under the care of an uncle who at last has found his brother's child.

Nora's Twin Sister. Illustrated..... 1.50

Twelve-year-old Nora lived in a New York apartment with her widowed mother. There had been a twin sister exactly like Nora, but the mother could not provide for two, and so one had been given to a wealthy family for adoption. By chance the children meet, and the wilful sister insists upon a visit with her real mother, which had startling consequences.

Four Girls of Forty Years Ago. Illustrated..... 1.50

These four sisters, with ages from seven to twelve, are very real little girls because the interesting things they do were actually done by children who lived when it was thought remarkable to have even a telephone.

Puzzling Pepita. Illustrated..... 1.50

Eleven-year-old Pepita is living in Spain with the family of her Spanish mother, who died when Pepita was four. Her father is an American captain, away on a long cruise. Pepita, knowing only a little English, and brought up as a Spanish child, is sent to America to stay with her aunt.

The Adventures of Joan. Illustrated..... 1.50

Joan is a little blind girl, only eleven, and tells her own story, the concluding part of which is a very remarkable experience, though ending happily.

BOOKS FOR OLDER GIRLS.

The Girl from Arizona. Illustrated..... 1.75

The "girl" has grown to be fourteen before she sees New York so that it is like going into a new world, and her honest naturalness at times rebels against the artificiality she finds.

Victorine's Book. Illustrated..... 1.75

Fourteen-year-old Victorine writes a book telling her daily experiences and there are interesting results.

Marion's Vacation. Illustrated..... 1.75

Marion is sent for a summer in a pretty Vermont village, which proves to be a most important one to her.

Dorothy Brown. Illustrated..... 1.75

The heroine appears in New York as a little girl of eight, but the passing of six years finds her at a select family boarding-school in Connecticut. An important part of the story also takes place in the White Mountains.

The Independence of Nan. Illustrated..... 1.75

The heroine is a girl of fifteen, who goes from her grandfather's home in Ohio to that of an uncle in a Boston suburb.

When Gretel Was Fifteen. Illustrated..... 1.75

Gretel bears a name honored by her father, but unmistakably German. Both friends and foes are misled by this, and Gretel suddenly is compelled to face a situation requiring the highest degree of courage and fortitude as well as loyalty.

RICE, REBECCA.

The Brown Castle. Illustrated..... 1.50

The Brown Castle was the name fancifully given to a mansion, long unoccupied, the spacious grounds of which had come to be regarded as a special playground by the children of the neighborhood. A change came when the large house was reopened under the charge of a bright and winsome young lady, playfully called the "Princess," as befitted a Castle. How she won the friendship of the children is a delightful story.

Giles of the Star. Illustrated in Colors..... 2.00

Giles, a boy of the days of Richard the Lion-Hearted, was of noble birth, but thought himself only a peasant lad brought up by a friar, who was really a knight in disguise. His supposed lowly origin is enough to keep him from knighthood, but he feels that it must come, and plans a coat of arms, based on a star. So when he actually becomes a page, he is known to his mates as Giles of the Star. This, in a romantic succession of events, involving a feudal castle, manfully defended when besieged, knights, ladies, and King Richard himself, becomes a true prophecy of his future.

RIMMER, CAROLINE HUNT.

Nothing could be more exquisite than these dainty figures by which, with the accompanying text, children are trained to use their pencils in beautiful and accurate delineations of the human figure.

ROBBINS, ORISON.

A Boy of Old Quebec. Illustrated..... 1.75

During the height of the fierce Indian war that followed the settlement of Quebec, the "Boy," Jean Ribault, comes from France with his father, mother, and sister to make a home in the New World. The time is the middle of the seventeenth century.

A Boy of the Old French West. Illustrated..... 1.75

In the time of the French explorers a little party goes to a distant village of the Dacotahs, or Sioux, in search of the unknown father of the boy Philippe, but are pursued by the enmity of two chiefs. They flee down the Mississippi, and after many dangers and much hard fighting the mystery of Philippe's parentage is happily solved.

ROLT-WHEELER, FRANCIS.

"There is no man writing who can produce a better boy's book of adventure than Dr. Francis Rolt-Wheeler."

—The Philadelphia Press.

U. S. SERVICE SERIES.

The Boy with the U. S. Survey. Illustrated..... 1.75

Here are told the adventures of the U. S. Geological Survey, not in dry statistical reports and bluebooks, but graphically woven into a stirring narrative that both pleases and instructs.

The Boy with the U. S. Foresters. Illustrated..... 1.75

The life of a youthful forester is followed in adventurous detail—the mighty representative of our country's Government though young in years—a youthful monarch in a vast domain of forest.

The Boy with the U. S. Census. Illustrated..... 1.75

A bright American boy learns the growth and resources of our vast country, and how the necessary information is gathered, often with hardships and peril.

The Boy with the U. S. Fisheries. Illustrated..... 1.75

There is no lack of exciting scenes. The far Aleutian Islands have witnessed more desperate sea-fighting than has occurred elsewhere since the days of the Spanish buccaneers, and pirate craft, which the U. S. Fisheries must watch, rifle in hand, are prowling in the Behring Sea today.

ROLT-WHEELER, FRANCIS.—Continued.

The Boy with the U. S. Indians. Illustrated..... 1.75
A book thrilling in its human side by the heroism demanded in the little-known adventures of those who do the work of "Uncle Sam." This is especially true of those engaged in work with and for the Indians—always a name to conjure with among boys.

The Boy with the U. S. Explorers. Illustrated..... 1.75
How our Government explores strange places and investigates countless odd forms of plant life to develop that which may benefit the people of this great land.

The Boy with the U. S. Life-Savers. Illustrated..... 1.75
This volume, with its typical American boy as a centre, shows how our Government protects its citizens with the aid of the Revenue Cutter Service, the Life-Saving Service, and in the depths of the earth, where men from the Bureau of Mines take the lead in rescue work in colliery disasters.

The Boy with the U. S. Mail. Illustrated..... 1.75
The officials of the Post Office department have, as in the case of all other departments covered in this series, extended their courtesy to Dr. Rolt-Wheeler to enable him to tell us about one of the most interesting forms of "Uncle Sam's" care for us.

The Boy with the U. S. Weather Men. Illustrated..... 1.75
Weather is still the most important thing in the life of Man, and this book captures attention as much by the sheer fascination of its subject material as by the deftness with which this is woven into a genuine and gripping boys' story.

The Boy with the U. S. Naturalists. Illustrated..... 1.75
This volume shows the great value of bird life, demonstrating the dependence upon birds of the entire food supply of our country. Exciting features are supplied by piracy and adventure.

The Boy with the U. S. Trappers. Illustrated..... 1.75
The author tells the work of a little-known branch of the United States Government, the trappers and hunters of the Biological Survey. This is a book of true hunting, not done only as sport, but to save the lives and properties of the citizens of the United States.

The Boy with the U. S. Inventors. Illustrated..... 1.75
The U. S. Patent Office is the avenue through which world-transforming inventions pass. Dr. Rolt-Wheeler shows how, through inventions, this country has blossomed into greatness.

The Boy with the U. S. Secret Service. Illustrated..... 1.75
The Secret Service of the United States is truly a secret service. Its doings are most jealously guarded. Its secrets are tenaciously held. Its work is of the utmost importance, and few people know how wide is the scope of its activities.

The Boy with the U. S. Miners. Illustrated..... 1.75
This book tells of the skill and heroism of those who brave the toil and peril of the mines, and the great and intelligent care which our Government takes of their interests.

The Boy with the U. S. Diplomats. Illustrated..... 1.75
This book deals with the vast issues that shake the world, and the part played therein by the diplomats of the United States.

The Boy with the U. S. Radio. Illustrated..... 1.75
Dr. Rolt-Wheeler has joined the most accurate of simplified descriptions to the romance of discovery, and a score of new developments in wireless give pulsations to the pages of this work, where "Radio" finds an exponent worthy of its greatness.

ROLT-WHEELER, FRANCIS.—Continued.

The Boy with the American Red Cross. Illustrated..... 1.75
The Red Cross is the hero-heart of America set in action, and comes to the front in practical ways undreamed of by the public, and, in this book, Dr. Rolt-Wheeler has given heart-stirring narrations of all that is finest in this phase of unselfish American adventure.

The Boy with the U. S. Marines. Illustrated..... 1.75
This book tells the thrilling story of the Marines, who have so often held the most distant outposts of law and order. To read this book is to feel the spell of Americanism, to realize that arms may be a potent force for peace, and to have love for the Stars and Stripes heightened and deepened.

The Boy with the U. S. Navy. Illustrated..... 1.75
Dr. Rolt-Wheeler knows where to find the best information, how to shape it into story form with rare intelligence, and how to captivate his readers. A bright American boy is his central figure around which so much of historical as well as of present-day importance revolves. How the United States does its great work is ably shown in his books. Our Navy gives him a fitting field for one of his best efforts. For boys of twelve and upwards.

The Wonder of War in the Air. Illustrated..... 1.75
With an American youth as a central figure, and made clear by many illustrations direct from the front, it shows the wonderful training of the French Aviation schools and swiftly brings its hero into thrilling adventures and encounters in the clouds.

The Wonder of War on Land. Illustrated..... 1.75
The adventures of a young American who is caught in the backward sweep of the Retreat to the Marne, and served in the ragged legion which saved Paris.

The Wonder of War at Sea. Illustrated..... 1.75
The hero, wrecked by a mine, sees a Destroyer action in all its fury and its awfulness. The ways of the super-Dreadnaught are told, and the secret of Britain's "mystery fleet" is at last revealed.

The Wonder of War in the Holy Land. Illustrated..... 1.75
This book vividly shows the extraordinary difficulties of the campaigns in the waterless deserts of Egypt, Arabia, Palestine, and Syria, as well as in the burning flood-plains of Mesopotamia.

THE MUSEUM BOOKS

The Monster-Hunters. Illustrated..... 1.75
It is a story of thrilling adventure, and through its pages writhe or thunder those vast and uncanny monsters that inhabited this world long ago.

The Polar Hunters. Illustrated..... 1.75
Strange fights with walrus and polar-bear on the sea, ice perils from drifting floes and crashing bergs, and the constant fight against hunger, cold, and darkness, give the book a glamor as great as is its wealth of information.

The Aztec-Hunters. Illustrated..... 1.75
Combining the excitement of exploration with the intense grip of a mystery story, the true romance of a vast and powerful American civilization, which flourished more than a thousand years before Columbus landed, is here told.

The Wreck-Hunters. Illustrated..... 1.75
With young Latimer Voley, son and grandson of the most famous "wreckers" of the Bahamas, as a central figure, we are shown how sunken millions are salvaged, requiring the most expert nautical and mechanical skill, and the utmost bravery.

The Sahara Hunters. Illustrated..... 1.75

Nowhere does there exist a people more savage and less known than the Black-Veiled Men of the Desert, the Touaregs and the Tubbus. A boy, who is half-American by birth, is captured by this tribe, his father is slain, and yet through his friendship with a marabout and with a water-finder he succeeds in bringing this hostile tribe into friendly relations with civilization.

The Gem-Hunters. Illustrated..... 1.75

The central figure is an intelligent South African youth who, just previous to the Boer War, found on his uncle's property, not far from the famous Kimberley fields, a diamond of unusual value that led to most remarkable experiences.

Hunters of Ocean Depths Illustrated..... 1.75

Oceanography is one of the most interesting of all studies, and its pursuit at times is intensely adventurous and exciting. This book tells the adventures of an American boy on a scientific expedition conducted by experts with a thoroughly equipped vessel of the U. S. Navy.

The News-Hunters. Illustrated..... 1.75

This volume, with its bright American youth for a central figure, not only tells many of the exciting feats which have been wrought for the sake of the newspaper, but also traces the importance of the newspaper in the development of America.

The Tusk-Hunters. Illustrated..... 1.75

The daring and prowess of human hunters is strikingly revealed, from Prehistoric Man's stone-weaponed battling with the Hairy Mammoth to the modern sportsman's skill and the audacity of the up-to-date nature photographer. Nor is the practical side omitted, for this book tells how wild elephants are caught, tamed, trained, and set to the service of man.

The Boys' Book of the World War. Illustrated..... 2.50

Dr. Rolt-Wheeler has succeeded in compressing the whole diplomatic, political, economic, and military history of the war into an incisive, compact, and readable form.

The Book of Cowboys. Illustrated..... 2.00

Dr. Rolt-Wheeler has given a vivid and accurate picture of the days through which the Western States leaped from savagery to Statehood. The book is unique in its matter of handling, and, while the reader will revel in its thrilling incidents and its sweep of the Great Outdoors, he will lay it down with a fuller understanding of the lives of the men who contributed so much to America's greatness.

In the Time of Attila. Illustrated..... 2.00

One of the most conspicuous names in the world's history will always be that of Attila, styled by medieval writers the "Scourge of God", on account of the ruthless destruction he carried to so many lands and peoples in the middle of the Fifth Century. Surely here is an intensely interesting setting for a story by a master hand, and no one can excel Dr. Rolt-Wheeler in carefulness of scholarly research or the vigor of telling. As a matter of fact, only two of the characters in this book are fictitious. These are introduced to give the necessary story interest, and thus we are entertained by the most exciting of adventures and learn much of the ambition, intrigue, and desperate courage that "made history".

ROY, SATYANANDA.

When I Was a Boy in India. Illustrated..... 1.25

(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)

The author is one of leaders of national movement for liberal thought in India, and his book is a charming account of a boyhood which in its telling makes us acquainted with a wonderful country, and how its people live.

These editions contain "The Horse's Prayer;" the story of how "Black Beauty" was written; and tells how to form Bands of Mercy.

SHARPE, C.
The Lone Star of Carbajal. Illustrated..... 1.75
The scene of this story is near Los Angeles in the historic '50's. The ranch of the proud Carbajal family is near Tejon Canon, the stronghold of the highwayman, Murrieta. Marta Carbajal and her twin brother, Pedro, aided by a gallant young American, become involved in a series of exciting adventures which reach a climax when Marta escapes from the bandit and rides a spirited horse into the midst of a gay ball at the Governor's mansion to give the warning that saves Los Angeles from an attack by the outlaws. A thrilling story of mystery, daring and romance which will be enjoyed by all ages.

SHATTUCK, HARRIETTE R.
Woman's Manual of Parliamentary Law. 16mo. Indexed.... 1.00
This manual, although intended for all students, is especially prepared for the use of women in their clubs, unions, or any organization where meetings are conducted.
Advanced Rules. 16mo. Indexed..... 1.00
For large assemblies. A supplement to "The Woman's Manual of Parliamentary Law." The Ready Reference Table for Presiding Officers" is worth far more than the price of the book.
Parliamentary Answers. 16mo. Indexed..... 1.00
This neat book makes it possible for even a novice at presiding to rule promptly and accurately on any matter likely to come up in any meetings conducted under parliamentary law. Nothing equals the question-and-answer method for conveying workable information quickly.

SHERIDAN, SOL N.
Billy Vanilla. Illustrated..... 1.50

SHIOYA, SAKAE.
When I Was a Boy in Japan. Illustrated..... 1.25
(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)
The author was born fifty miles from Tokio, and came to America in 1901, received a degree at the University of Chicago, and took a two years' post-graduate course at Yale before returning to Japan. No one could be better qualified to introduce the Japanese to those in America.

SMITH, CHAPLAIN CHELLIS V.

Americans All. Illustrated..... 1.25

This is a book of real Americanism. It took a crisis in the world's history to bring out the heroism and grandeur of character of the nine men of strikingly varied types who are its subjects.

SMITH, MRS. CHETWOOD.

History's Most Famous Words. Illustrated..... 2.50

Mrs. Smith has explained with great accuracy two hundred more or less well-known expressions, giving two pages of glowing description to the sayer, scene, and circumstances of each. Any one can dip into this book and become interested at once. These sayings range in time from 2700 B. C. to the present century, and come from many lands. To know their origin is in itself a liberal education.

SMITH, ELEANOR.

Song Devices and Jingles. Illustrated in Colors..... 1.50

This is a book for young children to be welcomed with enthusiasm by teachers, kindergartners, and mothers. Not only will it appeal to all children by the freshness of its material and the variety of its contents, but will be of the greatest benefit to those who cannot sing, or can sing only with help.

SMITH, ELVA S.

Mystery Tales. Illustrated..... 2.00

As an expert in one of our greatest libraries, the editor of this book has come to know the demand for stories to kindle the imagination of youth, and here are the world's best, gathered with trained knowledge and great care.

Good Old Stories for Boys and Girls. Illustrated..... 2.00

There are wonder tales and allegories, legendary stories, and others which tell of life in different countries. The scenes are varied and the stories carry one far away into the realms of fairyland, to European lands or to the Saharan desert.

SMITH, ELVA S.—Continued.

Peace and Patriotism. Illustrated..... 2.00

A timely collection because of the awakened spirit of patriotism and self-sacrifice since the World War and the resulting interest in the relationship of nations. Includes approximately 150 selections—poems, speeches, and other material.

Heroines of History and Legend. Illustrated..... 2.00

Girls as well as boys delight in brave deeds and heroic action, and here are 48 stories, ballads, and narrative poems telling of heroines in different ages and in many lands, from the time of the East Indian princess, Savitri, whose love was not conquered by death, to Nurse Edith Cavell, who sacrificed her life in the European war.

More Mystery Tales. Illustrated..... 2.00

More stories and poems of ghosts and wizards, of hidden treasure and strange enchantments. The collection will be of interest to young people for general reading at all times of the year and will be especially useful at Hallowe'en in providing stories and poems appropriate to the season and of real literary merit.

A Book of Lullabies. Illustrated..... 2.50

Only a most industrious editor of exceptional acquaintance with books and their readers could gather this appealing wealth of Cradle Songs, Folk Lullabies, and Hush Rhymes from many lands and of all times.

SMITH, ELVA S. and HAZELTINE, ALICE I.

Christmas in Legend and Story. Illustrated..... 2.00

Miss Smith is head of the Children's Department, Carnegie Library, Pittsburgh, and Miss Hazeltine is Supervisor of Children's Work, St. Louis Public Library. With wide research and great pains they gathered the noblest, grandest, sweetest, and most reverent of all that eminent writers in varying lands and in different times have told us in prose and verse of the origin and sentiment of this "gracious time."

The story of what one irrepressible young woman accomplished in a most unpromising neighborhood.

STONE, KATHLEEN P.

The Four-Year-Old's Story Book. Illustrated..... 1.50
This book is published because so many needed it. Parents and others who tell the stories that little ones call for do not like to be obliged to stop and explain meanings, either of words or incidents, and the truest enjoyment and most immediate benefit come where every scene and every descriptive word is within the knowledge of the child. Hence the great value of these twelve charming, homelike stories, each with its attractive colored picture. They are in large, plain type, and no word or sentence is beyond the comprehension of a young child. There is no padding in them to please the grown-up. These are entertaining, wholesome stories, told just as the children want them.

STORY, WALTER SCOTT.

The Garden of the Little Lame Princess. Illustrated..... 1.50

The Little Lame Princess, the pet name for a little shut-in girl, and her good nurse, always ready with nice stories, could look through their window upon a fine garden where all nature seemed to display its various forms of life. Birds, animals, and insects were friendly, and wished to entertain the beloved little Princess. They go through an entire year under the wise guidance of the Nature fairies. When another spring awoke, that glad season was made more joyous for all because the little Princess, no longer lame, could walk among the flowers. Many lessons of kindness are brought out, along with a charming acquaintance with Nature's many mysteries. For all children from six to ten.

TOWNSEND, MALCOLM.

Handbook of United States Political History. 8vo. Illustrated 2.50

A carefully compiled and prompt presentation of every important event in the political development of the United States of America, exhibiting the origin, promulgation, and completion of the standard national laws. It is a reference volume more often consulted than the dictionary.

TROLLE-STEENSTRUP, H.

When I Was a Boy in Denmark. Illustrated..... 1.25

(See CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS BOOKS, Page 10.)

The author had the advantage of growing up in the beautiful city of Copenhagen, the heart of Denmark, and was not only finely educated, but a "regular fellow" in every boyish activity that can be imagined. For boys from ten to fifteen.

TROWBRIDGE, J. T.

Trowbridge understood boys and girls. He knew that boys and girls can be inspired to good, but cannot be driven. And yet not in any of his books is there preaching. He tells his stories in a clean, straight-forward manner.

VAN HORN, DALE R.

Sportcraft for All the Year. Illustrated..... 2.00

This book is in two parts: "Summer Sportcraft" and "Winter Sportcraft." In the first we are told how to make and set up or use apparatus for having fun in the water; we are shown ways for making camp life easy and pleasant; we are given excellent ideas about the garden; we receive instructions for fun and usefulness about the home. In "Winter Sportcraft," we are taught how to prepare for all kinds of interesting sports where there are ice and snow, and also shown "Indoor Sportcraft," which applies to any climate. This book is away out of the commonplace and will appeal most particularly to bright lads who are tired of the usual things taught by trite descriptions.

VAN OSDEL, JANET THOMAS.

Betty Barker. A Little Girl with a Big Heart. Illustrated in Colors. 1.50

WELLS, R. F.

With Caesar's Legions. With Illustrations and Map..... 1.50
One of the most remarkable series of military operations the world has ever seen is for the first time presented as a fascinating story of youthful adventure, with skilful emphasis on the great qualities of leadership which made Caesar the idol of his troops and the famous commander that he was. Not a dry line in it, even for those who never read "Caesar" in school. Any who have thought Roman history dull will never feel that way again after reading the fortunes of Titus and Julius Colenus. Based on Book I of Caesar's Commentaries.

On Land and Sea with Caesar. With Illustrations and Map.... 1.50
Two Roman cousins, Titus and Julius Colenus, rejoin the Eagles and follow them through vast forests into unknown seas, and to the shores of Britain, where they take part in the conquest. The last stand of the Gauls is thrillingly portrayed, and there is a close view of many noted characters in Roman history. Such a book is a genuine contribution to education, with more than merely enough power in narration to hold the reader. For boys of high-school age, and of no less value to girl students. Based on Books II, III, and IV of Caesar's Commentaries.

WHATELY, ARCHBISHOP.

The Story of the Cid. Illustrated..... 1.50

This version of the story of this valiant knight of Spain is founded on Southey's translation. The Cid "Campeador's" adventures, brave if sometimes cruel deeds and hardy challenging of all sorts of danger combine to make one of the most romantic stories of history.

WILSON, HARRY LEON.

The Lions of the Lord. Illustrated..... 1.75

A thrilling tale of the Mormon settlement of Salt Lake City, with all its grotesque comedy, grim tragedy, and import to American civilization. A vivid story of the Old Salt Lake Trail.

The Spenders. Illustrated..... 1.75

Mark Twain wrote to the author of this splendid, well-known story, "It cost me my day. yesterday. You owe me $400. But never mind, I forgive you for the book's sake."

WINBURN, HARDY L.

The Lead-Hunters of the Ozarks. Illustrated..... 1.75

No more magnificent scheme of dominion was ever planned on this continent than that of Aaron Burr, and our Government naturally felt great concern. Large quantities of ammunition might be needed at any time, and lead must be provided. Valuable deposits were understood to be in the Ozark region of Arkansas, and knowledge of these must be faithfully and secretly gained. A white boy, Hugh, and his inseparable friend, a young Cherokee Indian, skilled in woodcraft, could perhaps succeed where a recognized prospecting party might fail, and they render a great public service. For boys of twelve and upwards.

WITHINGTON, DR. PAUL.

The Book of Athletics. New Edition Revised by Lothrop Withington. Illustrated...... 2.00

This book covers football, track athletics, baseball, rowing, ice hockey, tennis, swimming, association football or "soccer," wrestling, lacrosse, basket-ball, and golf. It also contains a general discussion of athletics and an article on training. These articles are all by world-renowned athletes, and this book is proclaimed by athlete and spectator as the best in its field.

WOOD, HENRY.

God's Image in Man..... 1.50

Ideal Suggestion Through Mental Photography..... 1.50

A restorative system for home and private use, preceded by a study of the laws of mental healing. It is concise, simple, and practical, and its specialty is self-restoration without the necessity of outside aid.

NEW PUBLICATIONS AND ANNOUNCEMENTS OF

1928 John W. Luce & Company 1928

212 SUMMER STREET, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

CHRISTOPHER NORTH AND THE NOCTES AMBROSIANAE. By Carrie Thompson Lowell. A biography of John Wilson, who as Christopher North, for thirty years, beginning in 1822, contributed to Blackwood's the famous Noctes Ambrosianae.

Wilson, a sportsman, student, poet, friend of Walter Scott and an intimate of the Lake Poets, Professor of Morality at the University of Edinburgh, was in many respects the most representative man of his day.

From the "Noctes" Mrs. Lowell makes a most judicious selection. Cloth. Net, $3.00.

SIR ISAAC NEWTON. A Brief Account of His Life and Work. By S. Brodetsky, Professor of Applied Mathematics, University of Leeds. This biography aims to combine an account of his life and personality with a clear and easily understood statement of his great scientific achievements that have to so large an extent made possible the modern scientific progress in physics, optics and astronomy.

The volume contains a striking portrait of Newton from the bust by Roubiliac, a map of Newton's part of Lancashire and ten diagrams illustrative of the problems discussed in the text. Cloth. Net, $2.00.

ITALY IN THE RENAISSANCE. By Maud F. Jerrold. With twelve illustrations. Of the numerous books inspired by the history, art and literature of the Renaissance, none has so emphasized and clarified the stream of intellectual activity which was the motive force of the entire period, as the present work. Rome, Florence, Venice and Naples of the Fifteenth Century, in their artistic and literary aspects, are passed in review.

The ducal courts of Ferrara, Mantua and Urbino in the Sixteenth Century are selected for special consideration.

In treating of the educational ideals of the period Miss Jerrold selects several of the famous teachers and schools of the day, recording in detail the curricula and methods of instruction.

The poets and novelists are studied in a special chapter. Cloth. Net, $4.50.

UNIVERSITY OF UTAH PLAYS. Seven One-Act Plays. Edited by B. Roland Lewis, Professor of English in the University of Utah. A worthy addition to the group of volumes issued by the different colleges and universities maintaining courses in playwriting.

"The Exchange," "The Gray Switch," "The Boomer," "Sara," "The Turkey Girl," "And the Devil Laughs," "A Man of Temperament." Net, $1.50.

NEW QUARTOS——$2 NET EACH——NEW QUARTOS

The volumes measure 6½ x 8½, are printed on specially made Flemish Book Paper, bound in boards with labels, and throughout represent a high class of book making.

CASANOVA. An Appreciation by Havelock Ellis with Excerpts from the Mémoires.

LONDON NIGHTS. By Arthur Symons.

MARIE: A BOOK OF LOVE. By Peter Nansen.

LAZARILLO OF TORMES. Translated by Mariano Joaquin Lorente.

AN OUTLINE OF COPYRIGHT LAW. By Richard C. DeWolf, LL.B., Lecturer on the Law of Copyrights and Trade-Marks in American University. The author writes from a practical experience of copyright problems gained during a long service in the Copyright Office at Washington and in the practice of copyright law. Special attention is given to the subject of dramatic and motion picture rights.

The book is written in non-technical language and the subject so presented as to constitute a safe and simple guide to authors, publishers and producers as well as to the professional lawyer. Net, $3.50.

THE LIFE AND PERSONALITY OF JEFFERSON DAVIS. By Morris Schaff, A biography of the late President of the Southern Confederacy by a former officer of the regular army whose works are notable for generous appreciation of the character of his opponents. In the present volume the same spirit is evinced as he traces the career of his fellow West Point graduate, and accords to him a justice long delayed. Net, $3.00.

THE SUNSET OF THE CONFEDERACY. By Morris Schaff.

An exhaustive and graphic narrative of the fall of Petersburg, the evacuation of Richmond and the closing scenes at Appomattox. Net, $3.00.

REMY DE GOURMONT.

The volumes listed below are uniform, handsomely bound in parchment and boards. Each, net, $2.00.

THE HORSES OF DIOMEDES. By Remy deGourmont. Translated by C. Sartoris.
This is one of deGourmont's rarer creations in which as the slender thread of his tale runs on, Diomedes, the aristocratic recluse, indulges with certain select friends of both sexes in aphoristic discussions on the problems of beauty, morality and the pleasure of the senses. In the works of deGourmont Diomedes holds a place not unlike Nietzsche's Zarathustra. Net, $2.00.

A NIGHT IN THE LUXEMBOURG. By Remy deGourmont. Translated by Arthur Ransome. A literary sensation. The sensuous beauties of Paganism and the moral virtues of Christianity are daringly blended in this romance of esthetic emotions and intellectual speculations. Net, $2.00.

PHILOSOPHIC NIGHTS IN PARIS. By Remy deGourmont. A volume touching on a wide range of topics giving ample field for expression to the epicurean temperament of this distinguished French stylist. Bound uniformly with "A Night in the Luxembourg." Net, $2.00.

THE BOOK OF MASKS. By Remy deGourmont. Translated by Jack Lewis, with an introduction by Ludwig Lewisohn.
Verlaine, Maeterlinck, Maillerme, Verhaeren, Regnier, Villers de L'Isle-Adam, indeed all of the symbolists pass before the reader's eye, illuminated by the deep understanding and charming presentation of the distinguished author. Net, $2.00.

GREEK TRAGEDY. By Gilbert Norwood, M.A., University College, Cardiff. The book covers for the first time the whole field of Greek Tragedy, in a manner useful both to classical students and those interested in dramatic literature. The discoveries at Oxyrhynchus, and the latest archæological, historical and critical theories, are discussed. There is a separate appreciation of each extant play. Net $5.00.

EURIPIDES AND MR. SHAW. By Gilbert Norwood, author of "Greek Tragedy," etc.
A highly interesting and stimulating volume of essays on drama and the basic principles of dramatic composition. The essay from which the title is chosen is a comparison between Euripides and Bernard Shaw. Net, $2.50.

DRAMA

THE TECHNIQUE OF THE ONE ACT PLAY. By Prof. B. Rowland Lewis. Professor Lewis develops his subject from a more scientific foundation than is usual with writers on drama, and as a textbook and practical help to play writers this is a notable contribution. Net, $1.75.

PLAYS OF THE ITALIAN THEATRE. Translated by Isaac Goldberg. A selection of contemporary one-act plays by the leading dramatists of Italy including Giovani Verga, Lugi Pirandello, Ercole Morselli, Marienetti, Giocosa. The selection has been made to include plays adapted to amateur as well as professional performance. $2.00.

SIX PLAYS OF THE YIDDISH THEATRE. "In the Dark," by Perez Hirschbein; "Winter" and "The Sinner," by Sholom Ash; "She Must Marry a Doctor," by Sholom Aleichem; "Abigail" and "Forgotten Souls," by David Pinski; translated and edited by Dr. Isaac Goldberg. Cloth and boards. Net, $1.50.

PLAYS OF THE YIDDISH THEATRE. Second Series. A new volume containing the latest plays of the Yiddish stage translated and edited by Dr. Isaac Goldberg. Uniform with the "Six Plays of the Yiddish Theatre." Net, $1.50.

THE HAUNTED INN. A Drama in four Acts. Translated from the Yiddish of Peretz Hirshbein. Net, $1.50.

PLAYS BY STRINDBERG. Vol. I. Containing: "The Father," "Countess Julie," "The Stronger," "The Outlaw." Authorized translation. Cloth. Net, $1.50.

WHY WE MISBEHAVE

Dr. Samuel D. Schmalhausen

AN APPRECIATION BY
DR. WILLIAM A. WHITE
(Dean of American Psychiatrists and Psychoanalysts).

THE nineteenth century has been referred to as especially marked by the great strides man was able to take as a result of scientific development in the control of his environment, and the present century is still hopefully regarded as the century which may shift the emphasis to man's control of himself.

If such a shift in viewpoint, or better yet such addition to our viewpoints, which would be in line with Dr. Schmalhausen's suggestion that we should learn to formulate our increasing knowledge in terms of "both and" rather than "either or", should happily take place, it would be because of an increasing tolerance of mind which is brought about by just such examinations of the present-day significance of the fundamental concepts which we have inherited from the past as Dr. Schmalhausen attempts in WHY WE MISBEHAVE, and this examination is just what is going forward in this age and is the special significance, as I see it, of this particular book.

A detailed discussion of the ideas set forth in this volume would of necessity be as voluminous if not more so than the book itself and each reader will naturally gather those things which are to him peculiarly attractive.

And so I welcome WHY WE MISBEHAVE as a catalyzer of human thought wherever it may gain access thereto. May it play its part in a benevolent revolution of ways of thinking which will finally result in as much understanding by man of himself as he now has of his environment.

By SAMUEL D. SCHMALHAUSEN

M.A., Ph.D.

Author of "HUMANIZING EDUCATION".

Dr. George A. Dorsey, distinguished author of WHY WE BEHAVE LIKE HUMAN BEINGS, says of PSYCHIATRY TO THE RESCUE (One of the chapters in WHY WE MISBEHAVE):

"One of the most fascinating, suggestive and interesting papers I have ever read. It is nothing less than a masterpiece and I am delighted to have it."

The following chapter heads will illustrate the scope of this brilliant survey of modern morals:

SEX AMONG THE MODERNS
IS PROSTITUTION PETERING OUT?
PSYCHIATRY TO THE RESCUE
MENTAL HYGIENE: THE QUINTESSENCE OF THE NEW PSYCHOLOGY
A PSYCHO-SEXUAL INVENTORY
THE PSYCHONEUROTIC SITUATION IN OUR COLLEGES.

WHY WE MISBEHAVE $3.00

Of his previous book HUMANIZING EDUCATION, Harry Elmer Barnes wrote: "HUMANIZING EDUCATION is a valuable and original work — an effective critique of conventional education — stimulating suggestions as to the reorganization of our educational system. I take pleasure in recommending the book."

ZOLA AND HIS TIME

Zola Salutes the Bust of Balzac

By MATTHEW JOSEPHSON

ILLUSTRATED WITH A GREAT NUMBER OF CONTEMPORARY PRINTS, CARICATURES AND PORTRAITS.

KENNETH BURKE
(Author and Critic)

WE are indebted to Josephson for this vast collation of data on the life, the writings, and the environment of Zola; the literary and cultural currents in which he worked, his relationship to his contemporaries and his influence upon both art and society. Zola is interpreted as a key figure, "at the confluence of Balzac and Hugo."

Nor is the author of the prurient, snooping school of biographers. Not that he attempts to gloss over any aspects of his subject; but he is mature and balanced enough to handle such things without itching fingers. Again, we are spared the tricky "complexes" and "inhibitions" of the already dying psychoanalytic jargon.

Zola is presented simply as a man, of enormous power and ambition, whose books continually tended to overstep their destination as novels and assume the coercive function of political and social polemics; a man who lived a rather spotless life as lives go, while earning the reputation of a degenerate; a man who worked so persistently and thoroughly at his age that by fifty he found himself, in the words of Henry James, "with arrears of personal history to make up." He makes them up, touchingly in his relations with Mme. Rozerot, and imposingly in his conduct during the Dreyfus case.

It is, indeed, in the handling of the Dreyfus case that the biographer goes beyond biography. Like Zola, he so musters his facts as to make a lyric of them, rousing us with his swift account of this struggle between corruption and heroism, restoring for us the wrath of this conflict, and sounding again the cry for justice. Josephson here writes with a combination of document and verve which he might well have learned from the master himself.

Matthew Josephson

"Zola was all passion. He lived in a state of indignation, ready to revolt at the injustice or stupidity he saw about him. The spirit of revolt and combat was eternally fresh in him. There are no more Zolas today."

The publishers feel justified in their opinion that ZOLA AND HIS TIME is one of the greatest modern biographical studies that has yet been presented.

The illustrations which form a running pictorial commentary on the life of Zola form one of the most unique collections of documents on the subject. $5.00

MY FIRST 2,000 YEARS

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF THE WANDERING JEW

George Sylvester Viereck

Paul Eldridge

By GEORGE SYLVESTER VIERECK

Author of "CONFESSIONS OF A BARBARIAN", "THE HOUSE OF THE VAMPIRE", "THE CANDLE IN THE FLAME", etc.

and PAUL ELDRIDGE

Author of "IRONY AND PITY", "OUR DEAD SELVES", "THE INTRUDER", etc.

DR. ISAAC GOLDBERG

(Author, critic and editor, biographer of Havelock Ellis, H. L. Mencken, Gilbert and Sullivan).

I HAVE almost finished—in manuscript—the huge novel (over 1200 pages of typewriting) by George Sylvester Viereck and Paul Eldridge, on the theme of the Wandering Jew. In more ways than one MY FIRST TWO THOUSAND YEARS is colossal.

One might say that it is based upon the Freudian theme of the repetition compulsion, with its resounding motif that all things are at once different and the same—that history is forever repeating itself, to what avail? This is, and in no metaphorical sense, to the novel what the symphony is to music. It is sound, deep writing, with a patina of irony that will delight all lovers of Anatole France.

Compared to this civilized tale, the confused panorama of Wasserman's "World's Illusion" is a hectic phantasmagoria. Eldridge and Viereck are almost lacking in the Hugoism and the Tolstoyanism of Wasserman's masterpiece. They have given a finer, a deeper image of the universe—one that succeeds in the difficult task of designing truer to the lines of normality and at the same time weaving into the texture the counterpoint of taint, perversion and experiment. Their Wandering Jew is not only a cosmic symbol, he is man, he is woman, he is sex, normal and abnormal, he is history, he becomes life itself.

If when printed at last, this book falls into the right hands, I forsee for it a large and delightful public. As conception it is courageous; as writing, it is clear, musical and ingratiating to one's feeling for words as sense and sound.

It is a work of art that stands alone in the history of American fiction.

After he had read "My First Two Thousand Years" in manuscript, Dr. Sigmund Freud said:

"Your Wandering Jew interests me immensely. I hope I shall live long enough to see it in print."

George Bernard Shaw wrote:

"Viereck is endowed, to marvelous degree, with creative imagination."

Havelock Ellis wrote:

"Paul Eldridge's writings possess the precision, the clear outline, the concentrated thought with all superfluity brushed aside—what one may call the classical qualities."

MAN'S BEST FRIEND

THE STORY OF THE DOG

Capt. A. H. Trapman

By CAPTAIN A. H. TRAPMAN

Author of "THE GREEKS TRIUMPHANT", "CHILDREN OF ALLAH" and several military textbooks.

With an interesting introduction by
ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

SPECIALLY ILLUSTRATED WITH ETCHINGS BY DIANA THORNE, AS WELL AS NUMEROUS ENGRAVINGS, PHOTOGRAPHS AND DRAWINGS.

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

A FULL ninety-nine percent of humankind is divided sharply into two groups: those who know nothing about dogs and like them, and those who know nothing about dogs and dislike them. The former group is in excess of the latter by probably ten to one.

Remains a bare one percent, at most:—the people who have some genuine understanding of dogs. Of these the percentage who can impart that understanding to others in non-technical and entertaining fashion, yet with wise accuracy, is so small as to be all but negligible.

Thus, there are but three men living, so far as I have been able to discover, who can write a really good dog story;—and one of that trio has left the rich and undertilled field of dog-fiction.

I know of only two authors competent to write with authority and yet with charm a non-fiction book on dogs. Captain A. H. Trapman is one of the two.

He knows his theme as it is not given to many of us to know it; and he has a rare gift in the matter and manner of setting his facts and deductions before the reader. I do not know his superior along this line. He knows dogs, inside and out. He has dug deep into their history and he shows a sharp aptitude for gleaning the few truths from the avalanche of chaff.

He writes with an affectionate understanding which never crosses the razor-thin line between sane sentiment and sloppiness. His feet are always on the ground. (Incidentally, they never are in the slush.)

He has written one of the most entertaining, instructive and altogether worthwhile contributions to dog literature, that I have had the good fortune to read. I am glad to have my inconsequential name tacked to such a work; even in a small way.

Several fascinating chapters are devoted to exploring the spiritual possibilities of the dog's mission in life, while dog psychology is studied in the light of a thousand instances of reasoning power, humor, devotion, and self-sacrifice. In one section of the book, the author gives us what has never been attempted before—the origin and history of all the various breeds of dogs, together with much valuable technical information and hints on the care and education of our dogs. It is a strong plea to owners to establish a closer link between their four-footed friends and themselves.

Capt. Trapman is known in Europe, in Africa, and in Asia for his manifold varieties of activity. Soldier, explorer and lecturer; war correspondent, author and linguist; in all these roles, he played eventful parts. But his interest in the study of the dog has been the chief motivation of his life.

A New Narrative of the Life and Hazardous Adventures of the Genoese, CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS.

(Translator of "The Discoverer")

EVERY man of history is to some extent a mystery to his biographers but none more so, perhaps, than Columbus. In the alternate phases of depression and of eminence which clouded or illuminated his life; in the patchwork of pretense and reality which he fashioned about himself; in the confusion of his motives and their fulfilment at once greater and less than he had hoped for, his historians have wandered as if in a maze.

Always a man of paradoxical temper, the split in his strangely divided nature has been widened by legend and conjecture. He has been variously pictured as a lucky land-lubber and a consummate mariner—a celibate and the hero of a dozen gallant episodes—a liar, a sneak, a hypocrite and a man of pious magnanimity and holiness of soul. Some have viewed his faults with the eye of his century and his virtues with that of our own, and made a saint of him; others have reversed the process and made him a demon.

Out of this confusion not one but a hundred Columbus's have resulted and M. de Hevesy's by no means simple task has been to discover, among these multiple presentations, the true one. Where facts are available, he has allowed no private thesis to obscure their value; where conjecture was necessary to bridge unknown years, he has been sparing of fantasy and careful to adopt his hypotheses to reality. The result is that for the first time we see Columbus, not as a kind of animated monument, but as a man.

De Hevesy has succeeded, as perhaps no other contemporary writer has, in crystallizing the whole age of Columbus. The author's universal knowledge and international understanding, together with a considerable amount of new data which he brought to light on the subject, has enabled him to present us with a living picture of Italian society, as well as reproduce the atmosphere of the Spanish court in which Columbus moved and worked.

In fact, Andre de Hevesy has achieved for Columbus what Emil Ludwig has for Bismarck, Napoleon and others—he has presented us with the quintessence of biography combined with psychology and history.

"The Discoverer" is illustrated with numerous old engravings, many of which have never before been published. Adding to the atmosphere of the book, they make it possible for the reader to visualize more colorfully the times in which the biographer's great characters lived.

MY FRIEND ROBESPIERRE

Maximilian Robespierre

By HENRI BERAUD

Translated by SLATER BROWN

ILLUSTRATED WITH A NUMBER OF EIGHTEENTH CENTURY ENGRAVINGS.

SLATER BROWN
(Translator of "My Friend Robespierre")

MAXIMILIAN ROBESPIERRE has for so long been accepted as the monster from whom all the blood, the suffering and the cruelty of the French Revolution flowed, that this interpretive biography of Beraud comes as a work of iconoclasm. For, this strange, inscrutable revolutionist, this gigantic pedant whose mind seems to have worked in an ethereal vacuum of ideals, was not half the monster those lovers of melodrama would have us believe.

Approaching his subject from the role of a simple and sympathetic friend, Beraud has painted this great leader of the Jacobins in colors which, though they are less lurid than those of Carlyle, are far more true. For in MY FRIEND ROBESPIERRE Beraud abandons the traditional moral attitude for one of sympathy and intuition. He shows us the man, Robespierre, as a hero devoured by his ideals and his weaknesses, and like all heroes of true tragedy, destroyed by both.

No longer do we see him as the betrayer of Danton, the butcherer of the innocent, the guillotine's bloody valet. But we see him rather as the spirit incarnate of the French Revolution itself, with all its intolerance, its faith, its naivete, its zeal, its utter and implacable honesty, its pedantry, and its vast and triumphant imagination.

Few descriptions of the Reign of Terror have been invested with such reality and horror. The story of the "9th Thermidor" and of the tragic fall of Robespierre, has all the glamour of those days of the French Revolution which shook people out of their skins.

Robespierre, although handled from many angles by historians of the French Revolution, has perhaps never before been interpreted so originally as in this penetrating biographical study by Henri Beraud.

Although the character of Robespierre may seem formidable and the man himself a strange monster of the Revolution, the author has shown him as the hard-headed and incorruptible philosopher he was.

It was from Robespierre's brain that the gigantic Frankenstein of the French Revolution sprung; a monster whose force was needed to right the world. But like all such genii, it got beyond the control of its creator and in the end, destroyed the man who had given it life. $3.00

WHO WILL BE MASTER—EUROPE OR AMERICA?

Lucien Romier

MATTHEW JOSEPHSON

(Author of Zola and His Time)

TODAY, the eyes of the world are turned upon America. Abandoning their old theories and dissensions, the far-sighted and bolder minds of Europe now regard America as the dominant Power in the world of today, a Power whose methods and whose success must be studied and followed in the new age which has begun.

This study of the machine age, of the new industrial and mass life, unlike other works on America by foreign thinkers, discovers in new terms what the sterling virtues and driving forces of the American people are today.

Unlike the prophets of pessimism, M. Romier foresees great hope for the future, and mastery of the world for America. In the "dynamic wealth," in

By LUCIEN ROMIER

Translated by MATTHEW JOSEPHSON

widely distributed prosperity, which the new Power of the West has achieved, he sees the attainment, in a material sense, of the humanitarian ideals of the old Utopians and Socialists. Class struggle disappears; a motley horde of races labor together in harmony and peace, but a new menace arises in the principle of mass production and standardization.

Although the masses may now enjoy a general well-being that was inconceivable a century ago, the indications are that those deeper spiritual and moral resources, which have preserved man eternally in his struggle with Nature, are being lost. Artists and intellectuals feel themselves in a blind alley. The very materialistic success of America may spell her own defeat in the long run.

It is true that Europe and the Orient must follow America's superb constructive example on the material plane in order to survive. But America, to preserve her own mastery of the world, must learn from Europe her traditions and age-old secrets of moral strength and intellectual inventiveness.

Already famous as an economist, Lucien Romier visited America in 1926 and 1927. In the interests of his country, he was sent to observe the colossal activity, the vast and economic warfare (which is peaceful and constructive) going on in America, much as military attaches are sent by neutral powers to accompany the major staffs of warring armies. His book, which resulted from this tour of observation, WHO WILL BE MASTER—EUROPE OR AMERICA?, is a work of brilliant analysis and prophesy. $2.50

THE BANKRUPTCY OF MARRIAGE

V. F. Calverton

HARRY ELMER BARNES

(Author of "A History of the Social Sciences")

IT seems highly probable that the next great clash between science and obscurantism will come in the field of sex and sex behavior. This struggle will, perhaps, supersede in extent and intensity the contemporary conflict between Fundamentalism and obscurantism on the one hand and Biblical scholarship and evolution on the other. There is little doubt that the conflict will be much more fierce and devastating than any previous battle between conventionality and intelligence.

In one of Mr. Calverton's earlier books he began the challenge of tradition in the name of enlightenment. For this service he earned the gratitude of not a few students of English literature, cultural history and sociology, and the high respect of many progressive critics.

By V. F. CALVERTON

Author of "SEX EXPRESSION IN LITERATURE" and "THE NEWER SPIRIT".

The issues which Mr. Calverton discusses in his new book, "THE BANKRUPTCY OF MARRIAGE", are in many ways the most important which face the present generation and will challenge generations to come.

No other phase of human conduct is as far removed from scientific knowledge and control as sexual matters, in spite of a vast body of cogent and reliable data in the field. The reason for this disparity between scientific knowledge in the premises and practical conduct in this field of human behavior is cowardice and prudery compounded of ignorance and superstition.

Mr. Calverton courageously attacks anachronisms and offers constructive suggestions for future solutions. His concluding chapters are especially thought-provoking. Whatever views one holds in regard to his specific doctrines, no civilized person can fail to praise the purpose of his undertaking or to subscribe to the necessity of honest thinking in this field.

These selections from the chapter heads show the scope and interest of "The Bankruptcy of Marriage":

THE JAZZ AGE
THE DECAY OF MODERN MARRIAGE
THE COMPANIONATE MARRIAGE AND THE SEX IMPULSE
THE NEW MORALITY IN GERMANY
THE FUTURE MORALITY IN SOVIET RUSSSIA.

The important and interesting chapters on modern Germany and Soviet Russia were written after Mr. Calverton's extensive travelings in those countries. They reveal the changing point of view toward conventional morality which is sure to have far-reaching effects not only on our own society, but on that of the entire western world. $3.00

That classic question of a happier time, "What'll the boys in the back room have?" has been answered, adequately, hilariously, by MORE PIOUS FRIENDS AND DRUNKEN COMPANIONS. At four A. M. the boys in the back room will have, refuse to be denied, the old songs. Like the ladies, nothing can replace them, God bless them.

AN APPRECIATION BY
VINCENT LOPEZ
(Entertainer Extraordinary and Member of the Society of Forty Pious Friends)

FOUR A. M., is the acid test of these songs. Waltz tunes are just right at dinner. Opera, grand or light, topical jingles, or what have you, will fill in the theatre hours. From midnight until closing time at the night clubs, jazz reigns supreme. But—in the cold grey dawn, when the sun is just beginning to peep over the horizon, when the mouth is a little fuzzy and when you want to be assured that you have a friend in the world, that's the time for croony, soothing harmony, with lots of scope for a whiskey tenor, and plenty of what Mr. Samuel Pepys in his diary called, "barber's musick".

In MORE PIOUS FRIENDS AND DRUNKEN COMPANIONS Frank Shay has collected just such songs. He laments the dearth of sweet singers in these degenerate times and yet there seems to be some balm in Gilead. It is interesting to note that many of his best pieces are contributed by those of the so-called weaker sex.

PIRATES OLD AND NEW

PIRATES OLD . . .

. . . AND NEW

By JOSEPH GOLLOMB

Author of "The Portrait Invisible", "Master Highwaymen" and "Master Man Hunters".

Illustrated with numerous wood blocks by CLYDE A. NORDQUIST.

EDWARD HALE BIERSTADT

(Author of "Curious Trials and Criminal Cases.")

IN "Pirates Old and New", Joseph Gollomb has contrived to do what few commentators on the subject have done before him—he has kept all the romance without losing any of the rascality. The pirate was, usually, a blackguard, but he was a colorful blackguard. And, too, the pirate rouses a fellow feeling: we all want treasure, pieces-of-eight, dubloons and gold moidores and, in most instances, nothing but sheer lack of courage and ability prevents us from adopting piratical methods to satisfy this essentially normal desire.

Beginning in the days of Julius Caesar and ending in modern times, Mr. Gollomb has written a swiftly running, dramatic account of various sea-robbers who made life difficult for the peaceful traders,—content to grow rich by slower and more lawful means. (Moreover, the author has done a service to the pirate loving public by omitting Captain Kidd who never was a pirate at all.) It is a good book, as vigorous and salty as a sea breeze, as dramatic as warfare must always be, and as romantic and entertaining as the most jaded appetite could wish.

I do not think that Mr. Gollomb would have made a good pirate. He sees the piratical psychology for that. And, doubtless, that is one of the reasons he has been able to write so lucidly and amusingly on the subject. Esquemeling was a pirate, but I would rather read Gollomb, who was not. He understands pirates better.

From the days when Micio, the Mediterranean pirate, (who had the nerve to capture Julius Caesar and lost his head for it) roamed the ocean, up through the ages to the modern sea thieves, who would capture a full cargoed steamship, Mr. Gollomb traces the roaring, rollicking lives of these master buccaneers.

Here, for instance, you will find the story of Mrs. Ching, who went a-pirating at the head of seventy thousand Chinese. Here, again, are the exploits of "The Moral Pirates", whose motive for buccaneering was a real love of humanity and who, from their spoils, founded the Kingdom of Libertania.

Of course, all the great ones in the annals of piracy are to be found among these PIRATES OLD AND NEW. Vividly Mr. Gollomb narrates the terrifying experiences of Blackbeard, Lalonois and the great Sir Henry Morgan, who after a flaming and bloody career, ended his day in legalized piracy as one of the profiteering politicians of Queen Elizabeth's court.

With the colorful prose and flare for the curious in life that has made his MASTER MAN HUNTERS the success of four continents, Joseph Gollomb has again given his myriad readers the entertaining thrill of meeting strange old acquaintances in astonishing new costumes. $2.50

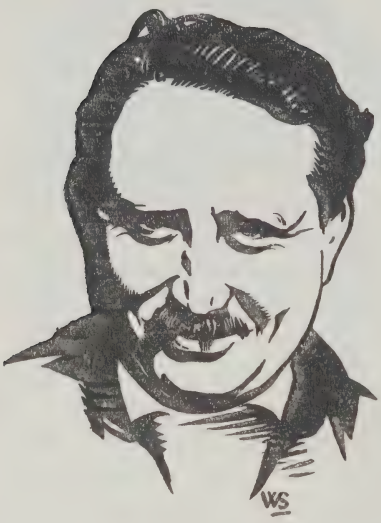
THE BOY IN THE SUN



Paul Rosenfeld

ALFRED KREYMBORG

(Poet and Playwright, author of "Troubadour", etc.)

IN an age where caution, niggardliness and suspicion are among the prime characteristics of the average American critic, the work of Paul Rosenfeld looms as a generous full-blooded entity. A hearty interest in nearly everything under the sun, allied to an intelligent independence of judgment, gives his criticism a rich and stimulating gusto.

It is precisely the presence of this creative quality which has made his admirers wonder when Rosenfeld, having been so often the first to hail the advance guards of modern creators in the arts, would give us something equally his own in the form of a novel. "The Boy in the Sun" is an answer to such an inquiry.

By PAUL ROSENFELD

Author of "PORT OF NEW YORK", "BY WAY OF ART", etc.

In this moving, psychological portrait of an embryonic artist, the author has expressed the tragi-comic conflict between an humiliated father and his impressionable son.

"The Boy In The Sun" is the song of an individual and of life. Mortified by the misadventure of his father, David Bauer is thrown into an emotional opposition to the past in himself. Intrinsically religious, and born on the genteel, neuresthenic, "ethical" fringe of New York Jewish society, his descent and, to a certain degree, his person, become paralyzing problems to him.

Unable either to accept or escape them, he gropes uncertainly throughout his adolescence for an individual hold. At the moment the mysterious forces of life resolve the tragic tension between himself and his broken father, the religious, racial and bodily problems disappear. Unknown to himself, the young artist has found an approach to the world firmly in the way of his forbears.

Already famed as a music critic par excellence, a literary appreciator whose work has always been among the vanguard of the modernists and an art critic, whose interpretations have paved the way for a better understanding of contemporary artists, Paul Rosenfeld has now turned novelist.

This "big brother" of the Seven Arts, after wielding his pen in defense of new creative spirits, now employs it for his own expression.

In "The Boy In The Sun", Paul Rosenfeld has relinquished for the moment the interpretation of the Muses and has directed his remarkably perceptive mind toward an interpretation of life itself. $2.00

CHICAGO MAY—HER STORY

Chicago May

By HERSELF

(May Churchill Sharpe)

AN APPRECIATION BY

W. ORTON TEWSON

(Conductor of "The Attic Salt Shaker")

"CHICAGO MAY"—the "Queen of Crooks"—has written an amazing life. Nothing that I have read in the realm of realistic fiction compares with the naked truth told by "Chicago May" in her book. This remarkable woman bares her soul and, if you please, her bones, leaving nothing to the imagination or to speculation. She tells you all.

Practically every "crime" or "crook" book published during the last fifteen years has devoted special attention to the sensational career of "Chicago May". Hardly any two agree on the details of her notorious exploits. For instance, her part in the escape of Eddie Guerin from Devil's Island. But all agree that she is the outstanding woman figure of the criminal world in the Twentieth century.

Here is her own story. Told in her own living words and in her own untrammelled way. It is a human document par excellence. But it is not likely to cause any one who reads it to want to follow in her footsteps. I should say not!

CHICAGO MAY'S CRIMINAL RECORD

Name: May Churchill (white)
Alias: Chicago May—May Wilson—May Avery—Lillian White—Rose Wilson—Mary Brown—Margaret Smith
Criminal Record (as far as known)

Twenty-three indictments between January 25, 1896 to August 8, 1926 form but a part of "Chicago May's" activities.

She is known and has been in jail on both sides of the world. As her photographs show, she is a beautiful woman and is still able to fascinate men, as some of her recent criminal history and achievements will prove.

The many ways in which she has used her wits are fully recounted in this story of her life. The fascinating narrative of how "Chicago May" engineered the escape of Eddie Guerin, the only man to escape from the French Penal Colony at Devil's Island, is laid bare for the first time. All the intrigue she went through in order to raise money for his flight, and the curious and ingenious manner in which she communicated with Guerin, who was her lover at the time, makes one of the most interesting chapters in modern criminal records.

"Chicago May" is now living in America. She is making an attempt to go straight. But, the truth of the matter is that she is not left very long at peace by the Police, in any community in which she finds herself. As soon as they discover her identity, she is subject to such espionage and such supervision, as to make a peaceable life quite impossible.

Within the last two years, she has lived in a score of cities, and at present, she is living, under an assumed name, in a city which shall not be identified here, because by the time this gets into print, she probably will no longer be there.

Although this is not a moral book, and "Chicago May" has not "got religion" in the sentimental manner of most reformed crooks, the facts she gives tend to prove the old saying, "it doesn't pay".

THE SECOND AM

"STILL A TREASURE CHEST"

HARRY HANSEN, N. Y. World

ESTABLISHED by the success of the first AMERICAN CARAVAN, this second yearbook appears with its new cargo, more brilliant and original than the first. New strata of writers, working in unusual literary forms, have since favored us with their contributions. Established authors of wide reputation have generously allowed us to draw upon their new and unusual work.

Working again from the point of view of discoverers, the editors have uncovered more new and hitherto undisclosed literary values.

Since the appearance of the first AMERICAN CARAVAN, many of its unacknowledged contributors have since been hailed as new lights of permanent brilliance. Again the editors feel that the AMERICAN CARAVAN will prove to the public and to the authors what it has proven to themselves—an affirmation of the health of this young American literature.

What the critics have said about the first AMERICAN CARAVAN:

"A gorgeous cargo. . .
Good craftsmen. . .
Themes out of life. . . Free of the reticences and whispered inhibitions."
—HARRY HANSEN, N. Y. World.

"Excellent. . . A comprehensive record of what the more advanced writers are doing."
—HERSCHEL BRICKELL, N. Y. Eve. Post.

"Positively engrossing. . . Their art is a battleground. . . The book is doubly valuable; as a document, as evidence of the temper of the nation. . . One quality. . . Authenticity!"
—The Herald Tribune.

THE AMERICAN CARAVAN is a yearbook conducted by literary men in the interests of a growing American literature. Both in its editorial direction and in its contributors, it embodies the spirit of search and discovery. The American Caravan does not conform to any preconceived pattern; stand for any particular group, or clique; represent any particular part of the country nor does it seek to please a standardized body of readers. This yearbook is essentially a response to the developing and growing forms of American life; the editors are as hospitable to the America of Poe as to the America of Whitman, to the America of Dickinson, or T. S. Eliot as to that of Sandburg, Dewey and Sherwood Anderson, to the America of vast corporate organizations as well as to that of the solitary studio.

When the editors brought together the first American Caravan they knew that there was a place for a periodical not trimmed to any special formula, and not limited by lack of space to any particular kind or length of contribution. The response of both contributors and readers was more than gratifying; it was decisive enough to lay the foundations for a permanent periodical.

Aware of the fact that in the Token, an early American yearbook, Nathaniel Hawthorne received the encouragement to con-

WHERE THE LOON CALLS

By HARRY SINCLAIR DRAGO

Author of "The Desert Hawk", Smoke of the 45", etc.

The well-known author of FOLLOWING THE GRASS, which introduced the Spanish Basque of our own Far West to the American fiction public, pioneers again among the French Canadians who dwell on the marsh lands which lie along the western shore of Lake Erie between Toledo and Detroit.

There, one still hears the peasant songs of Brittany; the customs of a bygone age prevail. They are a people apart—bizarre, strong-willed and impatient of restraint.

Mr. Drago is on native soil this time. This was the land of his boyhood, and with amazing realism and delightful characterization, he spins a tale that leaves one wondering where fiction begins and history ends.

To those readers who found delight in Louis Hemon's MARIA CHAPDELAINE, this novel can come only as a true echo of its honest and sincere attempt to picture the humble habitant as he really is. $2.00

APRON STRINGS

By MAY FREUD DICKENSON

AN APPRECIATION BY

Blanche Colton Williams

(Author, Critic and Head of the Department of English, Hunter College, New York).

"APRON STRINGS" shows remarkable insight on the author's part into the degeneracy of a certain class-group of modern women, and her corresponding sympathy with the overworked male of the class. The novel mirrors without distortion the self-limited area of life reflected.

The chief figures are Jo Knapp, business man, and the women of his family, who hold him by the apron strings of feminine vanity, weakness and helplessness. In spite of his mother, and later, his wife Emmy, Jo wins financial success; yet this very success only enhances his sense of what he has lost.

Through most of the women in her pages, May Freud Dickenson arraigns the selfish sex; in Elsa and Dora she compliments it.

Something hopeful looks out from the closing pages. Jo's final development consists in knowing that he cannot forsake his wife. He has the best of it after all—as the generous soul always has the best.

With "Apron Strings" May Freud Dickenson makes her debut as a novelist. For the past few years, however, discriminating critics have been watching her work in various magazines and they hail her as a new species of authoress—unsentimental, unrepressed and writing with sound, common sense that women exhibit in life, but seldom in their writing. $2.00

A VOYAGE TO PAGANY

By WILLIAM CARLOS WILLIAMS

Author of "In the American Grain", etc.

Already heralded as the most brilliant and distinguished stylist in America, William Carlos Williams has written in this first novel of the sensative reactions of an intelligent American to the static culture of present day Europe. In this new and more coherent phase of his writing, he defends the crude but vital American renascence that is plowing ahead into new worlds without the encumbrances of a dying civilization.

In the character of a young American doctor on his sabbatical year in Europe, he surveys the old world frankly, perceiving not only its mellowed traditions and its inherited beauty, but also its growing shoddiness. His quest for beauty in its many forms leads him into strange adventures and affairs. These, too, like the mirages of European culture, leave him unsatisfied until, in the end, he turns to America, his homeland.

Here is no apology of the expatriate American intellectual, but a vigorous analysis and confirmation of our own world of promise. $2.50

APHRODITE

By WALLACE GOULD

When a poet, with a rare talent, amounting, at times to genius, produces his first book after a well-filled life of meditation and quiet writing, such a volume is sure to attract the attention of discriminating literateurs.

Such a book is APHRODITE by Wallace Gould. And this poet, discovered by a few well-known writers many years ago, has been urged constantly by these friends to assemble the volume, which at length, we are able now to offer to the world. To those who know of him and his work, no introduction is needed. The acclaim with which his longer poems were received, when they appeared in the FIRST AMERICAN CARAVAN, has since won him an eager audience. $2.50

FUMBLER

By PHILLIPS RUSSELL

Author of "Benjamin Franklin", "John Paul Jones—Man of Action"

Wellington, sleepy, complacent old Southern town, is disturbed one day by an awakening consciousness of the existence of a world outside itself. A foreign element drifts in, to upset the equanimity of the old settlers of the town—an element that speaks a strange language and eat strange dishes.

Lomer Guyon, just out of college and recently appointed editor of The Blade, bumps up against some odd emotions and strange feelings. A choice comes. There are his people and those foreigners across the bridge. Young Guyon makes the crossing; but in the disciplinary travail that life imposes upon him, he discovers the values of those whom he has left behind. The vista broadens from Wellington to New York City. Life and love and an almost crushing defeat come to overpower him. But in the end, through a spirituality born of courage and contact, he rises triumphant over his weaker, disappointed self.

A splendid novel by Phillips Russell, distinguished author of Benjamin Franklin and John Paul Jones, two of last season's greatest biographies. $2.00

MAGIC JOURNEYS

Mr. Eastern Hemisphere

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Author of "The Magic Map"

Illustrated by LUXOR PRICE

RUTH CAMBRIDGE
(of the New York World)

IN THE MAGIC MAP, Mary Graham Bonner answered what must have been a need of her own childhood—to have geography as fascinating and delightful and as adventurous as travel and actual exploration. This book led a boy through the wonderful and unusual trip of journeying over the Western Hemisphere, meeting such characters as Latitude, Longitude, the Equator, the river wanderers, the cities, oceans and islands.

Now Miss Bonner has completed her animated geographical work in MAGIC JOURNEYS which takes the boy adventurer through the marvels of Europe, Asia, Africa, as well as the baby continent Australia. Although he meets some of his old friends of the previous volume, this book is complete in itself. Boys and girls confronted with the study of geography will find in Miss Bonner's work the thrill of facts when they become alive and actual. "The Magic Map" has already had the endorsement of the New York Board of Education and of boys and girls from seven to thirteen all over the country. Those children to whom I have shown advance copies of "Magic Journeys" claim they like the Eastern Hemisphere even better than the Western.

The pictures of Luxor Price show his remarkable skill as an illustrator of children's books. He seems to possess that ideal illustrative trio—accuracy, activity and imagination.

In discussing "The Magic Map" and "Magic Journeys", Mary Graham Bonner explained how she came to write her two books which have become the ideal books for children between seven and thirteen:

"When I began to travel a bit and became interested in maps, I wished children could see the lure of geography and found in the present day books not much more animation than there had been in mine. So I took up the subject I had most disliked, to give children something I had missed. I researched endlessly for accuracy and then gave the facts and gaiety I felt they deserved. I've spent over six years off and on over this work."

AIRWAYS, INC.

A PLAY By JOHN DOS PASSOS

Author of "THREE SOLDIERS", "MANHATTAN TRANSFER", "ORIENT EXPRESS", etc.

AN APPRECIATION BY MICHAEL GOLD

(Editor: The New Masses)

JOHN DOS PASSOS has the secret of growth. He has never rested on the laurels won by "Three Soldiers", but has constantly experimented, travelled, grappled with the world. The European critics regards his work as one of the serious facts of American literature. In America, our critics never seem to have found the clue to this strong and thoughtful writer.

The key is in AIRWAYS, INC. In this play, John Dos Passos reaches his maturity. He attacks boldly the major problem of our Age and our America — namely, the class war. He proves himself as worthy to write upon this huge theme as a Gorky or a Hauptmann.

This is not parlor art. This is not a drawing room play. It is dynamic and bold, it is technically perfect, and it holds the pathos and tragedy of the human heart. It pioneers in a new field —as Dos Passos has always pioneered. Industrial America is being discovered by the writers, and as usual, Dos Passos is in the vanguard. $2.00

This new drama will be produced this Fall by the New Playwrights Theatre of New York City. This organization has already produced the following plays which are published in book form by the Macaulay Company ($2.00):

EARTH .....Em Jo Basshe

LOUDSPEAKER .....John Howard Lawson

THE CENTURIES ....Em Jo Basshe

THE BELT .....Paul Sifton

THE INTERNATIONAL .....John Howard Lawson

Particularly suited for production in little theatres, these plays have rapidly become popular among similar acting groups throughout the country.

THE INTRUDER

A PLAY By PAUL ELDRIDGE

Author of "IRONY AND PITY", "OUR DEAD SELVES", etc.

It was perfectly natural for Paul Eldridge to turn to the drama, for in his poetry as well as in his prose he has always shown an unusual dramatic instinct. His characters are alive, his dialogue is crowded with emotion and thought, and his analysis of human nature is keen and relentless. His strength resides in his simplicity and clarity, which made Havelock Ellis speaks of him as one of the rare classicists of the day.

"The Intruder" deals with the love of two women for a man—one the mother of his child; the other, his wife who sublimates her mother instinct by transforming her husband into her child. Although the play deals with an exceedingly vital problem, it is by no means a problem-play, but an intense and powerful drama, replete with beauty.

A very interesting novelty of "The Intruder" is two entirely different third acts, each an inevitable culmination of the play. $2.00

The Macaulay Company reserves all acting rights to AIRWAYS, INC., as well as the plays mentioned above. For professional and amateur use, special arrangement with the publishers may be made.

PHANTOM FINGERS

By

LYON MEARSON

Author of "Footsteps in the Dark" and "The Whisper on the Stair"

Before the horror-filled eyes of a terrified audience, Augustin Arnold, the matinee idol of New York City is strangled to death on the stage of the Grand Theatre by invisible hands whose unseen fingers have wrapped themselves about his neck. The understudy, who takes up the murdered man's part, is throttled in the same mysterious manner and comes within an ace of losing his life.

Then the messages of the phantom murderer to Betty Sargent, the leading lady, are discovered. They are signed "An Unknown Admirer" and they set Steve Muirhead, detective adventurer on the trail that twists its way mysteriously through New York's theatrical underworld.

With gripping intensity, the author projects the denouement of this phantom murder mystery. The action of the tale fascinates and thrills when it sweeps onward to a powerful climax and an illuminating end.

WILD DEUCES

By

ROBERT A. LARKIN

Here is a gay, rollicking novel of an unknown phase of New York underworld life which portrays the denizens of that wicked order as interesting human beings—products of environment rather than of heredity.

It is in "Hell's Kitchen", the "double Fifth Avenue" of New York City, (Tenth Avenue, in fact)—the most lawless section of our heterogeneous metropolis—that the first episode of this ingenious tale is staged.

Against the most glamorous background New York has to offer, this novel of exhilarating adventure carries its odd characters through up and downs until the solution of the story's mystery sets both them and the reader down thoroughly entertained.

THE SKYSCRAPER MURDER

By

SAMUEL SPEWACK

Here is a modern, blood curdling master-work of crime, reminiscent of a recent notorious murder. The action begins in Lucy's "Club New York" one of the famous of the infamous New York night clubs, where weak champagne and weaker women gush continually. The scandal-racked trio enters and immediately voices are lowered and heads nod towards their table.

From then on, Mr. Spewack keeps his reader in a whirl of suspense—through police investigations, sudden deaths, a strange diary of the Russian Revolution, and the pursuit of the great Shah diamond, famous jewel of the Romanoffs.

THE CRIME CODE

By WILLIAM LeQUEUX

Author of "Poison Shadows", "The Tattoo Mystery", etc.

Young Hipwell, son of a distinguished member of Parliament, is on his way home from the club, one foggy night, when he is confronted with a scene of a rough scuffle between a big burly fellow and a rather pretty woman. He becomes embroiled in the quarrel, when the other man pulls a revolver and accidentally shoots himself. Fearing scandal and arrest, Hipwell flees from the city and hides in a suburb of London.

Falling into the hands of a gang of society crooks, he more than once comes near losing his life and he is spared only that he may become their cat's-paw. Under a semi-hypnotic spell for two years, he succeeds at length in breaking from their control and later, he breaks, too, from the perilous meshes that threaten to annihilate his every chance of future sanity and happiness.

STIGMA

By

HUGO BALLIN

In the primitive days of the first generation of the Little Colorado River country, there is heard the feeble moan of a woman on a dilapidated cot, just emerged from the "valley of the shadow of death" with a tiny bundle of humanity held close.

But, the protesting cry is lost amid the frenzied imprecations and the deafening gun reports of a drunk-crazed husband who, in cold blood, murders the doctor, just finished with his work of mercy in that tumbled-in shack. Then comes the revelation of sin and shame and infamy of the heritage which life has imposed on that infant child Maymie—of the second generation.

STIGMA is a story, that for sheer graphic realism, startles and stirs and grips long after the tale is done.

ABSOLUTION

By ALBERTA STEDMAN EAGAN

Edward Thurston, young shipbuilder, shrinks from the daring advice of a shrewd nerve specialist, who extracts from him the reluctant truth of the unfulfilled marital obligations of his selfish wife. He goes on a yachting trip. Perhaps, too, that will help to give him surcease from the haunting regret of sending out of his early life, Helen, a girl who gave all.

From this poignant opening situation and onwards, the story gathers an intensity of momentum that sweeps through its pages to a denouement of intimate revelations which, in the end, brings to the seared souls of Thurston and Helen the healing balm of a lasting absolution to come. $2.00

THE BUS THAT VANISHED

By LEON GROC

In the midst of a great city's activities a bus with seven passengers vanishes completely. Paris is terrified. Famous detectives follow confused clues, but an unknown Mephistopheles of mystery inflicts sudden death upon those who venture near.

This fascinating French mystery moves on at a breathless pace. Amazing disclosures such as a mutilated corpse, a 15th century seraglio, and a strange psychic machine which mesmerizes its victims add to the vivid thrills of this book.

And then, gathering still more force, the tale flings itself into a literally smashing climax which dwarfs even the mystery of the bus that vanished. $2.00

MON PAUL

The Private Life of A Privateer

By

A. A. ABBOTT

There is an old saying that the lives of great men remind one that "we should make our lives sublime, and going, leave behind us, footprints on the sands of time." That is true in the greatest of the great, but so many times one forgets that these lives offer something more than just achievement, that they offer real romance, joy, sorrow and heart-breaks just the same as other persons of their day and since.

Such a story of romance is embodied in "Mon Paul" the book by A. A. Abbott. It centers around John Paul Jones whom history acclaims as one of the greatest of all naval heroes.

The story is like a choice bit of tapestry against a background interwoven with details, that make the book one series of fascinating pages. As a young man, Jones wished recognition, but it did not come to him. He wanted the world to know that he was the illegitimate son of an Earl, but it was "thumbs down" so then he turned to the sea. His experiences in the slave trade, his gentleman's life at Tobago and so forth, hold the interest of the reader throughout the book. —Springfield News-Sun.

DRUMS OF THE NORTH

By

A. DE HERRIES SMITH

On the shores of the Great Slave Lake, Lima Bellerose, untamed daughter of the wilderness, waged her outlaw fight for the man of her heart. This man was Bruce Redwood, the "White Lord" of Dahadinni. She had to fight her lone battle against the beckoning lights of the great city that called her white lover home; against the lure of a scented, cynical woman of the distant "outside."

Struggling against inevitable defeat, the northland maid fights on and on. She braves the barren lands' icy waters. But her fear of Indian treachery and of the moccasined feet that follow her in the night is dwarfed beside her poignant realization of Redwood's maddeningly misplaced sense of duty to his old life.

"Drums of the North" is a story of the great North that stands alone in its powerful treatment of primitive conflicts. —Alberta Bulletin.

BORROWED REPUTATIONS

By

J. WESLEY PUTNAM

Author of "PLAYTHINGS OF DESIRE"

The story of a dissolute, half-mad writer who might have been a genius, had beautiful women and the flowing bowl mattered less to him.

In poverty, Laurence Jerrold was a dreamer and an idealist, scorning wine, women and song. But a touch of prosperity killed the radical in him, and trading on the genius and hard work of a girl who sacrificed herself to him through pity and a mothering sense of sympathy, even when love called to her, he became a literary wolf in sheep's clothing, and with deliberate intent, squandering himself and his dishonest dollars in one prolonged orgy after another — until finally the debacle.

This novel is not recommended for prim old ladies from Concord or Dubuque. It is altogether too frank and profane. But for those who can appreciate the moving sacrifice of beautiful Erica Duane, whose pity for Jerrold held her chained quite as effectually as her love for Romney Muir. BORROWED REPUTATIONS should prove rather good fare. $2.00

PURSUIT

By

ROSITA FORBES

Author of "IF THE GODS LAUGH"

"Pursuit" a new novel by Rosita Forbes will delight her multitude of readers, as have her past efforts, and undoubtedly increase their number. "Pursuit" is typical of the present day. The story is formed around an English girl, who, as a child born of position and no wealth, is unmanageable and sophisticated. Anne, the heroine, grows to be a beauty, and is much sought after by all the eligible young men, but turns down all proposals of marriage. Seeking experiences of life as a salesgirl in a smart shop in London, she eventually finds herself in a border town on the Sahara Desert. It is here that Miss Forbes is in her richest element.

A broken love interest with the boy from the adjoining estate back home is very appealing. Just what the climax brings forth can only be appreciated when read from the pen of Miss Forbes.

THE SON OF THREE FATHERS

By

GASTON LEROUX

Author of "THE NEW TERROR", "THE PHANTOM CLUE", etc.

While on the subject of mystery stories, I want to recommend THE SON OF THREE FATHERS by Gaston Leroux.

Take an adequate cocktail shaker, throw in some carnivals on the Midi, some audacious robberies, a grasping guardian and his lovely ward, an unknown masked criminal who signs his crimes Hardigras, a scheming Balkan prince, plots for a throne, an imposing array of seemingly unsolvable murders, surprises galore, shake well and then serve the entertaining mystery story that is M. Leroux's latest.

And what on earth more can be asked of a mystery story?

TRIGGER JUSTICE

By

CLEM YORE

Author of "RAW GOLD"

A cowboy mystery yarn, fast, alluring, strange; reeking with the pungency of camp and trail and corral; filled with tracking and trailing tricks; packed with old-time methods of frontier crimes and border justice.

Clem Yore, in his own dynamic style, with strokes of consummate mastery, achieves those vivid characterizations that stand out in bold relief against a colorful background of camp and corral, while he thrills his reader with the oldest game in the West—the man hunt.

TRIGGER JUSTICE swings into the saddle, on the first page and—through all the sweat and leather, through dust and sand and weather, through love and hate and danger—rides back through the years, to the time when there was no law west of the Pecos, save that of the Peacemaker—the Colt .45. $2.00

THE IMMORTAL ADVENTURE

By IRMA L. LINDHEIM
With an Introduction by
DR. STEPHEN S. WISE
Illustrated by
J. BENOR-KALTER

In "The Immortal Adventure", the American-Jewish spirit hies to the Holy Land to admire Zionism's advance in the old home of the Jews. An American woman, mother, and worker in Israel's interests, after years of labor for, and dreams of, the country from which her race was exiled, finds herself in the New Jerusalem; in a scene which she and a million other Jews throughout the world are making as modern as the genus loci allows.

In letters to her family, up-to-date Americans, she tells vividly and intimately the conditions she found and the emotions they caused in her, a fervent, though transplanted, daughter of Abraham. The result is a lively, personal picture of Palestine; richly colored, enthusiastic and kaleidoscopic.

—FREDERICK O'BRIEN, N. Y. World.

"The Immortal Adventure" is not only a book for those who lack information about Palestine, but it is also of interest to those who have had the privilege of seeing the land. It is not only a travel book, but also a book for travelers. It is a book throbbing with life, keyed in the intense high pitch of all Palestinian activities.

THE CURSE OF THE TARNIFFS

By
COUNT EDOUARD von KEYSERLING
Translated by ARTHUR J. ASHTON

Here are three new stories by a German writer who received a good deal of critical and popular praise last year when "Twilight" was published in an American translation. The public that he won then will probably be considerably broadened by this book. It has a rich quality of style and substance, and a glamour that is apt to make anyone who picks it up casually, continue to the end.

—New York Times.

Again, as in his memorable "Twilight", published in translation a year ago, the late Count Keyserling gives compelling token of his genius, and again, as was the case of its predecessor, the present book is composed of three masterly tales of pre-war Northeast German nobility. —New York World.

STRANGERS AND LOVERS

By EDWIN GRANBERRY

Author of "THE ANCIENT HUNGER"

Here is a fine novel by the author of "The Ancient Hunger" which strongly suggests both the theme and artistry of Elizabeth Madox Roberts's "Time of Man", but is its superior in vitality and characterization. It is the story of Millie Carver, a "poor-white" girl of Cardia, Florida, and it shares both the delicacy and the inarticulate charm of the more famous novel. It is a story of adolescence, love and marriage, shot through with tragedy, lust, joy and hardship, but presented so simply and sympathetically that it is close to the earth and to the warm life of human beings. —The New York Times.

Mr. Granberry has done a beautiful piece of work. He has caught the earthy appeal of the waste country and written with insight of a young girl's mind. He has pictured the elemental sides of adolescence and love and marriage; he has written of common things with a sure and sincere touch.

"Strangers and Lovers" proves definitely that the most banal events can be written and rewritten, and the hopeless young author who cries dismally, "There's nothing new under the sun" should pick up this book and study it. He will find it as new a story as he ever read. —The New York Herald Tribune.

CONCEALED TURNINGS

By PAMELA WYNNE

Author of "Ashes of Desire", "Penelope Finds Out"

To the uninitiated, certain of life's problems, concealed turnings, are shadowy mystery places threatening disaster. These are the pitfalls which Pamela Wynne's daring novel discloses. Hazel Anson is baffled and bewildered by the CONCEALED TURNINGS which suddenly develop on the seemingly straight road, and which draw her into dangerous experiences. CONCEALED TURNINGS is a highly dramatic and swiftly moving story of an Oriental's occult sway over a beautiful white girl.

His sinister influence causes one man to go mad and another to kill himself. Hazel Anson's struggle to free herself and escape the labyrinth of concealed turnings, and her final rescue by a fine man's great love make this Pamela Wynne's most absorbing novel. $2.00

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY

The Macmillan Company, an American corporation, was established in 1896 to engage in a general publishing business.

Today, it has five branches in the United States and many agencies in foreign lands. Its organization in the United States includes the New York house and its branch offices in Chicago, Boston, Atlanta, Dallas, and San Francisco. It maintains its own agents in Cuba, the Philippines, and Hawaii, and special agencies in South America, Australia, China, and Japan. In addition to its own far-flung organization, arrangements with Macmillan & Co., Limited, of London, which also has offices in Australia and India, and with The Macmillan Company of Canada Ltd., make it possible for The Macmillan Company to market its books wherever there is an English-speaking public. Its foreign business is under the general supervision of the Foreign Department.

Most of the titles issued by Macmillan & Co. Ltd., of London, which are of interest to Americans are published also by The Macmillan Company of New York. The Macmillan Company represents a number of other English publishers: The Cambridge University Press, A. & C. Black, and the Society for the Promotion of Christian Knowledge.

ORGANIZATION OF THE MACMILLAN COMPANY

The publishing activities of The Macmillan Company are centered in seven publishing departments each handling publications of related types: General (or Trade), Educational, College, Medical, Religious, Juvenile, and Agricultural.

The Trade Department

The General (or Trade) Department publishes and promotes the sale of works of fiction, poetry and drama, philosophy and psychology, biography, general history, criticisms, art, travel, etc. Books classified in this catalogue as "a, c, g, l, z" are handled by this department.

The Juvenile Department

The Macmillan Company was the first general publishing house to create a special department for books for boys and girls. The books of this department are listed as "j."

The Medical Department

The field of the Medical Department covers the entire range of medicine and related subjects. Its publications include the following classes: medical textbooks, dental books, nursing textbooks, and veterinary books (listed in this catalogue as "k"), general medical books and public health books (listed as "m").

The Religious Department

The Religious Department keeps in close touch with the scholarship of the world in theology, psychology, philosophy, and related subjects. Religious books are designated by "r" and "s" in this catalogue.

The College Department

This department publishes text and reference books for the use of colleges, universities, and technical institutions. Its books are listed throughout the catalogue as "d."

The Educational Department

This department keeps in close touch with educational progress and needs in teachers' colleges and in public and private schools throughout the country.

Its publications are (1) textbooks and supplementary books for elementary schools (listed as "x"); (2) textbooks for secondary schools (listed as "f"); and (3) books on education, including textbooks for normal schools (listed as "t").

The Agricultural Department

This department publishes books dealing with all phases of agriculture. Its publications are listed as "y" and "p."

CLASSIFICATION OF MACMILLAN BOOKS

All books of The Macmillan Company, with the exception of subscription books, periodicals, and other special books, are assigned to one or another of sixteen classifications, designated by the letters:
